"Full" McCarthy Debate Set

'Joe Must Go' Club Planning Another Drive

Chairman Declares People Of Wisconsin 'Have Changed Mind'

WASHINGTON, July 29 (AP) — A new move to unseat Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) will be launched after the November elections, Leroy Gore, chairman of the "Joe must Go" clubs, announced today.

As outlined, this will be a far more elaborate drive than the one that failed last spring. Not only will the "Joe Must Go" people be after signatures from Wisconsin voters, but they also will launch a nationwide campaign to persuade citizens to write their senators. The aim is to make sure that, in case Wisconsin votes to unseat McCarthy, the Senate will go along with the decision.

Gore Sees No Hitch

Gore predicted he would encounter no difficulty in: (1) getting enough signatures to set up a recall election, and (2) defeating McCarthy in that election.

"The people of Wisconsin have changed their mind about McCarthy," Gore said, "and he ought to have to go to bat again."

Gore, 50-year-old editor of the Sauk, Wis., Prairie-Star, was in town today to line up backing for his renewed recall campaign and also to do what he could in behalf of the move by Sen. Flanders (R-Vt) to censure McCarthy.

Gore said he would be talking with a score of political leaders of both parties, but he declined to identify any of them except Sen. Wiley (R-Wis). He added that Wiley was a personal friend of his and that he would not try to pressure Wiley into taking a stand on the recall move.

Requirement Drop Seen

The Wisconsin constitution, Gore explained, provides that 25 per cent of those casting ballots in the last previous gubernatorial election must sign recall petitions before a special election can be held.

He said it was necessary to get 405,000 signatures after the 1952 elections but that he doesn't believe he will need to get more than 250,000 after the '54 vote. Gore showed up in town with a vast sheaf of papers and said it contained about 250,000 of the 355,000 legal signatures he asserts he collected.

Steel Companies Discuss Merger

NEW YORK, July 29 (AP)—Board Chairman Eugene C. Grace of Bethlehem Steel Corp. today confirmed reports that merger negotiations were in progress between Bethlehem and Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co.

At the same time, Grace reported higher earnings in the second quarter than in the first and announced that a dividend of $1.25 a share on common stock would be paid Sept. 1 to holders of record Aug. 9.

With the exception of the two preceding quarters, Bethlehem has been paying $1 a share at quarterly intervals in recent years.

"We're still talking," said Grace, when pressed for details about the proposed merger which he said had not yet reached the point where it could be presented to the stockholders.

The proposed merger would combine the nation's second biggest steel producer, Bethlehem, with the sixth largest, Youngstown.

Bethlehem's present rated annual capacity is 18,500,000 net tons of ingots and steel for castings; Youngstown's is 5,500,000 net tons.

Their combined total of 24,000,000 net tons would place the companies, if merged, still behind mighty United States Steel Corp., whose annual rated capacity of 38,715,000 net tons gives it a firm grip on the title of greatest steelmaker in the world.

Reds Say U. S. Ships Planes Into Korea

TOKYO, Friday, July 30 (AP) — The Communists have accused the United States of shipping into South Korea 35 planes and large quantities of ammunition in violation of the armistice, Peiping radio said today.

The broadcast said Communist Poland and Czechoslovakia of the Neutral Nations Supervisory Commission handed the report over to the Military Armistice Commission July 21. There was no mention of Sweden and Switzerland, the other two members of the supervisory commission. They frequently dissent from the view of the Red members.

Measure Sent To President By 61-26 Vote

Legislation Carries Variety Of Individual, Corporation Benefits

WASHINGTON, July 29 (AP)—The Senate tonight passed the Eisenhower administration's big tax revision bill carrying a wide variety of benefits for many individuals and corporations.

The measure, a compromise version already passed by the House, now goes to President Eisenhower. The President has called it the cornerstone of his 1954 legislative program.

The vote was 61—26.

The measure, the first complete overhaul of the tax laws in 75 years, goes to the White House with most of the key provisions in exactly the form that Eisenhower recommended in January.

Revenues Cut Over Billion

It represents the second major item on his legislative priority list to go to the President on successive days. Yesterday Congress sent him the general housing bill. In this measure, however, the President's public housing features were cut far below what he had asked.

The tax bill cuts government revenues an estimated $1,363,000,000 in the first year. The revenue loss will be greater in future years.

Senate Democrats centered their attack on a provision giving a tax cut to stockholders on their dividend income.

This had been considerably watered down from the original Eisenhower request. But opponents still sought unsuccessfully to defeat the compromise bill so that it would have to go back to another conference with the House.

No General Rate Changes

While altering various provisions of tax law, the bill makes no general changes in tax rates now in effect. The rates which it reenacts are expected to bring in slightly more than 60 billion dollars to run the government in the next year. That includes $30,300,000,000 in individual income taxes, $20,300,000,000 in corporation levies, $9,200,000,000 in excise taxes, and one billion from estate and gift levies.

Most of the tax cuts in the bill are effective as of last Jan. 1, and thus could be reflected in returns filed next year.

For individuals, the biggest reductions would go to stockholders, families with heavy medical expenses, mothers who must work to support their children, retired persons, parents of college - age children who work, and farmers with large soil conservation expenses.

Senate Opposes Red China Entry Into U. N., 91 To 0

WASHINGTON, July 29 (AP)—The Senate spoke with one voice today against the entrance of Red China into the United Nations.

It voted 91-0 to write into the $3,100,000,000 foreign aid bill a reiteration by Congress of "its opposition to the seating in the United Nations of the Communist China regime as the representative of China."

The amendment also requests President Eisenhower, in the event of Red Chinese admission, to inform Congress "of the implications of this action upon the foreign policy of the United States . . . together with any recommendations which he may have with respect to the matter."

"Wait And See" Plan

Majority Leader Knowland of California was the sponsor of this "wait and see" plan, which apparently reflects administration policy. It is a far cry, however, from Knowland's original proposal that the United States withdraw from the U.N. the moment Communist China gets in, with the policy to be set by Congress beforehand.

Both Eisenhower and Dulles have advised going slow on the question of quitting the United Nations. They also have expressed confidence that Red China will be unable to obtain a seat. The issue may be raised at the U.N. this fall.

Five Senators Absent

Only five senators were absent when the anti-Peiping amendment was adopted—Beall (R-Md), Eastland (D-Miss), Frear (D-Del), Kefauver (D-Tenn) and McClellan (D-Ark). Although not voting, they were announced as in favor of the amendment.

After approving several other amendments the Senate recessed until tomorrow without reaching a final vote on the aid bill.

Sen. Long (D-La) told reporters during a break in the debate that he would ask the Senate to chop more than one billion dollars out of the big aid authorization bill.

He said he has the support of "more than 30 senators, and I hope enough more to put through the amendment."

The House has voted to appropriate $2,895,000,000 in new money for foreign aid in the current fiscal year.

Cargoliner Leads Plane To Landing

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa, July 29 (AP) — A single-engine plane lost above an overcast in the Moline, Ill., area today, was led to a safe landing here by a United Air Lines DC4 Cargoliner.

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz., July 29 (AP)—A photo shop owner was charged today with murdering a city councilman who lived next door. Less than an hour after the slaying the attractive wife of the accused slayer was killed when her car plunged into a canal, but the county attorney said following an autopsy today that there apparently was no connection between the two deaths.

The accused man is William Demand, 35. He is charged with firing a .32 caliber bullet which pierced the heart of Councilman V. D. Frederick Tuesday night while Frederick was watching television.

Just before filing a murder complaint against Demand, County Atty. William Mahoney told newsmen there apparently was no connection between the Frederick slaying and the death of Mrs. Faye Demand, 29. Her body was recovered from the Arizona Canal 40 minutes after her car plunged in.

Dr. Daniel J. Condon, county medical examiner, said an autopsy showed that she had drowned. He said a test showed the alcoholic content of her blood to be .245 and under state law a person with a .150 reading is considered drunk.

Frederick's wife, Dortha Marie, said she was asleep when her husband was killed. She told officers she heard a car pull hurriedly out of the drive and that she arose and found her husband dead. She said she did not hear a shot.

Sheriff's Capt. D. L. McGovney said there were no powder burns on the body, indicating the shot was not fired at close range.

Other children, from left, are Ingrid, 5; Andre, 6; Otto, 7; Maria, 9; Marta, 11; Jos, 14; Annemarie, 12; Frans, 15; Albert, 17, and Marianne, 18.

Peiping Rejects Protests By U. S.

Matter Not Closed, State Dept. Says

WASHINGTON, July 29 (AP)—Red China has contemptuously turned down American protests against Communist fighter plane attacks on British and American aircraft over the South China Sea.

The Reds refused even to consider the protests.

The State Department disclosed today the rejection had occurred yesterday at Peiping. It announced that the matter "will not be permitted to rest there" but did not say what new steps might be taken.

No Punishment Indicated

Two salient points emerged from the situation:

1. The rejection means that the Chinese Communists are refusing to promise this country to punish those persons responsible for the China Sea attacks, or to give assurances there won't be more such incidents.

2. The State Department disclosed that Britain has sent a formal commendation for the rescue efforts of the U.S. Navy in connection with the shootings. American officials have viewed the Communist tactics, of being contemptuous toward America, and placatory toward Britain, as an effort to drive a wedge between them.

U. N. Action Possible

One possible course of new America action could be in the United Nations. There, the United States might use Red China's conduct in the whole affair as further and dramatic proof of the American argument that Communist China is unfit to be given a membership in the U.N.

The latest turn of events appeared to bear out President Eisenhower's view at a news conference yesterday that the Chinese Reds are trying to play the clashes in such a way as to divide the United States and Britain.

For, while Peiping refused to accept the American protests, it has apologized promptly to Britain for the destruction of the British plane involved.

Tax Bill Moves Back Deadline For Filing

WASHINGTON, July 29 (AP) — March 15 — traditional filing date for personal income tax returns for 40 years — is scrapped as the deadline under a provision of the tax revision bill sent to President Eisenhower tonight.

The new date is April 15, effective next year.

It has been March 15 since the modern-day income tax law first went on the books in 1913.

Contracts Given For Big Carrier, Two Atom Subs

WASHINGTON, July 29 (AP)—Two private shipyards today lost a chance to get the contract for a fourth big aircraft carrier of the Forrestal class because the Navy said their bids were too high. The contract went to the New York Naval Shipyard at Brooklyn, N.Y.

At the same time the Navy announced contracts for two new atom-powered submarines, which will bring the total of such craft to four.

One will be built at the Portsmouth Naval Shipyard at Kittery, Maine, thus giving the United States a second yard equipped and trained for that type of construction.

The contract for a third A-powered submarine was awarded to the Electric Boat Division of the General Dynamics Corp. at Groton, Conn., where the first two nuclear-powered subs, the Nautilus and the Seawolf, were built.

Adm. Robert B. Carney, chief of naval operations, has said other A-powered subs will be built.

In announcing the awards, Rear Adm. William D. Leggett, chief of the Bureau of Ships, gave no details of the cost and construction plans for the new 60-000-ton Forrestal-type carrier, but Rep. Wigglesworth (R-Mass) said it would cost an estimated 124½ million dollars at the Brooklyn navy yard.

The private firms bidding for the job were the Quincy, Mass., yard of Bethlehem Steel Co., and the New York Shipbuilding Corp., of Camden, N.J.

Under the law requiring that major shipbuilding contracts be alternated between private and naval shipyards, the new carrier was to have gone to a naval yard. But because of "the distressed condition of the private shipbuilding industry," Secretary of the Navy Charles Thomas said in a statement read by Adm. Leggett that an exception had been considered.

Thomas noted that both the Quincy and Camden yards "are highly efficient and have outstanding records in the construction of combat ships."

"However," he said, "their proposals as submitted were substantially above the carefully calculated costs of building this fourth carrier at the New York Naval Shipyard."

Churchill Rides Down Rebellion In His Own Party

Evacuation Policy Endorsed 257 To 26

LONDON, July 29 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill successfully rode down a rebellion in his own party tonight and won overwhelming approval in the House of Commons of his historic decision to withdraw British troops from the Suez Canal zone.

The House supported Churchill's evacuation policy by a vote of 257 to 26. It had just heard a government declaration that the H-bomb has made obsolete the billion dollar base Britain built and occupied for nearly three-quarters of a century.

More than half of the House, including most Laborites, abstained.

U. S. Endorses Agreement

The 79-year-old Churchill, who declared in 1945 he had not become prime minister in order to liquidate the empire, had staked the life of his Cabinet on a motion demanding approval of the agreement initialed with the Egyptian government last Tuesday night.

The agreement, warmly approved by U.S. government leaders calls for transfer of the 83,000 British troops from their Suez base within 20 months after a detailed pact is signed. The seven-year agreement gives Britain the right to occupy the base in case of attack on Turkey or any of the Arab League states. The vast installations dominating the strategic waterway are to be kept in shape by British or civilian caretakers under contract to the British.

26 Conservatives Vote No

Seeking to rally the backing of 40 Tory rebels, Churchill argued in a trembling voice that the whole British position in Suez had been outdated by "the appalling developments and the appalling spectacles which imagination raises before us.

"Merely to try to imagine in outline how to portray the first few weeks of a war as it is now . . . would convince you of the obsolescence of the base."

In the final test only 26 Conservatives, angered at the agreement to permit the crumbling of another bit of the empire, voted against the government. A group of 40 Conservatives had threatened to jump the traces on the issue.

Government Will Speed Spending As Economy Aid

WASHINGTON, July 29 (AP) — A spending speedup to "give the economy a little nudge" has been set in motion by the Eisenhower administration, Secretary of Commerce Weeks disclosed today. It includes a 385-million-dollar shipbuilding program, which Weeks called a peacetime record.

He told a news conference of the adoption of "a conscious government policy to speed up procurement" without boosting total budget outlays.

Offset Defense Spending Cut

The commerce secretary said the idea of the "little nudge" is to offset the deflationary effect of the decline in defense expenditures, without being inconsistent with the administration's basic policies of economy and stable money.

The effort, he said, embraces the ship building program, accelerated aid for highway and airport construction, and special consideration for depressed industries, including soft coal and anthracite, textiles and metals mining.

$65,800,000 Program

Weeks announced a $65,800,000, government - subsidized expansion program for the American President Lines, as a start toward rejuvenating the merchant fleet and reviving U. S. shipyards.

The President line, he said, will build two new passenger-cargo ships of "the most advanced design," will buy and rebuild four of the maritime administration's fast "Mariner" cargo vessels, and will buy two luxury liners which it now operates in the Pacific under charter, the government-owned President Cleveland and President Wilson.

U. S. Offers Food To Flood Victims

WASHINGTON, July 29 (AP) — American food for the victims of Europe's floods, including thousands of hungry behind the Iron Curtain, was offered today by President Eisenhower.

He disclosed that emergency assistance has already been extended to people living along the overflowing rivers in West Germany and Austria.

But whether the Communist governments in such countries as Czechoslovakia, Hungary and East Germany will accept American help was questionable.

An offer of 15 million dollars worth of food for the people of East Germany last July was denounced by the Reds as an American "propaganda trick." The Soviet high commissioner issued a protest against the plan.

FTC Reports Speculation Helped Hike Coffee Prices

WASHINGTON, July 29 (AP)—The Federal Trade Commission today attributed the sharp rise in coffee prices last winter to speculation, an increase in Brazil's export price figures, and other factors including "market imperfections."

The commission's report was the fruit of an investigation begun last January under orders of President Eisenhower, There had been widespread indignation among United States housewives when the retail price of coffee shot up to $1.18 a pound and more.

In the report, the FTC saw prospects for lower prices in the future unless there is excessive crop damage, and provided "supply and demand are permitted freely to run their course."

Some of the conditions that led to soaring prices might be corrected, it said, by FTC or judicial action but it found the remedies are mainly in the hands of Congress.

It proposed that Congress look into "the adequacy of present margin requirements" and pass legislation to remedy such "market imperfections" as trading irregularities, inadequacies of basic marketing information and narrowness of the futures contract.

The commission said a frost in Brazil last July had no significant effect upon the 1953-54 crop but did reduce the prospective 1954-55 crop. Even so, it said, the world crop will be slightly larger than in 1953-54 And it said it found "no actual current shortage in the volume of coffee moving to market which would fully explain the price increase."

Brazilians and others had laid the price jump to frost.

Senate Starts Threshing Out Issue Today

Moves To Censure Or Probe Wisconsin Legislator On Tap

WASHINGTON, July 29 (AP)—The Senate Republican leadership today decreed a full dress debate on moves to censure or investigate Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis). Policy makers for Senate Democrats left up to individuals the question of how they shall vote.

Sen. Knowland of California, the Republican leader, said he had decided to allow "a full dress debate . . . a full discussion" even though prospects are that it probably "will tie up the legislative program."

The Democratic Policy Committee met later and decided against making the vote on McCarthy a party issue. It said:

"It was the unanimous sense of the committee that the issue raised is a matter of conscience upon which each individual senator should vote his convictions without regard to party affiliation."

Complication Develops

The issue will be threshed out on the floor beginning tomorrow and perhaps running through Saturday and Monday sessions.

A complication arose today with the sudden introduction by Sen. H. Alexander Smith (R-NJ) of a resolution calling for a senatorial committee of three Republicans and three Democrats to investigate, and report by next Feb. 1, on "the alleged good or evil of so-called McCarthyism."

Smith's resolution which he said "popped into my mind" when he woke at 5 o'clock this morning, would, if adopted, put off any Senate showdown on the issue until months after the November election.

He offered it as a proposed substitute for the resolution by Sen. Flanders (R-Vt). Flanders would have the Senate declare McCarthy guilty of unbecoming conduct as chairman of the Senate Investigations subcommittee.

Not "Out," Smith Says

Smith denied that his call for an investigation was prompted by any desire by Senate leaders for an "out" that could be used by senators not eager to take a stand on McCarthy this close to election.

At the same time, he said that if his resolution, or something like it, does not pass "every candidate up today is going to be put right on the spot on this issue."

Democratic Leader Lyndon Johnson, of Texas, said in announcing the Policy Committee decision not to make McCarthy a party issue that "more than one" of those present "suggested it should be."

Nicaragua Sends Tanks To Border

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, July 29 (AP)—Nicaragua sent a mile-long convoy of armored cars and tanks to the Costa Rican border today.

President Anastasio Somoza said the troops "are going to the border to defend Nicaragua's territory." He headed the parade to the outskirts of the capital and then returned to his house.

Nicaragua and Costa Rica have been wrangling about border violations.

Costa Rica complained armed men invaded its territory from Nicaragua. The Managua government retorted Costa Rican police and planes had violated its territorial integrity.

There have been clashes this week along the border as Costa Rican constabulary chased invaders whom they called robbers. Nicaragua called them rebels, intent on the overthrow of President Jose Figueres.

Foreign Minister Oscar Sevilla Sacasa said that if President Jose Figueres of Costa Rica "wants war he will have it. The patience of our government is not unlimited."

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz., July 29 (AP) —A photo shop owner was charged today with murdering a city councilman who lived next door. Less than an hour after the slaying the attractive wife of the accused slayer was killed when her car plunged into a canal, but the county attorney said following an autopsy today that there apparently was no connection between the two deaths.

The accused man is William Demand, 35. He is charged with firing a .32 caliber bullet which pierced the heart of Councilman V. D. Frederick Tuesday night while Frederick was watching television.

Just before filing a murder complaint against Demand, County Atty. William Mahoney told newsmen there apparently was no connection between the Frederick slaying and the death of Mrs. Faye Demand, 29. Her body was recovered from the Arizona Canal 40 minutes after her car plunged in.

Dr. Daniel J. Condon, county medical examiner, said an autopsy showed that she had drowned. He said a test showed the alcoholic content of her blood to be .245 and under state law a person with a .150 reading is considered drunk.

Frederick's wife, Dortha Marie, said she was asleep when her husband was killed. She told officers she heard a car pull hurriedly out of the drive and that she arose and found her husband dead. She said she did not hear a shot.

Sheriff's Capt. D. L. McGovney said there were no powder burns on the body, indicating the shot was not fired at close range.

Peiping Rejects Protests By U. S.

Matter Not Closed, State Dept. Says

WASHINGTON, July 29 (AP)—Red China has contemptuously turned down American protests against Communist fighter plane attacks on British and American aircraft over the South China Sea.

The Reds refused even to consider the protests.

The State Department disclosed today the rejection had occurred yesterday at Peiping. It announced that the matter "will not be permitted to rest there" but did not say what new steps might be taken.

No Punishment Indicated

Two salient points emerged from the situation:

1. The rejection means that the Chinese Communists are refusing to promise this country to punish those persons responsible for the China Sea attacks, or to give assurances there won't be more such incidents.

2. The State Department disclosed that Britain has sent a formal commendation for the rescue efforts of the U.S. Navy in connection with the shootings. American officials have viewed the Communist tactics, of being contemptuous toward America, and placatory toward Britain, as an effort to drive a wedge between them.

U. N. Action Possible

One possible course of new American action could be in the United Nations. There, the United States might use Red China's conduct in the whole affair as further and dramatic proof of the American argument that Communist China is unfit to be given a membership in the U.N.

The latest turn of events appeared to bear out President Eisenhower's view at a news conference yesterday that the Chinese Reds are trying to play the clashes in such a way as to divide the United States and Britain.

For, while Peiping refused to accept the American protests, it has apologized promptly to Britain for the destruction of the British plane involved.

Tax Bill Moves Back Deadline For Filing

WASHINGTON, July 29 (AP) — March 15 — traditional filing date for personal income tax returns for 40 years — is scrapped as the deadline under a provision of the tax revision bill sent to President Eisenhower tonight.

The new date is April 15, effective next year.

It has been March 15 since the modern-day income tax law first went on the books in 1913.

Contracts Given For Big Carrier, Two Atom Subs

WASHINGTON, July 29 (AP)—Two private shipyards today lost a chance to get the contract for a fourth big aircraft carrier of the Forrestal class because the Navy said their bids were too high. The contract went to the New York Naval Shipyard at Brooklyn, N.Y.

At the same time the Navy announced contracts for two new atom-powered submarines, which will bring the total of such craft to four.

One will be built at the Portsmouth Naval Shipyard at Kittery, Maine, thus giving the United States a second yard equipped and trained for that type of construction.

The contract for a third A-powered submarine was awarded to the Electric Boat Division of the General Dynamics Corp. at Groton, Conn., where the first two nuclear-powered subs, the Nautilus and the Seawolf, were built.

Adm. Robert B. Carney, chief of naval operations, has said other A-powered subs will be built.

In announcing the awards, Rear Adm. William D. Leggett, chief of the Bureau of Ships, gave no details of the cost and construction plans for the new 60-000-ton Forrestal-type carrier, but Rep. Wigglesworth (R-Mass) said it would cost an estimated 124½ million dollars at the Brooklyn navy yard.

The private firms bidding for the job were the Quincy, Mass., yard of Bethlehem Steel Co., and the New York Shipbuilding Corp., of Camden, N.J.

Under the law requiring that major shipbuilding contracts be alternated between private and naval shipyards, the new carrier was to have gone to a naval yard. But because of "the distressed condition of the private shipbuilding industry," Secretary of the Navy Charles Thomas said in a statement read by Adm. Leggett that an exception had been considered.

Thomas noted that both the Quincy and Camden yards "are highly efficient and have outstanding records in the construction of combat ships."

"However," he said, "their proposals as submitted were substantially above the carefully calculated costs of building this fourth carrier at the New York Naval Shipyard."

Government Will Speed Spending As Economy Aid

WASHINGTON, July 29 (AP) — A spending speedup to "give the economy a little nudge" has been set in motion by the Eisenhower administration, Secretary of Commerce Weeks disclosed today. It includes a 385-million-dollar shipbuilding program, which Weeks called a peacetime record.

He told a news conference of the adoption of "a conscious government policy to speed up procurement" without boosting total budget outlays.

Offset Defense Spending Cut

The commerce secretary said the idea of the "little nudge" is to offset the deflationary effect of the decline in defense expenditures, without being inconsistent with the administration's basic policies of economy and stable money.

The effort, he said, embraces the ship building program, accelerated aid for highway and airport construction, and special consideration for depressed industries, including soft coal and anthracite, textiles and metals mining.

$65,800,000 Program

Weeks announced a $65,800,000, government - subsidized expansion program for the American President Lines, as a start toward rejuvenating the merchant fleet and reviving U. S. shipyards.

The President line, he said, will build two new passenger-cargo ships of "the most advanced design," will buy and rebuild four of the maritime administration's fast "Mariner" cargo vessels, and will buy two luxury liners which it now operates in the Pacific under charter, the government-owned President Cleveland and President Wilson.

FTC Reports Speculation Helped Hike Coffee Prices

WASHINGTON, July 29 (AP)—The Federal Trade Commission today attributed the sharp rise in coffee prices last winter to speculation, an increase in Brazil's export price figures, and other factors including "market imperfections."

The commission's report was the fruit of an investigation begun last January under orders of President Eisenhower. There had been widespread indignation among United States housewives when the retail price of coffee shot up to $1.18 a pound and more.

In the report, the FTC saw prospects for lower prices in the future unless there is excessive crop damage, and provided "supply and demand are permitted freely to run their course."

Some of the conditions that led to soaring prices might be corrected, it said, by FTC or judicial action but it found the remedies are mainly in the hands of Congress.

It proposed that Congress look into "the adequacy of present margin requirements" and pass legislation to remedy such "market imperfections" as trading irregularities, inadequacies of basic marketing information and narrowness of the futures contract.

The commission said a frost in Brazil last July had no significant effect upon the 1953-54 crop but did reduce the prospective 1954-55 crop. Even so, it said, the world crop will be slightly larger than in 1953-54 And it said it found "no actual current shortage in the volume of coffee moving to market which would fully explain the price increase."

Brazilians and others had laid the price jump to frost.

Evacuation Policy Endorsed 257 To 26

LONDON, July 29 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill successfully rode down a rebellion in his own party tonight and won overwhelming approval in the House of Commons of his historic decision to withdraw British troops from the Suez Canal zone.

The House supported Churchill's evacuation policy by a vote of 257 to 26. It had just heard a government declaration that the H-bomb has made obsolete the billion dollar base Britain built and occupied for nearly three-quarters of a century.

More than half of the House, including most Laborites, abstained.

U. S. Endorses Agreement

The 79-year-old Churchill, who declared in 1945 he had not become prime minister in order to liquidate the empire, had staked the life of his Cabinet on a motion demanding approval of the agreement initialed with the Egyptian government last Tuesday night.

The agreement, warmly approved by U.S. government leaders calls for transfer of the 83,000 British troops from their Suez base within 20 months after a detailed pact is signed. The seven-year agreement gives Britain the right to occupy the base in case of attack on Turkey or any of the Arab League states. The vast installations dominating the strategic waterway are to be kept in shape by British or civilian caretakers under contract to the British.

26 Conservatives Vote No

Seeking to rally the backing of 40 Tory rebels, Churchill argued in a trembling voice that the whole British position in Suez had been outdated by "the appalling developments and the appalling spectacles which imagination raises before us.

"Merely to try to imagine in outline how to portray the first few weeks of a war as it is now . . . would convince you of the obsolescence of the base."

In the final test only 26 Conservatives, angered at the agreement to permit the crumbling of another bit of the empire, voted against the government. A group of 40 Conservatives had threatened to jump the traces on the issue.

U. S. Offers Food To Flood Victims

WASHINGTON, July 29 (AP) — American food for the victims of Europe's floods, including thousands of hungry behind the Iron Curtain, was offered today by President Eisenhower.

He disclosed that emergency assistance has already been extended to people living along the overflowing rivers in West Germany and Austria.

But whether the Communist governments in such countries as Czechoslovakia, Hungary and East Germany will accept American help was questionable.

An offer of 15 million dollars worth of food for the people of East Germany last July was denounced by the Reds as an American "propaganda trick." The Soviet high commissioner issued a protest against the plan.

Senate Starts Threshing Out Issue Today

Moves To Censure Or Probe Wisconsin Legislator On Tap

WASHINGTON, July 29 (AP)—The Senate Republican leadership today decreed a full dress debate on moves to censure or investigate Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis). Policy makers for Senate Democrats left up to individuals the question of how they shall vote.

Sen. Knowland of California, the Republican leader, said he had decided to allow "a full dress debate . . . a full discussion" even though prospects are that it probably "will tie up the legislative program."

The Democratic Policy Committee met later and decided against making the vote on McCarthy a party issue. It said:

"It was the unanimous sense of the committee that the issue raised is a matter of conscience upon which each individual senator should vote his convictions without regard to party affiliation."

Complication Develops

The issue will be threshed out on the floor beginning tomorrow and perhaps running through Saturday and Monday sessions.

A complication arose today with the sudden introduction by Sen. H. Alexander Smith (R-NJ) of a resolution calling for a senatorial committee of three Republicans and three Democrats to investigate, and report by next Feb. 1, on "the alleged good or evil of so-called McCarthyism."

Smith's resolution which he said "popped into my mind" when he woke at 5 o'clock this morning, would, if adopted, put off any Senate showdown on the issue until months after the November election.

He offered it as a proposed substitute for the resolution by Sen. Flanders (R-Vt). Flanders would have the Senate declare McCarthy guilty of unbecoming conduct as chairman of the Senate Investigations subcommittee.

Not "Out," Smith Says

Smith denied that his call for an investigation was prompted by any desire by Senate leaders for an "out" that could be used by senators not eager to take a stand on McCarthy this close to election.

At the same time, he said that if his resolution, or something like it, does not pass "every candidate up today is going to be put right on the spot on this issue."

Democratic Leader Lyndon Johnson, of Texas, said in announcing the Policy Committee decision not to make McCarthy a party issue that "more than one" of those present "suggested it should be."

Nicaragua Sends Tanks To Border

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, July 29 (AP)—Nicaragua sent a mile-long convoy of armored cars and tanks to the Costa Rican border today.

President Anastasio Somoza said the troops "are going to the border to defend Nicaragua's territory." He headed the parade to the outskirts of the capital and then returned to his house.

Nicaragua and Costa Rica have been wrangling about border violations.

Costa Rica complained armed men invaded its territory from Nicaragua. The Managua government retorted Costa Rican police and planes had violated its territorial integrity.

There have been clashes this week along the border as Costa Rican constabulary chased invaders whom they called robbers. Nicaragua called them rebels, intent on the overthrow of President Jose Figueres.

Foreign Minister Oscar Sevilla Sacasa said that if President Jose Figueres of Costa Rica "wants war he will have it. The patience of our government is not unlimited."

Beall And Butler Vote For Tax Revision Bill

WASHINGTON, July 29 (AP)—The 61-26 roll call vote by which the Senate tonight sent to President Eisenhower the omnibus tax revision bill included:

Republicans for:
Maryland—Beall and Butler.

Democrats against:
West Virginia — Kilgore and Neely.

U. S. Rubber Report

NEW YORK, July 29 (AP)—United States Rubber Co. reported today for the first six months net income of $14,442,587, equal to $2.23 a share, compared with $14,440,347, or also $2.23 a share in the first half of 1953.

Thorne's Death Due To Natural Causes, Coroner's Jury Reports

Further Probe Recommended

CHICAGO, July 29 (AP) — A coroner's jury today decided that wealthy young Montgomery Ward Thorne died of natural causes, but recommended further investigation.

The jurors, several hours earlier, had received a report from four eminent pathologists who found that the 20-year-old heir's death was caused by bronchial pneumonia. These findings were quickly disputed by some figures in the case.

The report of the pathologists was designed to end conjecture about the death of the heir to a mail order fortune whose body was found in bed in his $75-a-month apartment on the near North Side June 19.

The pathologists reported that: "Montgomery Ward Thorne came to his death as the result of extensive bilaterial acute bronchopneumonia, complicated by aspirated stomach contents (vomitus)."

The latter clause, in layman's language, meant that Thorne had vomited food and inhaled some of it.

Among those who spoke of doubts was Mrs. Aleen Ragen. She and her daughter Maureen, 18, young Thorne's fiancee, were with Thorne the night before he was found dead in bed.

"This was not a natural death," Mrs. Ragen told newsmen at the end of the coroner's inquest session. "He was singing the last time I saw him."

Dr. Jerry Kearns, coroner's pathologist and a member of the four-man panel, told the jury of their findings.

Jay Stough, attorney for the Ragens, asked Dr. Kearns if bacteria could have been deliberately given to Thorne. Dr. Kearns replied that "pneumonia was not induced." Stough then asserted:

"We accept the pneumonia as a fact, but we are trying to find out how he caught it. The report is not square with the facts.

"I question the report because he was not sick before. Even if he died of pneumonia, it does not rule out foul play."

Dr. Harry Leon, coroner's physician who performed an earlier post-mortem examination, said he still felt death might have been caused by "undue means." He did not elaborate.

The first report attributed death to a mixture of drugs and alcohol, possibly administered by another person.

Coroner Walter E. McCarron then appointed the four pathologists—specialists in making deductions from a study of body organs, tissues and fluids—to make an investigation. The body was exhumed July 13.

Dr. Kearns testified that puncture marks on Thorne's arms resembled those made in giving blood. Thorne was a blood donor on at least two occasions.

Ex-Premier Now In China Urges Thai Revolution

TOKYO, Friday, July 30 (AP) — A former premier of Thailand, who is expected to head a Communist "Free Thai" movement from his refuge in Red China, today called for the overthrow of the Thai government.

Pridi Phanaomyong emerged from the obscurity into which he faded in 1947 after fleeing Thailand and wrote an article for Peoples Daily, the official voice of the Chinese Community party.

As broadcast by Peiping radio, he urged the people of Thailand "to wage a struggle against their rulers—American imperialism and it's puppets, the government of Thailand."

The fact that Peiping saw fit to mention Pridi for the first time and gave him prominent billing may mean that the Communist "Free Thai" movement may not be far off. There has been speculation that with northern Viet Nam swallowed, next door Thailand is next on the Communist timetable.

Peiping introduced Pridi as "the former Thai premier who is now in China." He variously has been reported as in Shanghai or in the border region opposite Thailand's northern frontiers.

Pridi wrote in Peoples Daily that only by a struggle by the Thai people "can the obstacles standing in the way of peace, independence and self-determination of the Thai people be removed."

MOTHER OF 10 WITHOUT WORRY IN WORLD—"Vicki" is as proud as she can be of her 10 three-week-old puppies, born to her in the canine maternity hospital of a kennel in Belleville, N. J. The special care "Vicki" receives goes even further, for when she gets tired feeding these 10 little mouths, the kennel takes over.

Prison Hunger Strike Will End

WALLA WALLA, Wash., July 29 (AP)—Nearly 1,500 Washington State Prison inmates agreed to end a three-day hunger and sitdown strike today.

An agreement to terminate the strike was handed through the gate of the administration building by representatives of a 58-member inmate committee.

Lawrence Delmore Jr., associate warden, said officials would start feeding the prisoners as soon as food could be prepared, but that this would take several hours.

The inmates' committee released a statement after a meeting with Fred Dickson, state supervisor of institutions.

It said that inasmuch as Dickson told the committee he intends to put in a program along the lines now in effect in California prisons and any employe who does not go along with the program will be replaced, the committee representing various wings in the prison agreed to end the sitdown and hunger strike immediately.

Sheppard Case 'Not In Condition' For Grand Jury

CLEVELAND, July 29 (AP)—The decision on whether to make an arrest in the Sheppard murder case was handed back, at least for the time being, to suburban Bay Village authorities today.

After a 2½-hour conference of top county law enforcement officials, Prosecutor Frank T. Cullitan said: "The case is not in condition to be taken to the grand jury at this time."

Dr. Samuel Sheppard has been questioned extensively in the death of his 31-year-old pregnant wife, Marilyn, who was beaten to death in her bed July 4. He said he had no comment when informed the law officials were meeting at Cullitan's office.

Cullitan said he had no "right, duty or authority" to step into a murder unless police failed to take warranted action. He said he would not step in now.

Some two hours of the conference in his office was devoted, he said, to "going over evidence for the benefit of Bay Village police" and the decision was left then to them.

Richard Weygandt, solicitor for the lakefront suburb, said he had complete authority on future action and would review evidence. He gave no indication on when or whether an arrest would be made.

Cleveland police, who complained they were called in after the trail grew cold, said they will continue investigating.

Dr. Sheppard, a 30-year-old osteopath, told a coroner's inquest he was sleeping on a downstairs couch the night of the killing. He testified he ran upstairs after hearing a call for help and was knocked out twice in fights with an intruder.

Possible Uranium Strike Is Reported

SALT LAKE CITY, July 29 (AP)—A Salt Lake City insurance salesman said today that he and two other Salt Lake businessmen have made what may be a promising uranium strike in the gas hills area of Wyoming's Fremont county.

Vern Hughes said he and his partners—motel operators Earl Allgood and John Armstrong—have received a preliminary opinion from a Bureau of Mines minerologist that their samples may contain one of two "young" uranium minerals which are low in radioactivity and high in chemical assay.

Israeli Plane Falls On Building, Killing 13

TEL AVIV, Israel, July 29 (AP)—Thirteen or more Israeli civilians were killed and 25 injured today when a small plane flying in a commemoration ceremony for World War II Jewish parachutists crashed in flames on a building at Maagan, in Galilee.

Premier Moshe Sharett and other officials were present at the unveiling of a monument but were unhurt, eyewitness reports said.

Yachts, Honeymoons Not Business Expense

WASHINGTON, July 29 (AP) — Internal Revenue Commissioner T. Coleman Andrews reported today the government is getting tougher with taxpayers who deduct such items as yachts and honeymoons as business expenses in figuring income taxes.

Andrews told a House Ways and Means subcommittee about recent unsuccessful efforts to evade taxes by charging to "business expense" a society debut, weddings, jewelry and even the funeral expense of a taxpayer's mother.

"You would think businessmen would know better," Andrews said, and added:

2,000-Year-Old Man Wins Prize

AARHUS, Denmark, July 29 (AP)—Aarhus' annual city festival prize went to a 2,000-year-old man today.

Amid fanfares from ancient trumpets, Lord Mayor Unmack Larsen, announced the prize of $150 had been awarded the "Grauballe man" for "outstanding services to his city."

The almost perfectly preserved body was unearthed from a Danish peat bog in April 1952. The man was believed to have been hanged as a sacrifice to a goddess of fertility 2,000 years ago.

Yugoslav Cleric Sent To Prison

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, July 29 (AP)—A Serbian Orthodox Church leader who has fought policies of Marshal Tito's independent Communist regime on religion was sentenced today to 11 years, 6 months in prison for alleged antistate activities.

Arsenijue Bradvarevic, 72-year-old metropolitan in Montenegro, one of Yugoslavia's six republics, was convicted at the end of a two-day trial. The sentence was telephoned here by district court clerk at Cetinje, Montenegran capital.

Yugoslav officials have maintained silence since Arsenije's arrest July 6. But religious sources here said the metropolitan was charged with leading a group of four priests in a conspiracy to overthrow the Tito government.

The four priests were arrested with the metropolitan, but two of them later were released, these sources declared.

As evidence of the anti-Tito conspiracy, the indictment was reported to have accused Arsenije and the priests of celebrating President Eisenhower's 1952 election by gathering to drink toasts of coffee.

The church sources said the indictment, in addition to conspiracy, included these charges:

Boulder Plunges Down Mine Shaft, Killing Two

SPRINGHILL, N.S., July 29 (AP)—A four-ton boulder thundered down a mine shaft like a cannonball today and smashed a cart carrying workers to the surface. Two men were killed and 14 injured.

One man was killed when the boulder struck the cart at the 4,400-foot level in the Cumberland Railway and Coal Co. mine. The other was crushed about 1,000 feet further down as the huge rock plummeted the length of the shaft.

Pilots To Go Ahead With Airline Strike

CHICAGO, July 29 (AP)—The AFL Airline Pilots Assn. said today it will go ahead with its strike against American Airlines one minute before midnight Friday.

Clarence N. Sayen, ALPA president, said all of American's more than 1,200 pilots have been alerted to leave their jobs at that hour.

"The National Mediation Board has relinquished jurisdiction of the dispute and in accordance with our recourse under the Railway Labor Act, the strike time has been reinstated," Sayen said.

The dispute involves the union's objection to American's scheduling continuous flight time of more than eight hours in any 24.

Woman Who Stabbed Priest Mentally Ill

SAN FRANCISCO, July 29 (AP)—The woman who stabbed a priest Monday while he was saying mass at the altar of St. Gabriel's church today was ordered committed to a state mental hospital.

The priest, Father Bernard Cronin, is recovering from a 2½-inch-deep knife wound in the back of his neck.

Superior Judge Orla St. Clair ordered Josephine Avanzino, 37, committed to Mendocino State Hospital. Earlier her mother had filed a mental illness petition.

Confesses To Murder

Youth Who Boasted To Girl Of "Perfect Crime" Seized

BROOKLINE, Mass., July 29 (AP)—A bragging story to a girl friend about a "perfect crime" led to the arrest today of an 18-year-old prep school student on a charge of murder.

Police said Ronald Blumenthal confessed—after brief questioning—that he killed Mrs. Ora Schonarth, 52, a four-times wed, red-haired divorcee.

She was found dead in her apartment, throttled by a pair of men's shorts, her head battered by a rolling pin and a kitchen knife thrust into her heart.

Young Blumenthal was hauled out of bed at his home in the early morning hours when police followed up a tip from the father of an unidentified girl that Blumenthal had described details of the slaying the night before the body was found.

Within a few hours after his arrest, young Blumenthal's confession was announced and he was arraigned in District Court on a charge of murder. The case was continued for hearing Aug. 5 after the youth entered the mandatory plea of innocent.

Mrs. Schonarth, a former dress shop owner, was killed Tuesday in midafternoon, police said, but her body wasn't found until the next morning.

But, police said, on Tuesday night young Blumenthal, a 200-pound six-footer, told a girl friend about a "perfect crime" in which a rolling pin, a knife and strangulation were involved.

When the girl read details of the Schonarth death in the newspapers Wednesday, she told her father about the story, police said. He relayed the information to the investigators.

President Honors Heroic French Nurse

WASHINGTON, July 29 (AP) — President Eisenhower today conferred the Medal of Freedom with bronze palm upon the French flight nurse who tended the wounded through the fall of Dien Bien Phu.

The nurse, Genevieve de Galard-Terraube, thanked the President in a barely audible voice and said she accepted the great honor on behalf of those who fought in the Indochina fortress.

The presentation took place on the White House steps in the rose garden with Miss De Galard standing between the President and Mrs. Eisenhower.

Martin Co. Debt Free

BALTIMORE, July 29 (AP) — The Glenn L. Martin Co., which owed 53 million dollars at the end of 1951, is now free of debt, President George M. Bunker announced today.

Kidnaper-Rapist, Author Granted Stay Of Execution

SAN FRANCISCO, July 29 (AP)—Kidnaper-rapist Caryl Chessman, author of the widely read book, "Cell 2455, Death Row," won an indefinite stay of execution today less than 24 hours before he was to have died in the state gas chamber.

Chessman, convicted as a lovers' lane terrorist in Los Angeles whose assaults sent one girl victim to a mental institution, already had left plans for his cremation and resigned himself to die at 10 a.m. (PDT) tomorrow.

State Supreme Court Justice Jesse W. Carter granted the stay shortly after word came from Los Angeles that Gov. Goodwin J. Knight had turned down a final appeal.

In Los Angeles Gov. Knight said "no comment" when advised of Carter's action.

Justice Carter said the execution would be stayed until the United States Supreme Court had opportunity to rule on a petition for a writ of review.

The heart of this petition by the 32-year-old Chessman—occupant of death row for six years—was that the trial transcript was in error, having been made from the notes of a court reporter who died before he could finish 1,200 pages.

Chessman's attorney, Berwyn Rice, said he mailed the petition this morning to Washington but did not expect it to be heard until the court reconvenes in October.

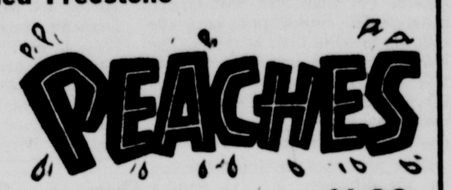

Only yesterday Chessman held a 30-minute "farewell" meeting with a Los Angeles divorcee he had hoped to marry and for whose children he had set up a $20,000 trust fund out of proceeds from his book.

In his death cell, Chessman at first appeared incredulous when informed of the latest development.

"No kidding?" he questioned when told by Warden Harley O. Teets.

The pathologists reported that: "Montgomery Ward Thorne came to his death as the result of extensive bilaterial acute bronchopneumonia, complicated by aspirated stomach contents (vomitus)."

The latter clause, in layman's language, meant that Thorne had vomited food and inhaled some of it.

Among those who spoke of doubts was Mrs. Aleen Ragen. She and her daughter Maureen, 18, young Thorne's fiancee, were with Thorne the night before he was found dead in bed.

"This was not a natural death," Mrs. Ragen told newsmen at the end of the coroner's inquest session. "He was singing the last time I saw him."

Dr. Jerry Kearns, coroner's pathologist and a member of the four-man panel, told the jury of their findings.

Jay Stough, attorney for the Ragens, asked Dr. Kearns if bacteria could have been deliberately given to Thorne. Dr. Kearns replied that "pneumonia was not induced." Stough then asserted:

"We accept the pneumonia as a fact, but we are trying to find out how he caught it. The report is not square with the facts.

"I question the report because he was not sick before. Even if he died of pneumonia, it does not rule out foul play."

Dr. Harry Leon, coroner's physician who performed an earlier post-mortem examination, said he still felt death might have been caused by "undue means." He did not elaborate.

The first report attributed death to a mixture of drugs and alcohol, possibly administered by another person.

Coroner Walter E. McCarron then appointed the four pathologists—specialists in making deductions from a study of body organs, tissues and fluids—to make an investigation. The body was exhumed July 13.

Dr. Kearns testified that puncture marks on Thorne's arms resembled those made in giving blood. Thorne was a blood donor on at least two occasions.

Possible Uranium Strike Is Reported

SALT LAKE CITY, July 29 (AP)—A Salt Lake City insurance salesman said today that he and two other Salt Lake businessmen have made what may be a promising uranium strike in the gas hills area of Wyoming's Fremont county.

Vern Hughes said he and his partners—motel operators Earl Allgood and John Armstrong—have received a preliminary opinion from a Bureau of Mines minerologist that their samples may contain one of two "young" uranium minerals which are low in radioactivity and high in chemical assay.

Israeli Plane Falls On Building, Killing 13

TEL AVIV, Israel, July 29 (AP)—Thirteen or more Israeli civilians were killed and 25 injured today when a small plane flying in a commemoration ceremony for World War II Jewish parachutists crashed in flames on a building at Maagan, in Galilee.

Premier Moshe Sharett and other officials were present at the unveiling of a monument but were unhurt, eyewitness reports said.

The plane crashed onto a building filled with spectators.

Sheppard Case 'Not In Condition' For Grand Jury

CLEVELAND, July 29 (AP)—The decision on whether to make an arrest in the Sheppard murder case was handed back, at least for the time being, to suburban Bay Village authorities today.

After a 2½-hour conference of top county law enforcement officials, Prosecutor Frank T. Cullitan said: "The case is not in condition to be taken to the grand jury at this time."

Dr. Samuel Sheppard has been questioned extensively in the death of his 31-year-old pregnant wife, Marilyn, who was beaten to death in her bed July 4. He said he had no comment when informed the law officials were meeting at Cullitan's office.

Cullitan said he had no "right, duty or authority" to step into a murder unless police failed to take warranted action. He said he would not step in now.

Some two hours of the conference in his office was devoted, he said, to "going over evidence for the benefit of Bay Village police" and the decision was left then to them.

Richard Weygandt, solicitor for the lakefront suburb, said he had complete authority on future action and would review evidence. He gave no indication on when or whether an arrest would be made.

Cleveland police, who complained they were called in after the trail grew cold, said they will continue investigating.

Dr. Sheppard, a 30-year-old osteopath, told a coroner's inquest he was sleeping on a downstairs couch the night of the killing. He testified he ran upstairs after hearing a call for help and was knocked out twice in fights with an intruder.

Yachts, Honeymoons Not Business Expense

WASHINGTON, July 29 (AP) — Internal Revenue Commissioner T. Coleman Andrews reported today the government is getting tougher with taxpayers who deduct such items as yachts and honeymoons as business expenses in figuring income taxes.

Andrews told a House Ways and Means subcommittee about recent unsuccessful efforts to evade taxes by charging to "business expense" a society debut, weddings, jewelry and even the funeral expense of a taxpayer's mother.

"You would think businessmen would know better," Andrews said, and added:

2,000-Year-Old Man Wins Prize

AARHUS, Denmark, July 29 (AP)—Aarhus' annual city festival prize went to a 2,000-year-old man today.

Amid fanfares from ancient trumpets, Lord Mayor Unmack Larsen, announced the prize of $150 had been awarded the "Grauballe man" for "outstanding services to his city."

The almost perfectly preserved body was unearthed from a Danish peat bog in April 1952. The man was believed to have been hanged as a sacrifice to a goddess of fertility 2,000 years ago.

Yugoslav Cleric Sent To Prison

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, July 29 (AP)—A Serbian Orthodox Church leader who has fought policies of Marshal Tito's independent Communist regime on religion was sentenced today to 11 years, 6 months in prison for alleged antistate activities.

Arsenijue Bradvarevic, 72-year-old metropolitan in Montenegro, one of Yugoslavia's six republics, was convicted at the end of a two-day trial. The sentence was telephoned here by district court clerk at Cetinje, Montenegran capital.

Yugoslav officials have maintained silence since Arsenije's arrest July 6. But religious sources here said the metropolitan was charged with leading a group of four priests in a conspiracy to overthrow the Tito government.

The four priests were arrested with the metropolitan, but two of them later were released, these sources declared.

As evidence of the anti-Tito conspiracy, the indictment was reported to have accused Arsenije and the priests of celebrating President Eisenhower's 1952 election by gathering to drink toasts of coffee.

The church sources said the indictment, in addition to conspiracy, included these charges:

Boulder Plunges Down Mine Shaft, Killing Two

SPRINGHILL, N.S., July 29 (AP)—A four-ton boulder thundered down a mine shaft like a cannonball today and smashed a cart carrying workers to the surface. Two men were killed and 14 injured.

One man was killed when the boulder struck the cart at the 4,400-foot level in the Cumberland Railway and Coal Co. mine. The other was crushed about 1,000 feet further down as the huge rock plummeted the length of the shaft.

Kidnaper-Rapist, Author Granted Stay Of Execution

SAN FRANCISCO, July 29 (AP)—Kidnaper-rapist Caryl Chessman, author of the widely read book, "Cell 2455, Death Row," won an indefinite stay of execution today less than 24 hours before he was to have died in the state gas chamber.

Chessman, convicted as a lovers' lane terrorist in Los Angeles whose assaults sent one girl victim to a mental institution, already had left plans for his cremation and resigned himself to die at 10 a.m. (PDT) tomorrow.

State Supreme Court Justice Jesse W. Carter granted the stay shortly after word came from Los Angeles that Gov. Goodwin J. Knight had turned down a final appeal.

In Los Angeles Gov. Knight said "no comment" when advised of Carter's action.

Justice Carter said the execution would be stayed until the United States Supreme Court had opportunity to rule on a petition for a writ of review.

The heart of this petition by the 32-year-old Chessman—occupant of death row for six years—was that the trial transcript was in error, having been made from the notes of a court reporter who died before he could finish 1,200 pages.

Chessman's attorney, Berwyn Rice, said he mailed the petition this morning to Washington but did not expect it to be heard until the court reconvenes in October.

Only yesterday Chessman held a 30-minute "farewell" meeting with a Los Angeles divorcee he had hoped to marry and for whose children he had set up a $20,000 trust fund out of proceeds from his book.

In his death cell, Chessman at first appeared incredulous when informed of the latest development.

"No kidding?" he questioned when told by Warden Harley O. Teets.

Ex-Premier Now In China Urges Thai Revolution

TOKYO, Friday, July 30 (AP) — A former premier of Thailand, who is expected to head a Communist "Free Thai" movement from his refuge in Red China, today called for the overthrow of the Thai government.

Pridi Phanaomyong emerged from the obscurity into which he faded in 1947 after fleeing Thailand and wrote an article for Peoples Daily, the official voice of the Chinese Community party.

As broadcast by Peiping radio, he urged the people of Thailand "to wage a struggle against their rulers—American imperialism and it's puppets, the government of Thailand."

The fact that Peiping saw fit to mention Pridi for the first time and gave him prominent billing may mean that the Communist "Free Thai" movement may not be far off. There has been speculation that with northern Viet Nam swallowed, next door Thailand is next on the Communist timetable.

Peiping introduced Pridi as "the former Thai premier who is now in China." He variously has been reported as in Shanghai or in the border region opposite Thailand's northern frontiers.

Pridi wrote in Peoples Daily that only by a struggle by the Thai people "can the obstacles standing in the way of peace, independence and self-determination of the Thai people be removed."

Pilots To Go Ahead With Airline Strike

CHICAGO, July 29 (AP)—The AFL Airline Pilots Assn. said today it will go ahead with its strike against American Airlines one minute before midnight Friday.

Clarence N. Sayen, ALPA president, said all of American's more than 1,200 pilots have been alerted to leave their jobs at that hour.

"The National Mediation Board has relinquished jurisdiction of the dispute and in accordance with our recourse under the Railway Labor Act, the strike time has been reinstated," Sayen said.

The dispute involves the union's objection to American's scheduling continuous flight time of more than eight hours in any 24.

Woman Who Stabbed Priest Mentally Ill

SAN FRANCISCO, July 29 (AP)—The woman who stabbed a priest Monday while he was saying mass at the altar of St. Gabriel's church today was ordered committed to a state mental hospital.

The priest, Father Bernard Cronin, is recovering from a 2½-inch-deep knife wound in the back of his neck.

Superior Judge Orla St. Clair ordered Josephine Avanzino, 37, committed to Mendocino State Hospital. Earlier her mother had filed a mental illness petition.

Confesses To Murder

Youth Who Boasted To Girl Of "Perfect Crime" Seized

BROOKLINE, Mass., July 29 (AP)—A bragging story to a girl friend about a "perfect crime" led to the arrest today of an 18-year-old prep school student on a charge of murder.

Police said Ronald Blumenthal confessed—after brief questioning—that he killed Mrs. Ora Schonarth, 52, a four-times wed, red-haired divorcee.

She was found dead in her apartment, throttled by a pair of men's shorts, her head battered by a rolling pin and a kitchen knife thrust into her heart.

Young Blumenthal was hauled out of bed at his home in the early morning hours when police followed up a tip from the father of an unidentified girl that Blumenthal had described details of the slaying the night before the body was found.

Within a few hours after his arrest, young Blumenthal's confession was announced and he was arraigned in District Court on a charge of murder. The case was continued for hearing Aug. 5 after the youth entered the mandatory plea of innocent.

Mrs. Schonarth, a former dress shop owner, was killed Tuesday in midafternoon, police said, but her body wasn't found until the next morning.

But, police said, on Tuesday night young Blumenthal, a 200-pound six-footer, told a girl friend about a "perfect crime" in which a rolling pin, a knife and strangulation were involved.

When the girl read details of the Schonarth death in the newspapers Wednesday, she told her father about the story, police said. He relayed the information to the investigators.

President Honors Heroic French Nurse

WASHINGTON, July 29 (AP) — President Eisenhower today conferred the Medal of Freedom with bronze palm upon the French flight nurse who tended the wounded through the fall of Dien Bien Phu.

The nurse, Genevieve de Galard-Terraube, thanked the President in a barely audible voice and said she accepted the great honor on behalf of those who fought in the Indochina fortress.

The presentation took place on the White House steps in the rose garden with Miss De Galard standing between the President and Mrs. Eisenhower.

Prison Hunger Strike Will End

WALLA WALLA, Wash., July 29 (AP)—Nearly 1,500 Washington State Prison inmates agreed to end a three-day hunger and sitdown strike today.

An agreement to terminate the strike was handed through the gate of the administration building by representatives of a 58-member inmate committee.

Lawrence Delmore Jr., associate warden, said officials would start feeding the prisoners as soon as food could be prepared, but that this would take several hours.

The inmates' committee released a statement after a meeting with Fred Dickson, state supervisor of institutions.

It said that inasmuch as Dickson told the committee he intends to put in a program along the lines now in effect in California prisons and any employe who does not go along with the program will be replaced, the committee representing various wings in the prison agreed to end the sitdown and hunger strike immediately.

Ruling On Two Mahoney Suits In Primary Battle Due Today

CENTREVILLE, Md., July 29 (AP)—A climactic round is due here Friday in George P. Mahoney's long fight to upset the outcome of the June 28 primary and wrest the Democratic nomination for governor from Dr. H. C. Byrd.

Judge William R. Horney has promised to give his decision on two suits by which Mahoney seeks to change the result of the primary voting in Queen Annes and Talbot Counties.

An appeal of his decision is likely to be taken to the Court of Appeals in Annapolis, with some promise of a decision there next Monday.

Mahoney has indicated this will end his month-long battle of recounts and court tests.

Unless there is a hitch along the way, the Democratic State Convention probably will go back into session next Wednesday to go through the formality of ratifying the primary and nominating its candidates for state-wide offices.

The convention met last Monday but recessed without taking action because of the pending court cases.

The question before Judge Horney is whether he should order the boards of election supervisors to invalidate about 550 ballots in Queen Annes and 220 in Talbot.

Mahoney pleaded the ballots were improperly marked or defaced and accused the election supervisors of "arbitrarily and capriciously" deciding to tally them anyway when they recounted the ballot boxes.

If all the challenged ballots were thrown out, Mahoney would win both counties and the election.

He needs favorable decisions in both counties however.

Byrd won 80 county unit nominating votes and Mahoney 72 in the primary. A switch of Talbot's four units and the three in Queen Annes would give Mahoney a 79-73 edge. Talbot's four alone would make it a 76-76 tie, with the nomination going to Byrd because he had a 4,000 margin in the statewide popular vote.

When the state convention reconvenes it faces a possible fight over the chairmanship of the Democratic State Central Committee.

C. William Hetzer of Hagerstown, currently the chairman, is a candidate for re-election, and E. Brooke Lee, veteran Montgomery County party leader and campaign manager for Byrd, has announced he wants the job.

Baltimore Traffic Switch Deferred

BALTIMORE, July 29 (AP) — The reversal of traffic on four of Baltimore's major one-way streets, scheduled for 2 a.m. Sunday, was put off today.

No one knew for how long.

The hitch was blamed on failure of the Baltimore Transit Co. to install new switches so two of its street car lines could reverse their direction around a loop in the downtown shopping section.

Maryland's Public Service Commission ordered the transit company to go ahead and make the necessary changes.

The transit firm said it would not because it has a case pending in court which will determine whether it or the city is to pay the $30,000 it will cost to install the new switches.

Henry Barnes, Baltimore's nationally famous traffic engineer, prescribed the reversal of traffic on Charles, Lexington, Saratoga, and Cathedral-Maryland Avenue.

He installed the first phase of his scheme to weeks ago by reversing the traffic on St. Paul and Calvert. That left Charles and St. Paul, parallel and only a block apart, both carrying southbound traffic. The second reversal would straighten this out, with traffic on alternate streets moving in opposite directions.

Publisher Named

BALTIMORE, July 29 (AP)—Talbot T. Speer, Baltimore businessman and publisher of several Maryland newspapers, has been named chairman of the 21-man Maryland advisory board to the Western Tax Council Inc.

The Council is campaigning for a constitutional amendment which would limit Federal taxes on incomes, inheritances and gifts to 25 per cent.

Fairchild Sells Plant To Republic

NEW YORK, July 29 (AP)—Fairchild Engine & Aircraft Corp. today announced sale of a 424,000-square-foot plant at Farmingdale, N. Y., to a neighboring aircraft builder, Republic Aviation Corp. Fairchild said it will build a new plant in the same general area.

The sale price was not disclosed. Fairchild officials said the Farmingdale building was too close to Republic's main plant and created a traffic problem.

While the site of the new Fairchild plant was not announced, company spokesmen said it will definitely be located in Suffolk County. The move will not affect the status of two other Fairchild plants in Nassau County, they explained.

Would-Be Rapist Ruled Mentally Incompetent

BALTIMORE, July 29 (AP)—James H. Stokes, 39-year-old Washington Negro, was ordered to a mental hospital today after a hearing in Federal court on charges he attempted to rape an Army colonel's wife at Forest Glen, Md., June 22.

Judge Roszel C. Thompson heard the testimony of two psychiatrists and ruled Stokes was mentally incompetent at the time of the attack.

The victim lived at the Army laboratory at Forest Glen, an adjunct of Walter Reed Hospital in Washington, and Stokes was employed there as a janitor.

The woman was on the porch of her home, with her two young children, waiting for a bus. Their screams frightened Stokes off and he was arrested within an hour by Army investigators.

The government recommended Stokes be sent to St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Washington. He has previously been a patient in several mental institutions.

Two Brothers Die At Gun Factory Jobs

WASHINGTON, July 29 (AP)—Two brothers employed as sheet metal workers collapsed and died within an hour today at their jobs at the Naval Gun Factory.

They were Bernard A. Wissman, 51, Hyattsville, and his brother, Warren A. Wissman, 46, Washington. Each apparently died of heart disease, unaware of the other's condition.

A third brother, Alfred W. Wissman, Washington, also employed at the gun factory, was not at work today because of illness.

Seven Quizzed By Grand Jury In Hicks' Death

LA PLATA, Md., July 29 (AP)—Seven more witnesses, including a St. Mary's County slot machine operator, appeared today before the Charles County Grand Jury probing the mystery death of Lewis A. Hicks, disabled veteran.

Indications were that the jury would meet again tomorrow.

State's Atty. Robert T. Barbour would not say how long the investigation would run.

Among those appearing before the grand jurors today was Phil Gray, a slot machine operator from Lexington Park.

Others were Carl Schwerger, not identified further, and Edward Proctor of Pomfret. Also heard by the jurors were John Merkle, Mrs. Dorothy McAdams and Miss Shirley Fogel, all employes of a restaurant where Hicks and his wife had been expected to visit on their way home the night before he died.

Hicks died March 28 when his sedan crashed into the foundation of his own home on a curve six miles west of La Plata. His death first was listed as an ordinary automobile accident but relatives were not satisfied with the finding.

The body of the 34-year-old paraplegic was exhumed about a month later and closer examination of his wrecked car, equipped with special gadgets so he could drive it entirely with his hands, showed the throttle had been taped wide open.

The seventh witness today was Detective Sgt. G. E. Newcomer of the State Police who has appeared before. Newcomer is one of the special investigators who has worked on the case.

Home Owners, Kids Strike Up Good Deal

BALTIMORE, July 29 (AP)—Some home owners who like their sleep and some youngsters who don't care have struck up mutually beneficial deals.

The metropolitan area is currently in the grips of a water shortage and it is against the law to sprinkle lawns except between midnight and 7 a.m.

So the kids have been going from house to house offering to take care of the lawn sprinkling—for a fee, of course.

Prison Riot Quelled

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, July 29 (AP)—Advices today from San Miguel, capital of Tucuman Province in northern Argentina, said a prison riot there had been quelled with tear gas. Some of the prison's 423 prisoners were reported injured slightly.

Maryland Agents Raid Another Still

ANNAPOLIS, July 29 (AP)—Maryland's Alcoholic Tax Enforcement Unit announced today that another Southern Maryland still was knocked off this morning, but no arrests were made.

Agent Bernard Kalnoske, seriously stung by hornets or wild bees in a big raid near Leonardtown Monday, and three federal agents laid in wait all night in hopes that the still operators would show up. Then they moved in and confiscated the equipment.

The operation was off Oakly Road near Hurry in St. Marys County.

The agents concluded that the still "had been run out" since they found no whisky. The operation was a 150-gallon copper pot still. Two 75-gallon and four 50-gallon fermenter barrels and two 10-gallon condensers were seized.

Three men were arrested in the raid Monday.

Order By Lewis Ends Mine Tieup

WAYNESBURG, Pa., July 29 (AP)—Some 800 miners at the Nemacolin mine of Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. returned to work today under orders of United Mine Workers president John L. Lewis, ending a two-day strike.

The miners got Lewis' order from international board member Joseph Yablonski at a meeting of the UMW Nemacolin local last night.

The miners struck to protest what they called was a company violation of seniority rights among 90 miners being returned to work in place of a like number being furloughed.

The strike was the third since April growing from an original furlough of 239 miners. They ended a walkout last week after roving pickets struck 21 pits and idled about 15,000 men in the Greene-Fayete-Washington County area.

That walkout was ended on orders of Yablonski and an agreement that the company would replace 90 men already on furlough.

Lie Detector Clears Man In Wife's Death

BALTIMORE, July 29 (AP)—A lie detector was used for the first time today in Baltimore County and it cleared 49-year-old George W. Eller of suspicion in the death of his wife.

"Completely exonerated," declared State's Attorney John E. Raine Jr. "It was a tragic accident."

Eller was released from custody, without even a manslaughter charge being filed against him.

His wife, 37-year-old Myrtle Eller, was killed early Wednesday morning when Eller mistook her for a prowler at their home on the northeast edge of Baltimore.

Eller was held in custody more than 24 hours.

He said his wife awakened him and whispered she thought she heard a prowler in the kitchen. There had been similar trouble before. She had insisted Eller buy a .22 rifle and teach her to use it.

Eller got up and got the rifle. He thought his wife stayed in the bedroom.

He approached one door to the kitchen in the dark. Unknown to him, Mrs. Eller entered through another.

Eller said he saw something move toward him and the muzzle of the rifle touched something soft. "Who's there?" he asked. There was no answer. He fired.

Mrs. Eller died of a bullet wound in the stomach.

The husband volunteered to take the lie detector examination on the advice of his attorney, Risque W. Plummer. Plummer said he consented reluctantly but knew Eller had nothing to hide and wanted the shadow of suspicion lifted as quickly as possible.

Ruling On Two Mahoney Suits In Primary Battle Due Today

CENTREVILLE, Md., July 29 (AP)—A climactic round is due here Friday in George P. Mahoney's long fight to upset the outcome of the June 28 primary and wrest the Democratic nomination for governor from Dr. H. C. Byrd.

Judge William R. Horney has promised to give his decision on two suits by which Mahoney seeks to change the result of the primary voting in Queen Annes and Talbot Counties.

An appeal of his decision is likely to be taken to the Court of Appeals in Annapolis, with some promise of a decision there next Monday.

Talbot's four alone would make it a 76-76 tie, with the nomination going to Byrd because he had a 4,000 margin in the statewide popular vote.

When the state convention reconvenes it faces a possible fight over the chairmanship of the Democratic State Central Committee.

C. William Hetzer of Hagerstown, currently the chairman, is a candidate for re-election, and E. Brooke Lee, veteran Montgomery County party leader and campaign manager for Byrd, has announced he wants the job.

Baltimore Traffic Switch Deferred

BALTIMORE, July 29 (AP) — The reversal of traffic on four of Baltimore's major one-way streets, scheduled for 2 a.m. Sunday, was put off today.

No one knew for how long.

The hitch was blamed on failure of the Baltimore Transit Co. to install new switches so two of its street car lines could reverse their direction around a loop in the downtown shopping section.

Maryland's Public Service Commission ordered the transit company to go ahead and make the necessary changes.

The transit firm said it would not because it has a case pending in court which will determine whether it or the city is to pay the $30,000 it will cost to install the new switches.

Henry Barnes, Baltimore's nationally famous traffic engineer, prescribed the reversal of traffic on Charles, Lexington, Saratoga, and Cathedral-Maryland Avenue.

He installed the first phase of his scheme to weeks ago by reversing the traffic on St. Paul and Calvert. That left Charles and St. Paul, parallel and only a block apart, both carrying southbound traffic. The second reversal would straighten this out, with traffic on alternate streets moving in opposite directions.

Publisher Named

BALTIMORE, July 29 (AP)—Talbot T. Speer, Baltimore businessman and publisher of several Maryland newspapers, has been named chairman of the 21-man Maryland advisory board to the Western Tax Council Inc.

The Council is campaigning for a constitutional amendment which would limit Federal taxes on incomes, inheritances and gifts to 25 per cent.

Fairchild Sells Plant To Republic

NEW YORK, July 29 (AP)—Fairchild Engine & Aircraft Corp. today announced sale of a 424,000-square-foot plant at Farmingdale, N. Y., to a neighboring aircraft builder, Republic Aviation Corp. Fairchild said it will build a new plant in the same general area.

The sale price was not disclosed. Fairchild officials said the Farmingdale building was too close to Republic's main plant and created a traffic problem.

While the site of the new Fairchild plant was not announced, company spokesmen said it will definitely be located in Suffolk County. The move will not affect the status of two other Fairchild plants in Nassau County, they explained.

Would-Be Rapist Ruled Mentally Incompetent

BALTIMORE, July 29 (AP)—James H. Stokes, 39-year-old Washington Negro, was ordered to a mental hospital today after a hearing in Federal court on charges he attempted to rape an Army colonel's wife at Forest Glen, Md., June 22.

Judge Roszel C. Thompson heard the testimony of two psychiatrists and ruled Stokes was mentally incompetent at the time of the attack.

The victim lived at the Army laboratory at Forest Glen, an adjunct of Walter Reed Hospital in Washington, and Stokes was employed there as a janitor.

The woman was on the porch of her home, with her two young children, waiting for a bus. Their screams frightened Stokes off and he was arrested within an hour by Army investigators.

The government recommended Stokes be sent to St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Washington. He has previously been a patient in several mental institutions.

Two Brothers Die At Gun Factory Jobs

WASHINGTON, July 29 (AP)—Two brothers employed as sheet metal workers collapsed and died within an hour today at their jobs at the Naval Gun Factory.

They were Bernard A. Wissman, 51, Hyattsville, and his brother, Warren A. Wissman, 46, Washington. Each apparently died of heart disease, unaware of the other's condition.

A third brother, Alfred W. Wissman, Washington, also employed at the gun factory, was not at work today because of illness.

Seven Quizzed By Grand Jury In Hicks' Death

LA PLATA, Md., July 29 (AP)—Seven more witnesses, including a St. Mary's County slot machine operator, appeared today before the Charles County Grand Jury probing the mystery death of Lewis A. Hicks, disabled veteran.

Indications were that the jury would meet again tomorrow.

State's Atty. Robert T. Barbour would not say how long the investigation would run.

Among those appearing before the grand jurors today was Phil Gray, a slot machine operator from Lexington Park.

Others were Carl Schwerger, not identified further, and Edward Proctor of Pomfret. Also heard by the jurors were John Merkle, Mrs. Dorothy McAdams and Miss Shirley Fogel, all employes of a restaurant where Hicks and his wife had been expected to visit on their way home the night before he died.

Hicks died March 28 when his sedan crashed into the foundation of his own home on a curve six miles west of La Plata. His death first was listed as an ordinary automobile accident but relatives were not satisfied with the finding.

The body of the 34-year-old paraplegic was exhumed about a month later and closer examination of his wrecked car, equipped with special gadgets so he could drive it entirely with his hands, showed the throttle had been taped wide open.

The seventh witness today was Detective Sgt. G. E. Newcomer of the State Police who has appeared before. Newcomer is one of the special investigators who has worked on the case.

Home Owners, Kids Strike Up Good Deal

BALTIMORE, July 29 (AP)—Some home owners who like their sleep and some youngsters who don't care have struck up mutually beneficial deals.

The metropolitan area is currently in the grips of a water shortage and it is against the law to sprinkle lawns except between midnight and 7 a.m.

So the kids have been going from house to house offering to take care of the lawn sprinkling—for a fee, of course.

Prison Riot Quelled

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, July 29 (AP)—Advices today from San Miguel, capital of Tucuman Province in northern Argentina, said a prison riot there had been quelled with tear gas. Some of the prison's 423 prisoners were reported injured slightly.

Maryland Agents Raid Another Still

ANNAPOLIS, July 29 (AP)—Maryland's Alcoholic Tax Enforcement Unit announced today that another Southern Maryland still was knocked off this morning, but no arrests were made.

Agent Bernard Kalnoske, seriously stung by hornets or wild bees in a big raid near Leonardtown Monday, and three federal agents laid in wait all night in hopes that the still operators would show up. Then they moved in and confiscated the equipment.

The operation was off Oakly Road near Hurry in St. Marys County.

The agents concluded that the still "had been run out" since they found no whisky. The operation was a 150-gallon copper pot still. Two 75-gallon and four 50-gallon fermenter barrels and two 10-gallon condensers were seized.

Three men were arrested in the raid Monday.

Order By Lewis Ends Mine Tieup

WAYNESBURG, Pa., July 29 (AP)—Some 800 miners at the Nemacolin mine of Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. returned to work today under orders of United Mine Workers president John L. Lewis, ending a two-day strike.

The miners got Lewis' order from international board member Joseph Yablonski at a meeting of the UMW Nemacolin local last night.

The miners struck to protest what they called was a company violation of seniority rights among 90 miners being returned to work in place of a like number being furloughed.

The strike was the third since April growing from an original furlough of 239 miners. They ended a walkout last week after roving pickets struck 21 pits and idled about 15,000 men in the Greene-Fayete-Washington County area.

That walkout was ended on orders of Yablonski and an agreement that the company would replace 90 men already on furlough.

Lie Detector Clears Man In Wife's Death

BALTIMORE, July 29 (AP)—A lie detector was used for the first time today in Baltimore County and it cleared 49-year-old George W. Eller of suspicion in the death of his wife.

"Completely exonerated," declared State's Attorney John E. Raine Jr. "It was a tragic accident."

Eller was released from custody, without even a manslaughter charge being filed against him.

His wife, 37-year-old Myrtle Eller, was killed early Wednesday morning when Eller mistook her for a prowler at their home on the northeast edge of Baltimore.

Eller was held in custody more than 24 hours.

He said his wife awakened him and whispered she thought she heard a prowler in the kitchen. There had been similar trouble before. She had insisted Eller buy a .22 rifle and teach her to use it.

Eller got up and got the rifle. He thought his wife stayed in the bedroom.

He approached one door to the kitchen in the dark. Unknown to him, Mrs. Eller entered through another.

Eller said he saw something move toward him and the muzzle of the rifle touched something soft. "Who's there?" he asked. There was no answer. He fired.

Mrs. Eller died of a bullet wound in the stomach.

The husband volunteered to take the lie detector examination on the advice of his attorney, Risque W. Plummer. Plummer said he consented reluctantly but knew Eller had nothing to hide and wanted the shadow of suspicion lifted as quickly as possible.

An expert from the Delaware State Police administered the test and sulppied equipment.

Scientist Reports Evidence Virus Cause Of Breast Cancer In Mice

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Reporter

SAO PAULO, Brazil, July 29 (AP)—A British scientist reported today double - barreled evidence that virus could be a cause of breast cancer in mice. He disclosed plans to search for a similar agent in human beings.

The evidence is the finding of strange particles in cancer cells which structurally resemble viruses. The other evidence is the fact that when an extract of cells containing these particles is injected into other mice, they get cancers.

Cancers arising from the extract injection soon will be examined to see if they contain the same particles as are found in cancers from which the extract is made. If so, that would be just about a clincher.

This new research was described to the sixth International Cancer Congress here by Dr. Leon Dmochowski of Leeds, England, who has been working for the last year at Columbia University Medical School in New York.

The particles involved are so tiny that 500,000 in a row would equal one inch. They can be seen under a powerful electronic microscope.

Dmochowski finds them in cancers in a strain of mice which are known to transmit the "milk factor." The milk factor is believed by many to be a virus passed from the mother to a nursing daughter for generations.

But Dmochowski also finds strange particles in breast cancers sometimes in strains of mice which are thought not to carry the milk factor. The fact that extracts of cancer cells cause cancers in mice not of the milk factor strain is powerful evidence the particles can stimulate the start of cancers.

Other scientists have seen under the microscope a tiny particle separated out of mouse milk. This has an inner structure. So does the particle which Dmochowski finds in actual cancer cells.

He finds evidence the round little core of the particle could be the real cancer-causing agent. Until clincher experiments are completed, Dmochowski says he will not call the particle either a virus or a milk factor agent.

A microscopic study of breast cancers in women is planned soon to see if a virus or similar agent can be the cause of such cancers.

Dr. Tomizo Yoshida of Tokyo described a new Japanese drug bringing encouraging results in some human cancers, especially cancer of the ovaries in women. The drug, trade - named Nitromin, was developed from nitrogen mustard, which is a war-time poison gas. Yoshida said that of 11 women with terminal cases of ovarian cancer, some are almost completely healthy at the moment. The drug also helped a few persons with cancer of the stomach and brain. It has been in use for only a year.

Prisoner Has Doubts Of "Friend In Need"

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., July 29 (AP)—A prisoner in the Berrien County jail, named John, has his doubts about just what "a friend in need" is.

Sheriff Erwin H. Kubath said his prisoner received a letter from a supposed pal in Kansas City, which read in part:

"Dear John,

"Thank you for your kind letter of July 17, advising me that you are in jail and asking me to send you $8 to help get a lawyer.

"If you have to be in jail, you've picked about as nice a spot as there is in the country. It's been so hot here, perhaps your trouble has been a blessing in disguise, and if I were you, I wouldn't come back until fall.

"Hoping your stay is a pleasant one and that your trouble is not too serious.

Bill."

John's trouble was petty larceny and Bill's "help" was enclosed—$2.

Health Research Set By Tobacco Industry

NEW YORK, July 29 (AP) — The Tobacco Industry Research Committee, formed this year to explore the relationship between tobacco use and health, announced a threefold program today.

Dr. Clarence Cook Little, scientific director of the committee, issued a statement saying it would provide funds for research on:

"1. Study of the physical and chemical composition of tobacco and accompanying products.

"2. Study of tissue changes in humans and in animals under various conditions.

"3. Study of smoking and other tobacco habits and of the emotional and physical make-up of smokers."

Declaring research to date had not established any single cause of cancer, Little cautioned against expecting "too many results too soon."

How Did VPI Flag Get Atop Stack?

HAMPTON, Va., July 29 (AP)—Officials of the Virginia Electric and Power Co. plant here were baffled yesterday over the appearance of a college flag atop the plant's 215-foot smokestack, a location they termed "practically inaccessible."

The flag, bearing the letters "VPI," was spotted through binoculars tied securely to a lightning rod atop the stack, a spot expert repairmen can reach only with scaffolding. It wasn't there Tuesday.

Company spokesmen said a permanent ladder up the stack begins 10 feet above the ground and can be reached only with the aid of another ladder. The ladder ends below the top of the stack—not to mention the intervening six feet to the top of the lightning rod.

Officials said the "VPI" on the cloth flag measuring about 2½ by 3 or 4 feet apparently referred to Virginia Polytechnic Institute at Blacksburg, Va.

Both Sides Delighted, Especially Excavator

MINEOLA, N.Y., July 29 (AP) — It all depends on how you look at things.

The Nassau County Board of Supervisors asked bids on a sump at Levittown — a big hole in the ground where runoff water is collected and returned to the soil. The board was ready to go as high as $25,000.

But the board was agreeably delighted when Al Davis offered to excavate the 50,000 yards of earth for one cent. He got the contract. Then, naturally, he was asked how come such a low bid. Replied Davis:

"Where else can a guy get 50,000 yards of high grade soil, sand and gravel for a penny?"

Site Of Mrs. O'Leary's Barn May Be Sold

CHICAGO, July 29 (AP)—The site of widow O'Leary's cottage on Dekoven St. where the Chicago fire of 1871 is believed to have started may be used for a factory.

An ordinance to sell the property, now owned by the city, for $6,500 was approved by the City Council yesterday.

The fire which raged for three days destroyed the heart of Chicago with an estimated loss of 196 million dollars. It is supposed to have been started in Mrs. O'Leary's barn by a cow kicking over a lantern.

The city bought the property in 1928 and announced that a small park would be built, but the park never materialized.

Nationwide Church Appeal Is Organized By Publisher

STRASBURG, Va. (AP) — For 10 years, E. E. Keister has been using newspaper ads to urge people to go to church. He reports the go-to-church pleas are now running in 900 newspapers in the United States and Canada. He and his staff have turned out more than 450 of them since August, 1944

They are all built around the same formula—an arresting picture, and a message driven home in a few words.

Maybe it is a big picture of a little boy standing in his daddy's shoes.

"Imitation is one of the basic impulses of human life," says the message below. It points out that children learn to walk in their parent's footsteps.

"This makes it all-important for people to walk uprightly before their children, and lead them in ways of strength and safety." There follows a strong appeal to daddy to take junior to church.

"You can see a soul through your own child's eyes. But unless you give that soul a chance to grow up with the body and mind that possesses it . . . soon you'll no longer see it in your child's eyes . . . and perhaps, someday, you will no longer see it in his life," the message says.

Keister produces many himself, but there are a dozen or more contributing editors and a staff of eight help with the copy.

In most instances, the pleas are sponsored by merchants and placed in their local newspapers.

Keister, the superintendent of a Lutheran Sunday School, is himself a newspaper publisher. He combined five weekly papers to create the Northern Virginia Daily, published in a town of 2,200—one of the smallest in the United States to have a daily paper. The circulation is 8,000.

Light In Layer Of Undersea Life Is Finally Measured

LA JOLLA, Calif., July 29 (AP)—First measurement of light in the great layer of undersea life, which Navy men used to call the oceans' false bottom, was reported here yesterday.

To the human eye, it is practically no light at all—three ten-thousandths of a candle's glow at a foot distance, or the gleam of a 100-watt electric bulb half a mile away.

But for the teeming life in the mysterious deep-scattering layer it apparently is just right.

The measurement and evidence that the layer follows that faint glow were reported by Drs. Brian P. and Elizabeth K. Boden, husband-wife scientists at the University of California's Scripps Institution of Oceanography here.

The layer was discovered during World War II when it reflected traces of sound pulses sent out by Navy ship bottom sounding devices. Then it was found the layer, apparently responding to light changes, rose almost to the surface by night and fell to the depths by day.

The Bodens compared soundings of the layer with the depths, throughout a daylight period, at which a photometer (a sort of light meter) maintained the dim measure first recorded inside the layer.

Readings were nearly identical. This was evidence to the scientists that the layer goes up and down with sea shadow on the verge of total darkness.

The scattering layer is known to contain countless tiny creatures and possibly many larger ones feeding on them. The scientists think it may be a vast potential human food source.

Visiting Duke Gets Into Swim In Canada

OTTAWA, July 29 (AP)—The visiting Duke of Edinburgh got right into the swim in Canada today.

He doffed the natty uniform of a marshal in the Royal Air Force in which he arrived this hot and humid day for a three-week sightseeing tour, popped into bathing trunks and then into the pool at the Swan Country Club on the northwest outskirts of Ottawaa.

The duke has said he prefers to see rather than be seen on this trip, but there wasn't much informal about the reception for the husband of Queen Elizabeth.

There was a Royal Canadian Air Force guard of honor, a brass band, 21-gun royal salute and dignitaries in top hats and cutaways.

"We are delighted to welcome you back to Canada," said Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent, shaking hands warmly with the duke on the latter's arrival.

"Thank you very much; it's a pleasure to be here," said the duke, flashing his grin.

Dior Flattens Feminine Curves In 'H-Line'

PARIS, July 29 (AP)—Fashion designer Christian Dior, who popularized the postwar "new look" set out today to do it again with a fall and winter line that denies feminine curves are where they used to be.

Dior's mannequins appeared as if they were ready for a big night back in the Roaring '20s. They had flattened busts, waistlines where you might expect hips and hardly a natural curve in the house.

If Dior's ideas win acceptance—and he drew loud applause at the showings—it will be pretty trying for women who lack the sleek figures of Dior's models.

He calls it his "H-line" because that is what the new form is supposed to resemble. It also might indicate "hips," because that is where the emphasis is. The few belts that appeared on the costumes were draped consistently at the hips.

Dior appears to have disregarded last year's unsuccessful attempt by former fashion empress Coco Chanel to stage a comeback with similar beanlike figures. His styles—flat, boyish, slender, elongated and long-waisted—go even farther.

"The line," as fashion experts quickly dubbed it, looks less startling and more wearable in full flaring cocktail and dinner dresses.

One reassuring part of the changing fashion scene is the decision by Dior and other designers not to tinker with skirt lengths. They figure 17 inches from the floor is about right for hemlines.

Dior's salon was packed as he unveiled his creations in a press showing and for the scads of buyers in town.

His first five or six creations failed to surprise the critical audience. But "the line" began slowly to appear and set the house buzzing.

Everywhere in the collections, coats, full-skirted cocktail dresses, dinner and evening gowns and daytime ensembles, tapered, spindle-like flat look was in evidence.

Jackets fell from narrow sloping shoulders to the hips or below. Long bodices were emphasized by five or six rows of double-breasted buttons.

Blouses and the tops of two-piece dresses looked for all the world like the old-fashioned middie blouse without the sailor collar.

A typical Dior ensemble features a three-quarter length coat, double breasted and close fitting with no waistline. Beneath the coat is a straight, flat pullover, reminiscent of old tunic dresses, which ends at the skirt just below the hip line.

Italy is about the size of the state of New Mexico.

Nationwide Church Appeal Is Organized By Publisher

STRASBURG, Va. (AP) — For 10 years, E. E. Keister has been using newspaper ads to urge people to go to church. He reports the go-to-church pleas are now running in 900 newspapers in the United States and Canada. He and his staff have turned out more than 450 of them since August, 1944

They are all built around the same formula—an arresting picture, and a message driven home in a few words.

Maybe it is a big picture of a little boy standing in his daddy's shoes.

"Imitation is one of the basic impulses of human life," says the message below. It points out that children learn to walk in their parent's footsteps.

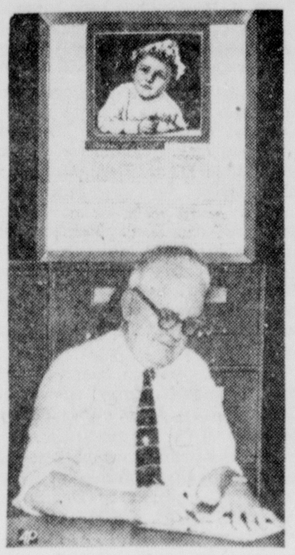

"This makes it all-important for people to walk uprightly before their children, and lead them in ways of strength and safety." There follows a strong appeal to daddy to take junior to church.

"You can see a soul through your own child's eyes. But unless you give that soul a chance to grow up with the body and mind that possesses it . . . soon you'll no longer see it in your child's eyes . . . and perhaps, someday, you will no longer see it in his life," the message says.

Keister produces many himself, but there are a dozen or more contributing editors and a staff of eight help with the copy.

In most instances, the pleas are sponsored by merchants and placed in their local newspapers.

Keister, the superintendent of a Lutheran Sunday School, is himself a newspaper publisher. He combined five weekly papers to create the Northern Virginia Daily, published in a town of 2,200—one of the smallest in the United States to have a daily paper. The circulation is 8,000.

BY VIVIAN BROWN

Looking for your first job?

After vacation when the graduation diploma has been framed, the serious business of embarking on a career captures the attention of most ex-students.

Grooming plays a big part in the impression you make on a would-be employer. Sometimes even after a job is snared, a competent employe may be fired because of sloppy dress or a biddy-girl make-up.

Take out your grooming insurance now. Pay faithful attention to every little detail of cleanliness and beauty, some facets of which you may have ignored before. Here are some suggestions that may be used as a pre-check on that job hunt:

1. Do you brush your hair every morning and night and shampoo it as frequently as it needs? Is your hairdo attractive and appropriate for business?

2. Are your hands and fingernails clean? Do you avoid the use of extreme shades of nail polish, and remove chipped polish at once?

3. Are your eyebrows shaped and not too extreme? Do you avoid the use of a heavy eyebrow pencil during the day? Ditto mascara?

4. Are your teeth well brushed? Do you have them cleaned professionally when they need it?

5. Does your neck get as much attention as your face? Are your hands and fingernails clean?

6. Do you keep blouses, vestees, collars and cuffs fresh and neat? Is your suit or dress well pressed and free from spots?

7. Are stockings fastened so that they do not wrinkle at the ankles? Are stocking seams straight? Do you wash stockings after each wearing?

8. Are your shoes appropriate for business wear? Do you keep them well polished with heels in good repair?

9. Do you apply your makeup carefully, avoiding the overuse of rouge, powder, lipstick?

10. Do you avoid wearing flashy costume jewelry and attend to missing buttons, ripped seams and falling hems at once?

Today's American Missionaries Go Abroad As Partners Of Other Peoples, Not Superiors

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

NEW YORK, July 29 (AP)—American Christian missionaries today are a far cry from the "great white fathers" of past years.

"The approach is different," said Miss Hazel Anderson, a leading expert on the subject. "Missionaries nowadays see themselves as partners of other peoples, not as superiors or self-righteous crusaders."

In fact, some of them even shun the name "missionary," using instead terms like "fraternal worker" or "coworker."

One factor that has produced this trend is that Christian churches now are going concerns in nearly every part of the world. They are often young, struggling minority institutions—but the roots and framework are there.

"The dream and prayer of the years—that there would be a church around the world that could stand on its own feet with its own leadership—has slowly been realized," Miss Anderson said.

Miss Anderson, associate executive of the Foreign Missions Division of the National Council of Churches, said the mission task now was to "work side by side" with these new churches, aiding their own leaders.

The nearly 1,000 new Christian envoys who go overseas each year as staff replacements or additions are a finely schooled corps of specialists, with new and broader concepts of mission work.

The old-time idea of "converting heathens" by persuasion has given way to the idea of mutual understanding, of more respect for traditions of others, of implanting the Gospel by deed and example—not just words.

"It's mostly living as a Christian there," said Miss Anderson, a former missionary in Egypt. "When that is done, others want the good they see in someone else."

Among the new Christian agents who will deploy over the globe this year are 110 young men and women now getting their finishing training at a special course at Allegheny College, Meadville, Pa.

It's sort of a final brushing-up before they scatter to assignments abroad—in Arabia, Iran, Egypt, Uruguay, Korea, the Punjab, the Belgian Congo, Ethiopia, Burma, Nigeria and other far-off places.

Veteran missionaries, with long experience in the foreign field, are providing the advice and counsel in the six-week course, sponsored by the Foreign Missions Division. Some of the tips:

1. Leadership and direction in mission areas properly belongs to the national Christians. You are merely the helpmates.

2. Be as ready to learn, as you are to teach. You believe you have something to give. So do others. You stand as an example of the Christian faith, and only through its loving, unselfish spirit can you set others to leading better lives.

3. Don't mix in internal politics. You do not represent the West, or its government, although the people may assume you do until you dispel the idea. You are a guest.

4. It is helpful to be a jack-of-all-trades, with knowledge of agriculture, diet, and sometimes medicine, in order to make yourself more useful to others. (Most missionaries now also must have special skills.)

5. Learn the language. Immerse yourself in local history, culture and problems. Read the local papers, if there are any. You can't gain the confidence of people unless you know them and live as part of them.

6. Avoid the term "capitalism." It usually doesn't mean the same in other countries as it does in America.

7. Be an equal with the people, and a friend. But don't be afraid to establish cordial relations with white colonial rulers and settlers, because the indigenous people are glad to have a sympathetic intermediary.

8. Expect life to be tough for a while. You'll often find an unpleasant climate, isolation, without the escape valves of former friends and outside activities.

9. If you're a married couple, harmony with each other is important. If there is conflict, it won't be easy to convince nationals that Christianity can solve their domestic problems.

10. As a white man, you probably will be distrusted, at least at first. But if you're a genuine, true friend to all, they will come to knot it.

11. Your approach should be one of sharing, not only in services rendered, but the spirit in which they are performed. This should be neither patronizing nor self-seeking, but out of love for others.

12. Don't try to transplant facsimiles of American churches. You are not an extension of American churches, but a part of world Christianity. Church customs should be developed and followed as suits the people of each land. (For instance, Indians sit cross-legged on the floor when they pray, instead of kneeling.)

In the group, which next week winds up its training at Meadville are 35 married couples, 13 single men and 27 single women. They are doctors, soil experts, nurses, dieticians—most of them also ordained ministers of various denominations.

But denominationalism takes a back seat overseas—where fine points of doctrine are submerged in the interest of the central message—kindness, love, honesty forgiveness and humility before a divine creator.

McKeldin Names New Magistrate

ANNAPOLIS, July 29 (AP)—Gov. McKeldin yesterday named Mrs. George C. Murphy of Salisbury as magistrate to succeed Milton K. Larmore, who is a candidate for the House of Delegates from Wicomico County.

Mrs. Murphy became the third person named to fill vacancies in the state since the governor suggested that magistrates resign their posts if they are seeking elective offices.

Mrs. Murphy has been secretary in the Peoples Court for three years. She is a native of Snow Hill who has lived in Salisbury 35 years.

Angus Turnbull earlier was named to the vacancy created by the resignation of Melvin S. Sloan of Lonaconing, who is a Republican candidate for treasurer of Allegany County.

Robert E. Dammeyer of Annapolis was named to replace Douglas F. Lyons, Republican candidate for Anne Arundel County state's attorney.

Several more resignations of state's attorneys are expected since many were believed to be awaiting the results of the June 28 primary before resigning.

More than 700 species of mushrooms have been proved edible.

Boy With This Name Had To Write A Lot

DES MOINES, July 29 (AP)—Once upon a time, says Mrs. Burza Jones, clerk in the Iowa state Division of Vital Statistics, there lived in Iowa a boy by the name of:

Through Much Trial and Tribulation We Enter the Kingdom of Heaven Lindloff.

Mrs. Jones found the record of his birth on a routine check through the files.

Little Through Much Trial and Tribulation We Enter the Kingdom of Heaven was the seventh child of Frederick and Lizette Lindloff, who lived in Clinton County. He was born Aug. 31, 1880.

Top-of-Range Skillet Style Canned Meat

Skillet meals provide an attractive serving style for meats in cans. These meals-in-one-dish fit right into the statistic that about 90 per cent of our American cooking in done on top of the range.

Certainly skillets are in the limelight in housewares departments these days. You'll find electric ones, porcelain-covered iron ones that hold heat and are beautiful in design and color. Others have bright and shining and permanent finishes that make them easy to keep clean and a joy to behold. Even old-fashioned iron skillets are coming out of hiding to be hung on brick or panelled walls as part of the kitchen decor.

If you're purchasing a new skillet, choose a heavy one that will give insulation and one that is evenly balanced.

From Range To Table

Meats in cans prove their modernness in the modern skillet meal. Since the meats are already cooked, they only need to be heated to serving temperature. Then bring them in the skillet right from range to table and let your guests observe the bubbling goodness.

Canned chili con carne with beans and a top layer of tamales are ready to be served when heated. There are beef and lamb stews to fit the skillet picture; rim the stew with buttered toast triangles. Corned beef or roast beef hash are other selections.

There has been an increase in the amount of beef products canned in the last year. Of these, canned beef and gravy can also be given a skillet introduction to the table. For four servings, peel and slice 3 medium onions and cut 1 green pepper into strips. Saute in skillet in 3 tablespoons butter. Add 2 1-pound cans of beef and gravy; heat. Serve over rice, or spoon over potatoes or noodles.

Vienna Sausage Skillet Dinner

2 quarts shredded cabbage (1 large head)
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup water
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 4-ounce cans Vienna sausage

Put cabbage in a large skillet; add salt to water and pour over cabbage. Dot with butter. Place sausage on top of cabbage. Cover with a tight fitting lid. Cook over medium heat 15 minutes. Serve with prepared mustard seasoned with pickle relish. YIELD: 4 servings.

Canned deviled ham makes a nippy filling for French toast sandwiches via the skillet method.

Deviled Ham-French Toast Sandwiches

Spread canned deviled ham on slice of bread; top with second slice of bread. Dip sandwich in mixture of 1 egg, slightly beaten, and 3 tablespoons of milk. Brown on both sides in butter in skillet over low heat.

WIFE PRESERVERS

Cold-Pack Safe Method

Lima beans, snap beans, carrots, blackeye peas and summer squash, canned by the cold-pack method, hold more flavor and freshness than when canned by the precooked method.

The cold-packed method, tested by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, is both convenient and safe, says nutritionist Janet Goblentz, University of Maryland Extension Service. It saves jar heating and precooking and requires no longer time than the old precook method.

Process all vegetables, except tomatoes, in a pressure canner. That's to kill the deadly botulism bacteria that can form in low-acid vegetables. It's the only safe way to can low-acid vegetables, says Miss Coblentz.

Here are directions for cold-pack canning snap beans: Pack the raw beans tightly in jars to within one-half inch of the top. Cover with boiling water, leaving one-half inch of head space at the top of the jar. Add one-half teaspoon of salt to each pint, one teaspoon to quarts. Adjust the jar lids. Process in the pressure canner at 10 pounds pressure. Pint jars take 20 minutes, quarts, 25 minutes. If the containers are not the self-sealing type, complete the seal as soon as you remove the jars from the canner.

Use these processing times (at 10 pounds pressure), when you cold-pack the following vegetables: Lima beans—pints, 40 minutes; quarts, 50 minutes; blackeye peas—pints, 35 minutes; quarts, 40 minutes; carrots—pints, 25 minutes; quarts, 30 minutes. summer squash—pints, 25 minutes; quarts, 30 minutes.

If you would like more complete directions for pressure canning by the cold-pack method, ask your county home demonstration agent for a mimeographed publication, HE 489B (revised) — "Home Canning Vegetables". She can also give you a bulletin—"Home Canning of Fruits and Vegetables" (F&G No. 8)—which gives instructions for canning by the hot-pack method.

Top-of-Range Skillet Style Canned Meat

Skillet meals provide an attractive serving style for meats in cans. These meals-in-one-dish fit right into the statistic that about 90 per cent of our American cooking in done on top of the range.

Certainly skillets are in the limelight in housewares departments these days. You'll find electric ones, porcelain-covered iron ones that hold heat and are beautiful in design and color. Others have bright and shining and permanent finishes that make them easy to keep clean and a joy to behold. Even old-fashioned iron skillets are coming out of hiding to be hung on brick or panelled walls as part of the kitchen decor.

If you're purchasing a new skillet, choose a heavy one that will give insulation and one that is evenly balanced.

From Range To Table

Meats in cans prove their modernness in the modern skillet meal. Since the meats are already cooked, they only need to be heated to serving temperature. Then bring them in the skillet right from range to table and let your guests observe the bubbling goodness.

Canned chili con carne with beans and a top layer of tamales are ready to be served when heated. There are beef and lamb stews to fit the skillet picture; rim the stew with buttered toast triangles. Corned beef or roast beef hash are other selections.

There has been an increase in the amount of beef products canned in the last year. Of these, canned beef and gravy can also be given a skillet introduction to the table. For four servings, peel and slice 3 medium onions and cut 1 green pepper into strips. Saute in skillet in 3 tablespoons butter. Add 2 1-pound cans of beef and gravy; heat. Serve over rice, or spoon over potatoes or noodles.

Vienna Sausage Skillet Dinner

2 quarts shredded cabbage (1 large head)
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup water
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 4-ounce cans Vienna sausage

Put cabbage in a large skillet; add salt to water and pour over cabbage. Dot with butter. Place sausage on top of cabbage. Cover with a tight fitting lid. Cook over medium heat 15 minutes. Serve with prepared mustard seasoned with pickle relish. YIELD: 4 servings.

Canned deviled ham makes a nippy filling for French toast sandwiches via the skillet method.

Deviled Ham-French Toast Sandwiches

Spread canned deviled ham on slice of bread; top with second slice of bread. Dip sandwich in mixture of 1 egg, slightly beaten, and 3 tablespoons of milk. Brown on both sides in butter in skillet over low heat.

GRIN AND BEAR IT — By Lichty

"Your father's had the house to himself for a month . . . I haven't the courage to open the door . . ."

WIFE PRESERVERS

Cold-Pack Safe Method

Lima beans, snap beans, carrots, blackeye peas and summer squash, canned by the cold-pack method, hold more flavor and freshness than when canned by the precooked method.

The cold-packed method, tested by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, is both convenient and safe, says nutritionist Janet Goblentz, University of Maryland Extension Service. It saves jar heating and precooking and requires no longer time than the old precook method.

Process all vegetables, except tomatoes, in a pressure canner. That's to kill the deadly botulism bacteria that can form in low-acid vegetables. It's the only safe way to can low-acid vegetables, says Miss Coblentz.

Here are directions for cold-pack canning snap beans: Pack the raw beans tightly in jars to within one-half inch of the top. Cover with boiling water, leaving one-half inch of head space at the top of the jar. Add one-half teaspoon of salt to each pint, one teaspoon to quarts. Adjust the jar lids. Process in the pressure canner at 10 pounds pressure. Pint jars take 20 minutes, quarts, 25 minutes. If the containers are not the self-sealing type, complete the seal as soon as you remove the jars from the canner.

Use these processing times (at 10 pounds pressure), when you cold-pack the following vegetables: Lima beans—pints, 40 minutes; quarts, 50 minutes; blackeye peas—pints, 35 minutes; quarts, 40 minutes; carrots—pints, 25 minutes; quarts, 30 minutes. summer squash—pints, 25 minutes; quarts, 30 minutes.

If you would like more complete directions for pressure canning by the cold-pack method, ask your county home demonstration agent for a mimeographed publication, HE 489B (revised) — "Home Canning Vegetables". She can also give you a bulletin—"Home Canning of Fruits and Vegetables" (F&G No. 8)—which gives instructions for canning by the hot-pack method.

Paraffined Carton Protects Creamery Quality Of Butter

SANDWICHES, some 58 million of them, are assembled in America each day. Part of their enjoyment is the butter, creamery fresh from its paraffined carton, which gives moistness and additional flavor to the bread and filling combination. See recipes elsewhere on this page for butter spreads.

The phrase, "bread and butter" became part of the framework of the English language because these two foods are basic in the daily menu. Butter gives flavor to bread. It also has a flavor carrying factor that makes its use standard in sandwiches. Butter actually distributes the goodness of the filling throughout the sandwich.

Since butter is so delicate a spread, it must be protected from air, light, the hazards of shipment and from stronger flavored foods near it. It will stay creamery-fresh if packaged in parchment or foil plus a paraffined carton. Unless used immediately at home, butter should be kept in the carton to guard against more dominant flavored foods in the home refrigerator.

Here are some butter spreads to vary tea sandwiches. Flavor-sweet butter is highlighted with watercress; with horseradish and pimiento, and with deviled ham. There's also a filling for a lunchbox or picnic sandwich, and a luncheon main course sandwich.

Ham Sandwich Spread

1 cup ground cooked ham; 4 tablespoons chopped pickle; 2 tablespoons chopped stuffed olives; 1 teaspoon finely chopped parsley; 1 teaspoon minced onion; 1 tablespoon prepared mustard.

Mix together all ingredients. Use as sandwich spread. YIELD: 4 sandwiches.

Open Faced Luncheon Sandwich

4 slices bread or toast; 1 cup chopped chicken, flaked or canned crabmeat, salmon or tuna fish; 1 hard cooked egg, chopped; 2 tablespoons chopped green pepper; ¼ cup finely diced celery; 1 teaspoon prepared mustard; ¼ cup mayonnaise.

Spread bread or toast with butter. Mix together chicken or fish, egg, green pepper and celery. Combine mustard and mayonnaise; stir into mixed ingredients. Pile on top of bread slices. Garnish with sliced stuffed olives. YIELD: 4 servings.

Flavored Butter Spreads

(Enough for 40 canapes or tea sandwiches).

1. Soften ½ cup butter. Add ½ cup finely chopped watercress and 1 tablespoon chopped parsley, 1 teaspoon lemon juice and ½ teaspoon minced onion. Mix well.
2. Soften ½ cup butter. Add 2 tablespoons horseradish and 3 tablespoons minced pimiento. Mix well.
3. Soften ½ cup butter. Add 1 small can deviled ham, 1 teaspoon prepared mustard and ⅛ teaspoon hot sauce. Mix well.

Sweetpotato Custard

¼ cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
1¾ cups milk
2 eggs, beaten
2½ cups finely shredded raw sweetpotato (shred just before using)
1 tablespoon melted butter or margarine

Add sugar, salt, nutmeg, orange rind, and milk to the eggs. Mix thoroughly. Add sweetpotato and butter or margarine. Bake in greased custard cups in a pan of hot water in a moderate oven (350° F.) about 30 minutes or until set.

6 servings. Over ¼ cup milk per serving.

Sweetpotato Custard Pie. Pour custard into 9-inch unbaked pastry shell and bake in a hot oven (425° F.), for 10 minutes; reduce temperature to 350°, and continue baking for 30 minutes longer.

Smoked Tongue In A Can Handy For Tasty Rarebit

One of the handiest finds in your cupboard is a can of smoked tongue. With this you can prepare a delightful Smoked Tongue Rarebit. Remember this dish for a quick Saturday night serving.

To prepare the Smoked Tongue Rarebit, cut a 9-ounce can of smoked tongue into thin strips about 3 inches long. Then prepare a cream sauce by melting 2 tablespoons of butter or margarine and stirring in 2 tablespoons of flour. Season with ¼ teaspoon paprika and ¼ teaspoon of dry mustard. Add 1 cup of milk and cook, stirring constantly, until thickened.

To the sauce add 1 cup of grated cheddar cheese and cook quite slowly until melted. Season with ½ teaspoon of Worcestershire sauce and fold in the strips of smoked tongue. Serve over rice, toast tips or toasted English muffins. Complete your menu with a tomato, cucumber salad, a hot vegetable, hard rolls and a light dessert.

Baked Custard

Baked custard, a favorite with all ages of the family, can be touched up so that each serving is different, according to cookery specialists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. An easy way to do it is to line up six custard cups and put a few raisins in one, nutmeg in another, cooked dried apricots in a third, honey in a fourth, chocolate chips in a fifth, then fill all six cups with the custard mixture and bake. When done, this assortment is turned upside down in individual dessert dishes so that the trimmings are on top. The one plain custard may be touched up with frozen strawberry sauce at serving time. The specialists say that greasing the custard cups helps make apricots or nutmeg stay in place.

The baked custard recipe used for this assortment calls for:

¼ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
3 eggs, beaten
2 cups hot milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

To make: Combine sugar, salt and eggs. Add milk slowly, then vanilla. Pour into custard cups and set in a pan of hot water. Bake in a slow oven (325° F.) until custard is set—30 to 40 minutes.

⅓ cup milk per serving.

Paraffined Carton Protects Creamery Quality Of Butter

SANDWICHES, some 58 million of them, are assembled in America each day. Part of their enjoyment is the butter, creamery fresh from its paraffined carton, which gives moistness and additional flavor to the bread and filling combination. See recipes elsewhere on this page for butter spreads.

The phrase, "bread and butter" became part of the framework of the English language because these two foods are basic in the daily menu. Butter gives flavor to bread. It also has a flavor carrying factor that makes its use standard in sandwiches. Butter actually distributes the goodness of the filling throughout the sandwich.

Since butter is so delicate a spread, it must be protected from air, light, the hazards of shipment and from stronger flavored foods near it. It will stay creamery-fresh if packaged in parchment or foil plus a paraffined carton. Unless used immediately at home, butter should be kept in the carton to guard against more dominant flavored foods in the home refrigerator.

Here are some butter spreads to vary tea sandwiches. Flavor-sweet butter is highlighted with watercress; with horseradish and pimiento, and with deviled ham. There's also a filling for a lunchbox or picnic sandwich, and a luncheon main course sandwich.

Ham Sandwich Spread

1 cup ground cooked ham; 4 tablespoons chopped pickle; 2 tablespoons chopped stuffed olives; 1 teaspoon finely chopped parsley; 1 teaspoon minced onion; 1 tablespoon prepared mustard.

Mix together all ingredients. Use as sandwich spread. YIELD: 4 sandwiches.

Open Faced Luncheon Sandwich

4 slices bread or toast; 1 cup chopped chicken, flaked or canned crabmeat, salmon or tuna fish; 1 hard cooked egg, chopped; 2 tablespoons chopped green pepper; ¼ cup finely diced celery; 1 teaspoon prepared mustard; ¼ cup mayonnaise.

Spread bread or toast with butter. Mix together chicken or fish, egg, green pepper and celery. Combine mustard and mayonnaise; stir into mixed ingredients. Pile on top of bread slices. Garnish with sliced stuffed olives. YIELD: 4 servings.

Flavored Butter Spreads

(Enough for 40 canapes or tea sandwiches).

1. Soften ½ cup butter. Add ½ cup finely chopped watercress and 1 tablespoon chopped parsley, 1 teaspoon lemon juice and ½ teaspoon minced onion. Mix well.

2. Soften ½ cup butter. Add 2 tablespoons horseradish and 3 tablespoons minced pimiento. Mix well.

3. Soften ½ cup butter. Add 1 small can deviled ham, 1 teaspoon prepared mustard and ⅛ teaspoon hot sauce. Mix well.

Sweetpotato Custard

¼ cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
1¾ cups milk
2 eggs, beaten
2½ cups finely shredded raw sweetpotato (shred just before using)
1 tablespoon melted butter or margarine

Add sugar, salt, nutmeg, orange rind, and milk to the eggs. Mix thoroughly. Add sweetpotato and butter or margarine. Bake in greased custard cups in a pan of hot water in a moderate oven (350° F.) about 30 minutes or until set.

6 servings. Over ¼ cup milk per serving.

Sweetpotato Custard Pie. Pour custard into 9-inch unbaked pastry shell and bake in a hot oven (425° F.), for 10 minutes; reduce temperature to 350°, and continue baking for 30 minutes longer.

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Smoked Tongue In A Can Handy For Tasty Rarebit

One of the handiest finds in your cupboard is a can of smoked tongue. With this you can prepare a delightful Smoked Tongue Rarebit. Remember this dish for a quick Saturday night serving.

To prepare the Smoked Tongue Rarebit, cut a 9-ounce can of smoked tongue into thin strips about 3 inches long. Then prepare a cream sauce by melting 2 tablespoons of butter or margarine and stirring in 2 tablespoons of flour. Season with ¼ teaspoon paprika and ¼ teaspoon of dry mustard. Add 1 cup of milk and cook, stirring constantly, until thickened.

To the sauce add 1 cup of grated cheddar cheese and cook quite slowly until melted. Season with ½ teaspoon of Worcestershire sauce and fold in the strips of smoked tongue. Serve over rice, toast tips or toasted English muffins. Complete your menu with a tomato, cucumber salad, a hot vegetable, hard rolls and a light dessert.

Baked Custard

Baked custard, a favorite with all ages of the family, can be touched up so that each serving is different, according to cookery specialists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. An easy way to do it is to line up six custard cups and put a few raisins in one, nutmeg in another, cooked dried apricots in a third, honey in a fourth, chocolate chips in a fifth, then fill all six cups with the custard mixture and bake. When done, this assortment is turned upside down in individual dessert dishes so that the trimmings are on top. The one plain custard may be touched up with frozen strawberry sauce at serving time. The specialists say that greasing the custard cups helps make apricots or nutmeg stay in place.

The baked custard recipe used for this assortment calls for:

¼ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
3 eggs, beaten
2 cups hot milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

To make: Combine sugar, salt and eggs. Add milk slowly, then vanilla. Pour into custard cups and set in a pan of hot water. Bake in a slow oven (325° F.) until custard is set—30 to 40 minutes.

⅓ cup milk per serving.

Meat Is Magic For Morning Appetites

With the aroma of meat cooking in the kitchen you have the magic formula for breakfast success. This is an important need for lazy June appetites.

Bacon is one of the most popular choices for breakfast. To prepare bacon at its finest, place the strips in a cold frying-pan. Then cook slowly until it is golden brown. Turn the bacon so that both sides are evenly cooked, and drain on absorbent paper.

Sausage, ham, Canadian-style bacon are other good choices. The latter comes from the pork loin and is smoked much the same as ham. It's also prepared by pan-broiling.

Broiled veal or lamb kidneys are two more breakfast treats. Wash the kidneys and remove the outer membrane, then split through the center and remove fat and tubes. Brush with melted butter or margarine and broil about 5 minutes on each side, 2 inches from the heat. Two other breakfast ideas are ham muffins served with fried or scrambled eggs—or strips of salami placed on an omelet before folding.

Meat and fruit are summer treats. Brown pineapple rings in ham drippings and serve as a border around a ham slice. Broil peach halves, brushed with melted butter or margarine, and surround the ham.

Apple Sauce Parfait

Gay and bright to look at, and delectable to eat . . . that's the story of this refreshing early summer dessert.

It's dessert to offer at a bridge luncheon; to set out as a treat for the youngsters' supper; to please the family for dinner; or to pass as a refreshment at an afternoon or evening gathering.

You'll find it on the light side, cool and fruity, part rosy cinnamon apple sauce, part almond custard, topped with a froth of whipped egg white.

And so easy to make!

Simply open a can or jar of your favorite brand of apple sauce. Color the apple sauce rose red with red cinnamon candy. Then spoon the sauce into the glasses with alternate layers of the creamy almond custard. If you wish, instead of making custard, use a vanilla pudding mix and flavor with almond extract. The parfait is delicious made that way, too—and a bit quicker.

But here's the custard-way of fixing it:

APPLE SAUCE PARFAIT

- 2 cups canned apple sauce
- 2 tablespoons cinnamon drop candies
- ¼ cup sugar
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 2 cups milk
- 3 egg yolks
- ½ teaspoon almond extract
- 1 egg white
- 2 tablespoons sugar

Combine apple sauce and cinnamon drop candies; let stand in refrigerator several hours, or until candy drops have dissolved. Mix well. Combine ¼ cup sugar, cornstarch and salt in top of double boiler, gradually add milk. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly, until slightly thickened. Beat egg yolks, gradually add hot milk mixture. Return to double boiler; cook, stiring constantly, until mixture thickens and coats spoon. Cool. Add almond extract; chill. Arrange alternate layers of apple sauce and custard in parfait glasses, ending with custard sauce. Beat egg white stiff, gradually add remaining 2 tablespoons sugar, beating constantly. Use as garnish on parfaits topped by teaspoon of the apple sauce. Yields 6 servings.

Cakes Vary With Pans

Your cakes will rise more evenly and brown more evenly in shiny pans than in dark ones, says Janet Coblentz, University of Maryland Extension nutritionist. The same thing applies to pies and biscuits.

A dark pan absorbs heat, causing the cake to bake more rapidly. The result is a very dark, coarse, thick crust on the sides and bottom of the cake. On the other hand, a shiny pan reflects the heat in such a way that the sides and bottom brown evenly and the crust is tender and delicate.

A cake baked in a dull, dark pan has less volume than one baked in a shiny pan, and it is sometimes higher in the center than on the sides.

Glass and enamel absorb quite a bit of heat and cause darker browning than bright metal pans. Therefore, have your baking temperature 15 to 25 degrees lower when you use glass and enamel utensils, explains Miss Coblentz.

To get the best texture in your cake, use pans that have straight sides and are not too shallow. The batter should be at least ⅝ to one inch deep, but should not fill the pan more than half-full.

To help you determine what size of pan to use, Miss Coblentz offers this guide: For a round layer cake using two cups of flour, use an 8-inch pan for three layers or a 9-inch pan for two layers. For a square two-layer cake, use an 8x8x2-inch pan if the recipe calls for two cups of flour or a 9x9x2-inch pan if you use three cups of flour. A loaf cake calling for two cups of flour should be baked in a pan 10x5x3-inches, and a sheet cake calling for three cups of flour should be baked in a pan 13x9x2-inches. A recipe calling for one cup of flour will make 12 medium-sized cupcakes.

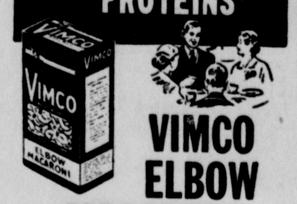

It is rare for a mother bear to give birth to more than two cubs at one time.

Meat Is Magic For Morning Appetites

With the aroma of meat cooking in the kitchen you have the magic formula for breakfast success. This is an important need for lazy June appetites.

Bacon is one of the most popular choices for breakfast. To prepare bacon at its finest, place the strips in a cold frying-pan. Then cook slowly until it is golden brown. Turn the bacon so that both sides are evenly cooked, and drain on absorbent paper.

Sausage, ham, Canadian-style bacon are other good choices. The latter comes from the pork loin and is smoked much the same as ham. It's also prepared by pan-broiling.

Broiled veal or lamb kidneys are two more breakfast treats. Wash the kidneys and remove the outer membrane, then split through the center and remove fat and tubes. Brush with melted butter or margarine and broid about 5 minutes on each side, 2 inches from the heat. Two other breakfast ideas are ham muffins served with fried or scrambled eggs—or strips of salami placed on an omelet before folding.

Meat and fruit are summer treats. Brown pineapple rings in ham drippings and serve as a border around a ham slice. Broil peach halves, brushed with melted butter or margarine, and surround the ham.

Apple Sauce Parfait

Gay and bright to look at, and delectable to eat . . . that's the story of this refreshing early summer dessert.

It's dessert to offer at a bridge luncheon; to set out as a treat for the youngsters' supper; to please the family for dinner; or to pass as a refreshment at an afternoon or evening gathering.

You'll find it on the light side, cool and fruity, part rosy cinnamon apple sauce, part almond custard, topped with a froth of whipped egg white.

And so easy to make!

Simply open a can or jar of your favorite brand of apple sauce. Color the apple sauce rose red with red cinnamon candy. Then spoon the sauce into the glasses with alternate layers of the creamy almond custard. If you wish, instead of making custard, use a vanilla pudding mix and flavor with almond extract. The parfait is delicious made that way, too—and a bit quicker.

But here's the custard-way of fixing it:

APPLE SAUCE PARFAIT

- 2 cups canned apple sauce
- 2 tablespoons cinnamon drop candies
- ¼ cup sugar
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 2 cups milk
- 3 egg yolks
- ¾ teaspoon almond extract
- 1 egg white
- 2 tablespoons sugar

Combine apple sauce and cinnamon drop candies; let stand in refrigerator several hours, or until candy drops have dissolved. Mix well. Combine ¼ cup sugar, cornstarch and salt in top of double boiler, gradually add milk. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly, until slightly thickened. Beat egg yolks, gradually add hot milk mixture. Return to double boiler; cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and coats spoon. Cool. Add almond extract; chill. Arrange alternate layers of apple sauce and custard in parfait glasses, ending with custard sauce. Beat egg white stiff, gradually add remaining 2 tablespoons sugar, beating constantly. Use as garnish on parfaits topped by teaspoon of the apple sauce. Yields 6 servings.

Cakes Vary With Pans

Your cakes will rise more evenly and brown more evenly in shiny pans than in dark ones, says Janet Coblentz, University of Maryland Extension nutritionist. The same thing applies to pies and biscuits.

A dark pan absorbs heat, causing the cake to bake more rapidly. The result is a very dark, coarse, thick crust on the sides and bottom of the cake. On the other hand, a shiny pan reflects the heat in such a way that the sides and bottom brown evenly and the crust is tender and delicate.

A cake baked in a dull, dark pan has less volume than one baked in a shiny pan, and it is sometimes higher in the center than on the sides.

Glass and enamel absorb quite a bit of heat and cause darker browning than bright metal pans. Therefore, have your baking temperature 15 to 25 degrees lower when you use glass and enamel utensils, explains Miss Coblentz.

To get the best texture in your cake, use pans that have straight sides and are not too shallow. The batter should be at least ⅝ to one inch deep, but should not fill the pan more than half-full.

To help you determine what size of pan to use, Miss Coblentz offers this guide: For a round layer cake using two cups of flour, use an 8-inch pan for three layers or a 9-inch pan for two layers. For a square two-layer cake, use an 8x8x2-inch pan if the recipe calls for two cups of flour or a 9x9x2-inch pan if you use three cups of flour. A loaf cake calling for two cups of flour should be baked in a pan 10x5x3-inches, and a sheet cake calling for three cups of flour should be baked in a pan 13x9x2-inches. A recipe calling for one cup of flour will make 12 medium-sized cupcakes.

It is rare for a mother bear to give birth to more than two cubs at one time.

Mental Exam Authorized For Davis

Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris has signed an order authorizing a mental examination of Lester W. Davis, this city, who is charged with the rape of a nine-year-old girl.

Davis has been held in the county jail since June 8 when the offense was allegedly committed in Constitution Park. The petition for a mental test was filed in Circuit Court by Estel C. Kelley, court-appointed attorney for Davis.

Davis has also waived his right to indictment by a grand jury and has requested an immediate trial. No date has been set.

A plea of guilty to a charge of sodomy was entered in Circuit Court yesterday by James Bernard Kelley, 33, of Barrelville, when he was brought before Associate Judge George Henderson.

One of the witnesses heard by the court yesterday was Dr. Richard Trevaskis Jr., local psychiatrist. He told of his examination of Kelley and informed the court that the man was sane and knew what he was doing and that the incident was not the result of any uncontrollable urge.

Playground Contest Winners Announced

Winners were Sandra Rich, prettiest doll; Joyce Puffenberger, largest; Cathy Abe, smallest; Sandra McDonald, largest collection; Annalee Koch, most unusual, and Milton Sensabaugh, most lifelike.

Judges were Elaine Evans, Paul Goetz, Nancy Shipway and Leslie Leatherman.

C&P Dial Conversion Program Starts

The $1,729,000 dial conversion program of the C&P Telephone Company in Cumberland has been started with cable and other equipment being moved into the huge exchange building at the corner of South Centre and Union Streets.

C. Walter Haschert Jr., manager of the firm here, said the first part of the program will consist of rearranging the circuits at the exchange which tie-in with long distance. This consists of moving equipment from the third to second floor so that the dial wiring, relays and other items can be installed.

By December this work will have been completed, Haschert said. He also announced that William N. Keller, plant wire chief, has been designated dial coordinator and placed in complete charge of the work here. Keller was in charge of similar work at Oakland when that exchange is converted to dial telephones.

Keller said when the equipment on the third floor is removed to the second floor then the superstructure for the dial relays will be put in place. The superstructure, made of steel mountings, will have racks of dial relays from floor to ceiling, he added.

A number of Western Electric Company workers will be employed on the project. In January the actual placing of dials on phones will be started. Most phones have an inset into which the dialing device may be placed.

Keller said area exchanges will have modifications in their equipment in order to tie them into the dial system.

A comprehensive program of information and demonstration will be given by the C&P firm prior to the inception of the dial service. Service clubs and other groups will be visited by phone company officials and the whole plan outlined.

The pavement adjacent to the telephone company exchange on Union Street and part of the street were roped off yesterday while workmen were hoisting the cable and other equipment to the third floor of the structure.

Berkey Improves Following Accident

Floyd T. Berkey, 26, of Valley Road was reported improving yesterday morning at Sacred Heart Hospital where he was admitted Sunday with injuries suffered in an automobile accident early that morning.

Berkey was the driver of a car which apparently went out of control, left the highway and struck and severely damaged the home of John R. Greise Sr., Valley Road. No charges have as yet been preferred by State Police. Trooper L. C. Clark is investigating.

County School Teachers Attending Workshop

Conway is a member of the faculty at Flintstone High School while Miss Baker is on the Allegany High faculty. They were granted fellowships to the workshop on the basis of their interest in teaching economics in the schools.

Officer Injured On Turnpike

A Pennsylvania State Police officer was injured yesterday about 6 a. m. when his car careened across the medial strip of the Turnpike at Juniata Township in Bedford County and crashed head-on into a truck traveling in the opposite direction.

The officer, Trooper Walter Balliet, is stationed in Bedford and is a patient in Bedford County Memorial Hospital. His condition is good.

Police said Trooper Balliet was attempting to pass a car on the pike when the machine ahead pulled out and to avoid a crash the officer swerved his machine. He crossed the medial strip and hit the oncoming truck.

Cumberland Resident Cites Need For Overhead Bridge

In a letter to the Mayor and Council George W. Weber, 31 Ridgeway Terrace, declares "There is no doubt as to the need of a crosstown bridge as a first big step in solving the traffic problem in Cumberland."

The letter pointed out that "No plan is workable where two heavy lanes of traffic cross each other at the same level. Fortunately for Cumberland the expressway is to carry Route 40 through Cumberland and the city can get a long needed improvement at a very low cost. Cumberland had best take advantage of this opportunity or in a few years it may have to build and pay all the costs."

Would Provide Jobs

He noted that the construction work would put money into circulation, provide jobs and help eliminate one of the worst bottlenecks on Route 40.

Weber contends if Western Maryland is to attract tourists, visitors must be able to reach the attractions with ease and that "money spent on necessary improvements is an investment which will pay big dividends in the future prosperity and welfare of our city."

The writer is critical of the Route 40 Association and declares that the group, according to its own statement, is composed of many who reside outside of Cumberland. He says members of the group are "meddling in business that does not concern them."

"The people of Cumberland have never tried to interfere with any road work outside the city and it would be well for the organization to confine activities to the rural sections," the letter states.

Charges Claim Bunk

The writer contends the bridge would be graceful and not an eyesore and would not blight any area. He asserts the expressway and industrial boulevard would permit persons to move with considerable ease from one section of the city to another.

Weber said that Cumberland pays a large share of state and county taxes, automobile license fees and gasoline taxes, and is entitled to some consideration. He also declared that while some property will be destroyed there will be much rebuilding and that no great loss in real estate values will be noted.

Records show that cotton was grown and spun in India as easly as 3,000 B.C.

Mental Exam Authorized For Davis

Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris has signed an order authorizing a mental examination of Lester W. Davis, this city, who is charged with the rape of a nine-year-old girl.

Davis has been held in the county jail since June 8 when the offense was allegedly committed in Constitution Park. The petition for a mental test was filed in Circuit Court by Estel C. Kelley, court-appointed attorney for Davis.

Davis has also waived his right to indictment by a grand jury and has requested an immediate trial. No date has been set.

A plea of guilty to a charge of sodomy was entered in Circuit Court yesterday by James Bernard Kelley, 33, of Barrelville, when he was brought before Associate Judge George Henderson.

One of the witnesses heard by the court yesterday was Dr. Richard Trevaskis Jr., local psychiatrist. He told of his examination of Kelley and informed the court that the man was sane and knew what he was doing and that the incident was not the result of any uncontrollable urge.

C&P Dial Conversion Program Starts

The $1,729,000 dial conversion program of the C&P Telephone Company in Cumberland has been started with cable and other equipment being moved into the huge exchange building at the corner of South Centre and Union Streets.

C. Walter Haschert Jr., manager of the firm here, said the first part of the program will consist of rearranging the circuits at the exchange which tie-in with long distance. This consists of moving equipment from the third to second floor so that the dial wiring, relays and other items can be installed.

By December this work will have been completed, Haschert said. He also announced that William N. Keller, plant wire chief, has been designated dial coordinator and placed in complete charge of the work here. Keller was in charge of similar work at Oakland when that exchange is converted to dial telephones.

Keller said when the equipment on the third floor is removed to the second floor then the superstructure for the dial relays will be put in place. The superstructure, made of steel mountings, will have racks of dial relays from floor to ceiling, he added.

A number of Western Electric Company workers will be employed on the project. In January the actual placing of dials on phones will be started. Most phones have an inset into which the dialing device may be placed.

Keller said area exchanges will have modifications in their equipment in order to tie them into the dial system.

A comprehensive program of information and demonstration will be given by the C&P firm prior to the inception of the dial service. Service clubs and other groups will be visited by phone company officials and the whole plan outlined.

The pavement adjacent to the telephone company exchange on Union Street and part of the street were roped off yesterday while workmen were hoisting the cable and other equipment to the third floor of the structure.

Police said Trooper Balliet was attempting to pass a car on the pike when the machine ahead pulled out and to avoid a crash the officer swerved his machine. He crossed the medial strip and hit the oncoming truck.

Cumberland Resident Cites Need For Overhead Bridge

In a letter to the Mayor and Council George W. Weber, 31 Ridgeway Terrace, declares "There is no doubt as to the need of a crosstown bridge as a first big step in solving the traffic problem in Cumberland."

The letter pointed out that "No plan is workable where two heavy lanes of traffic cross each other at the same level. Fortunately for Cumberland the expressway is to carry Route 40 through Cumberland and the city can get a long needed improvement at a very low cost. Cumberland had best take advantage of this opportunity or in a few years it may have to build and pay all the costs."

Would Provide Jobs

He noted that the construction work would put money into circulation, provide jobs and help eliminate one of the worst bottlenecks on Route 40.

Weber contends if Western Maryland is to attract tourists, visitors must be able to reach the attractions with ease and that "money spent on necessary improvements is an investment which will pay big dividends in the future prosperity and welfare of our city."

The writer is critical of the Route 40 Association and declares that the group, according to its own statement, is composed of many who reside outside of Cumberland. He says members of the group are "meddling in business that does not concern them."

"The people of Cumberland have never tried to interfere with any road work outside the city and it would be well for the organization to confine activities to the rural sections," the letter states.

Charges Claim Bunk

The writer contends the bridge would be graceful and not an eyesore and would not blight any area. He asserts the expressway and industrial boulevard would permit persons to move with considerable ease from one section of the city to another.

Weber said that Cumberland pays a large share of state and county taxes, automobile license fees and gasoline taxes, and is entitled to some consideration. He also declared that while some property will be destroyed there will be much rebuilding and that no great loss in real estate values will be noted.

Records show that cotton was grown and spun in India as easly as 3,000 B.C.

Staff Prepares For Times-News Cooking School

Preparatory to the opening of the National Live Stock and Meat Board's "Merry Meals Cooking School" 1954-55 season, the staff of field home economists who will conduct the school are more than busy in Chicago. Cumberland's school, sponsored by the Times-News, will be held September 21 to 24 in the Strand Theatre.

The board's test kitchen hums with activity. Here the staff is daily preparing new dishes, including meats, salads, vegetables and pastries, with a view to their possible use on the cooking school program. Complete records are being kept in connection with each dish — the proportion of the ingredients used, cooking temperatures, time required in cooking, number of servings and other factors.

Each dish selected for this event must have run the gauntlet of a special testing committee which registers its opinions on the flavor, appearance and its practical value for the average homemaker.

Under way also is the preparation of the "Merry Meals Cooking School" recipe book — an attractive 36-page book containing all of the recipes to be used in the school and other timely cookery information. Each homemaker attending the school will receive this book and will treasure it as a worthwhile addition to her store of cookery lore.

New features designed to add to the interest and enjoyment of homemakers are being worked out.

Every member of the cooking school staff has one major objective this year — to make the coming school season the very best in the long history of this culinary event. Cumberland traditionally has been the first city visited by the touring experts who stage the school.

Girl Scout

Long and Miss Beverly Bennett, Unit I counsellors; Miss Ann Riggleman, Miss Mildred Reagan and Miss Jean Moore, Unit II counselors.

An added feature this year is a program known in scouting as "CIT" meaning Counselors In Training. Four senior scouts, interested in the Scout work, are being trained for the positions of junior counselors next year.

Four In Program

These four girls, Kitty Ann Brewer, Arlene Green, Mary Jane Howell, and Alice Bartlett, are among the hardest-working people at the camp. They spend much of their time at special study and work, learning to live outdoors and to cope with most every possible situation. In the evenings they assist with the programs designed to keep the campers busy and happy. These girls, gaining great experience, are proving that the Council can train its own future counselors.

One of the problems in past years — this year is an exception — has been the inability of the Council and Camp committee to employ enough trained camp counselors to assure a safe, adequate, happy camp program.

With the "CIT" program now started and working so well, Council members are already suggesting that next year perhaps six girls can be trained. It is agreed that eight will be the maximum number which can be developed in any one summer camping period.

Mrs. Spioch observed that in the entire Girl Scout program in Cumberland, qualified and interested adults willing to accept the responsibility of leadership are needed. More troops could be organized in the city and adjacent area, giving more girls an opportunity to enjoy scouting, if there were more interested leaders.

GLENN DUNNING

Many people here have discovered a new, happy way to get rid of old bills and high monthly payments.

They use the "Bill-Payer" Plan offered by Aetna Finance Co. Bills get paid immediately, with just one payment at one place each month.

"I'm here to help folks who need cash or want to get rid of money worries. Amounts from $50 to $1000 may be obtained on signature only. (Loans over $300. made under Md. Industrial Finance Act.) One visit does it. And everybody likes our friendly, courteous and rapid way of doing business," said the Aetna manager.

Grocer Accused Of Slaying Four Convicted Again

CHICAGO, July 29 (AP)—Vincent Ciucci, 28-year-old grocer accused of slaying his wife and three children, was convicted of murder for a second time today and sentenced to 45 years in prison.

A criminal court jury found Ciucci guilty of murdering his 4-year old daughter, Angeline. On March 18 he was convicted of murdering his wife, Anne, 27. At that time his punishment was fixed at 20 years in prison.

A judge will have to decide whether the sentences will run together or consecutively.

Mrs. Ciucci and their three children, Vincent Jr., 9, Virginia, 8, and Angeline, were found dead in their apartment behind the grocery store after a fire Dec. 5. Each had a bullet wound in the head.

The state charged Ciucci sought to get rid of his family so he could marry Carol Amora, 21, who testified he was the father of her child.

Asst. State's Atty. Joseph McGovern, asked the death penalty in the second trial. He said the lesser decree resulted from uncertainty of jurors because the indictment had charged murder by shooting although the primary cause of death was given as asphyxiation.

Acting State's Atty. Irwin S. Bloch said the state will try Ciucci on two other murder indictments charging him with slaying his two other children.

Witness Immunity Bill Approved By House Group

WASHINGTON, July 29 (AP)—The House Judiciary Committee today approved a rigidly limited bill to grant immunity from prosecution to witnesses who testify before congressional committees or in the courts on matters deemed vital to national security.

The immunity would apply to witnesses who otherwise might refuse to testify on grounds of self-incrimination.

The bill differs sharply from other immunity proposals thus far considered by Congress in that it:

1. Limits the granting of immunity to national security cases involving espionage, sabotage or other forms of subversive activity.

2. Vests sole authority to grant immunity in the federal courts. Only a federal judge could issue an order granting immunity from prosecution upon application of a committee or a U.S. attorney.

The committee also approved a companion measure authored by Rep. Keating (R-NY) to speed up congressional contempt proceedings. These procedures now require the House or Senate to vote contempt citations and then refer them to the Justice Department for prosecution.

Under the committee-approved Keating bill, witnesses would be directed to answer questions on order of a federal court. Still refusing to answer, they would be deemed in contempt of court.

By the proposed court order, present time-consuming congressional action would be by-passed and witnesses in contempt would be subject to immediate court penalties.

The immunity measure approved is strictly limited in scope and action, and aimed wholly at subversives who claim the privilege of the Fifth Amendment to refuse to testify because of possible self-incrimination.

There was no indication when it would be called up in the House. In its present form, however, its chances of passage were considered good.

Store Employes Qualify For CD

The initial group of downtown store employes who have completed Red Cross First Aid and supplemental Civil Defense training are registered on the Allegany County CD lists to be called upon if the occasion demands.

William G. Barger, county director of Civil Defense, in a letter to Mrs. Esther B. Rosenbaum, The Dingle, commended her and the employes of Rosenbaum's who completed the course.

Members of the group are Mrs. Rosenbaum, Laura Cooke, 19 Decatur Street; Mrs. Dorothy Cox, Wiley Ford; Miss Mary Fahey, 448 Baltimore Avenue; Mrs. Lucia Ferrato, 10 James Street; Mrs. Mary A. Harbaugh, 114 Bellevue Street.

Mrs. Julia M. Hotchkiss, 69 Greene Street; Mrs. Elizabeth Joy, 110 Columbia Street; Mrs. Leona Rebner, Flintstone; Mrs. Goldie B. Maloney, 415 Bedford Street; Miss Eleanor Rice; 144 Polk Street; Mrs. Martha Swanson, Ellerslie, and Mrs. Dorothy Turano, 510 City View Terrace.

The class was instructed by H. Lee Silcox assisted by Robert Thwaites.

B&O Veterans To Hold Picnic Tomorrow

The annual B&O picnic will be held Saturday at City Park in Terra Alta under the sponsorship of Cumberland Division 5, B&O Veterans.

George R. Alexander, president of Division 5, and A. W. Conley, superintendent of the Cumberland Division of the B&O Railroad, extended an invitation for the public to attend and said accommodations will be available to non-railroaders on a special train leaving Cumberland Saturday at 8 a. m. (Daylight Time) and stopping at Keyser, Piedmont, Mountain Lake Park and Oakland. Transportation will be available from the station to City Park.

The return trip will have the train leaving Terra Alta at 6:15 p.m. (EDT) and will arrive in Cumberland shortly after 8 p.m. (EDT).

Dinner will be served at the Terra Alta United Brethren Church. Turkey, ham or chicken will be on the menus along with six vegetables. Included among the latter are cabbage, broccoli and cauliflower grown in the vicinity of the B&O Railroad in Garrett County.

The growth of these new crops was promoted by Richard Winklepeck, agriculture-industrial agent of the B&O who works under L. S. Hartley, agriculture development agent.

The City Park has an auditorium, ball diamond and many shade trees. There will be a number of amusements such as a turtle derby, horse shoe contest and volley ball.

Conley spent Thursday in Terra Alta, first dedicating the new crossing gates and automatic signals at the Main Street Crossing, and then inspecting City Park with Terra Alta Mayor J. W. Browning.

Persons riding the special train will be given an opportunity to inspect the interior of the three-unit Diesel engine that will haul them to Terra Alta.

At Terra Alta there will be on display for the picnickers a new B&O caboose built in the Washington, Ind., shops.

The annual affair is for all B&O employes, their friends and for others who wish to attend, Conley and Alexander said. An excursion fare will be in effect for the public.

House Passes D. C. Police Bill

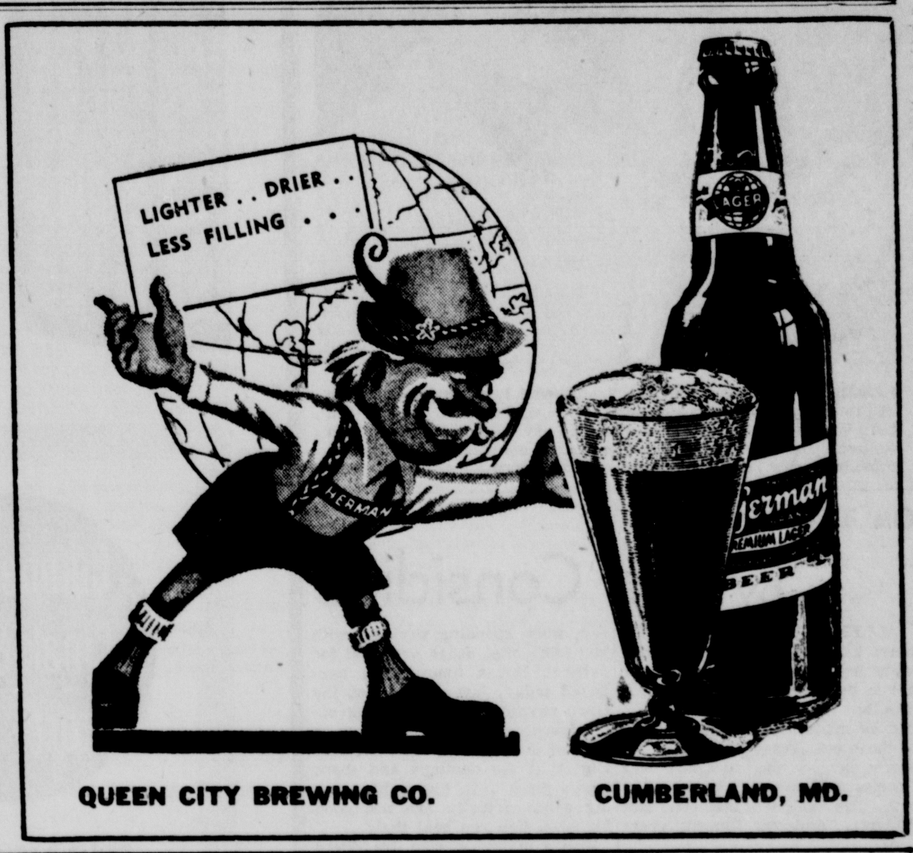

WASHINGTON, July 29 (AP)—The House passed by voice vote and sent to the Senate today a bill to replace the present 157-man Capitol Police Force with a career force of 200 men.

The bill grew out of the shooting of five House members by Puerto Rican fanatics on March 1. It was developed as a security measure by Senate and House leaders, who admitted that it was not the complete solution to the security problem on Capitol Hill but would be helpful.

Members of the new force, to be organized late this year, would be selected by the Capitol Police Board, composed of the architect of the capitol, the sergeant-at-arms of the Senate and the House, two senators and two representatives.

Selection would be on the basis of standing in mental, physical and qualification tests similar to those given to career government employees. Special consideration would be given to applicants who are war veterans, and to members of the present Capitol Police Force who meet qualifications.

Members of the new force would have civil service retirement benefits. Their pay would range from a starting salary of $3,900 for privates to a top of $10,000 for the chief, with smaller increases for longevity in the lower ranks.

Every member of the cooking school staff has one major objective this year — to make the coming school season the very best in the long history of this culinary event. Cumberland traditionally has been the first city visited by the touring experts who stage the school.

Girl Scout

Long and Miss Beverly Bennett, Unit I counsellors; Miss Ann Riggleman, Miss Mildred Reagan and Miss Jean Moore, Unit II counselors.

An added feature this year is a program known in scouting as "CIT" meaning Counselors In Training. Four senior scouts, interested in the Scout work, are being trained for the positions of junior counselors next year.

Four In Program

These four girls, Kitty Ann Brewer, Arlene Green, Mary Jane Howell, and Alice Bartlett, are among the hardest-working people at the camp. They spend much of their time at special study and work, learning to live outdoors and to cope with most every possible situation. In the evenings they assist with the programs designed to keep the campers busy and happy. These girls, gaining great experience, are proving that the Council can train its own future counselors.

One of the problems in past years — this year is an exception — has been the inability of the Council and Camp committee to employ enough trained camp counselors to assure a safe, adequate, happy camp program.

With the "CIT" program now started and working so well, Council members are already suggesting that next year perhaps six girls can be trained. It is agreed that eight will be the maximum number which can be developed in any one summer camping period.

Mrs. Spioch observed that in the entire Girl Scout program in Cumberland, qualified and interested adults willing to accept the responsibility of leadership are needed. More troops could be organized in the city and adjacent area, giving more girls an opportunity to enjoy scouting, if there were more interested leaders.

Grocer Accused Of Slaying Four Convicted Again

CHICAGO, July 29 (AP)—Vincent Ciucci, 28-year-old grocer accused of slaying his wife and three children, was convicted of murder for a second time today and sentenced to 45 years in prison.

A criminal court jury found Ciucci guilty of murdering his 4-year old daughter, Angeline. On March 18 he was convicted of murdering his wife, Anne, 27. At that time his punishment was fixed at 20 years in prison.

A judge will have to decide whether the sentences will run together or consecutively.

Mrs. Ciucci and their three children, Vincent Jr., 9, Virginia, 8, and Angeline, were found dead in their apartment behind the grocery store after a fire Dec. 5. Each had a bullet wound in the head.

The state charged Ciucci sought to get rid of his family so he could marry Carol Amora, 21, who testified he was the father of her child.

Asst. State's Atty. Joseph McGovern, asked the death penalty in the second trial. He said the lesser decree resulted from uncertainty of jurors because the indictment had charged murder by shooting although the primary cause of death was given as asphyxiation.

Acting State's Atty. Irwin S. Bloch said the state will try Ciucci on two other murder indictments charging him with slaying his two other children.

Witness Immunity Bill Approved By House Group

WASHINGTON, July 29 (AP)—The House Judiciary Committee today approved a rigidly limited bill to grant immunity from prosecution to witnesses who testify before congressional committees or in the courts on matters deemed vital to national security.

The immunity would apply to witnesses who otherwise might refuse to testify on grounds of self-incrimination.

The bill differs sharply from other immunity proposals thus far considered by Congress in that it:

1. Limits the granting of immunity to national security cases involving espionage, sabotage or other forms of subversive activity.

2. Vests sole authority to grant immunity in the federal courts. Only a federal judge could issue an order granting immunity from prosecution upon application of a committee or a U.S. attorney.

The committee also approved a companion measure authored by Rep. Keating (R-NY) to speed up congressional contempt proceedings. These procedures now require the House or Senate to vote contempt citations and then refer them to the Justice Department for prosecution.

Under the committee-approved Keating bill, witnesses would be directed to answer questions on order of a federal court. Still refusing to answer, they would be deemed in contempt of court.

By the proposed court order, present time-consuming congressional action would be by-passed and witnesses in contempt would be subject to immediate court penalties.

The immunity measure approved is strictly limited in scope and action, and aimed wholly at subversives who claim the privilege of the Fifth Amendment to refuse to testify because of possible self-incrimination.

There was no indication when it would be called up in the House. In its present form, however, its chances of passage were considered good.

Store Employes Qualify For CD

The initial group of downtown store employes who have completed Red Cross First Aid and supplemental Civil Defense training are registered on the Allegany County CD lists to be called upon if the occasion demands.

William G. Barger, county director of Civil Defense, in a letter to Mrs. Esther B. Rosenbaum, The Dingle, commended her and the employes of Rosenbaum's who completed the course.

Members of the group are Mrs. Rosenbaum, Laura Cooke, 19 Decatur Street; Mrs. Dorothy Cox, Wiley Ford; Miss Mary Fahey, 448 Baltimore Avenue; Mrs. Lucia Ferrato, 10 James Street; Mrs. Mary A. Harbaugh, 114 Bellevue Street.

Mrs. Julia M. Hotchkiss, 69 Greene Street; Mrs. Elizabeth Joy, 110 Columbia Street; Mrs. Leona Rebner, Flintstone; Mrs. Goldie B. Maloney, 415 Bedford Street; Miss Eleanor Rice; 144 Polk Street; Mrs. Martha Swanson, Ellerslie, and Mrs. Dorothy Turano, 510 City View Terrace.

The class was instructed by H. Lee Silcox assisted by Robert Thwaites.

B&O Veterans To Hold Picnic Tomorrow

The annual B&O picnic will be held Saturday at City Park in Terra Alta under the sponsorship of Cumberland Division 5, B&O Veterans.

George R. Alexander, president of Division 5, and A. W. Conley, superintendent of the Cumberland Division of the B&O Railroad, extended an invitation for the public to attend and said accommodations will be available to non-railroaders on a special train leaving Cumberland Saturday at 8 a. m. (Daylight Time) and stopping at Keyser, Piedmont, Mountain Lake Park and Oakland. Transportation will be available from the station to City Park.

The return trip will have the train leaving Terra Alta at 6:15 p.m. (EDT) and will arrive in Cumberland shortly after 8 p.m. (EDT).

Dinner will be served at the Terra Alta United Brethren Church. Turkey, ham or chicken will be on the menus along with six vegetables. Included among the latter are cabbage, broccoli and cauliflower grown in the vicinity of the B&O Railroad in Garrett County.

The growth of these new crops was promoted by Richard Winklepeck, agriculture-industrial agent of the B&O who works under L. S. Hartley, agriculture development agent.

The City Park has an auditorium, ball diamond and many shade trees. There will be a number of amusements such as a turtle derby, horse shoe contest and volley ball.

Conley spent Thursday in Terra Alta, first dedicating the new crossing gates and automatic signals at the Main Street Crossing, and then inspecting City Park with Terra Alta Mayor J. W. Browning.

Persons riding the special train will be given an opportunity to inspect the interior of the three-unit Diesel engine that will haul them to Terra Alta.

At Terra Alta there will be on display for the picnickers a new B&O caboose built in the Washington, Ind., shops.

The annual affair is for all B&O employes, their friends and for others who wish to attend, Conley and Alexander said. An excursion fare will be in effect for the public.

House Passes D. C. Police Bill

WASHINGTON, July 29 (AP)—The House passed by voice vote and sent to the Senate today a bill to replace the present 157-man Capitol Police Force with a career force of 200 men.

The bill grew out of the shooting of five House members by Puerto Rican fanatics on March 1. It was developed as a security measure by Senate and House leaders, who admitted that it was not the complete solution to the security problem on Capitol Hill but would be helpful.

Members of the new force, to be organized late this year, would be selected by the Capitol Police Board, composed of the architect of the capitol, the sergeant-at-arms of the Senate and the House, two senators and two representatives.

Selection would be on the basis of standing in mental, physical and qualification tests similar to those given to career government employees. Special consideration would be given to applicants who are war veterans, and to members of the present Capitol Police Force who meet qualifications.

Members of the new force would have civil service retirement benefits. Their pay would range from a starting salary of $3,900 for privates to a top of $10,000 for the chief, with smaller increases for longevity in the lower ranks.

ORDEAL OVER FOR HAWAIIAN GIRL

HEALTHY AGAIN, Karen Ishibashi, 7, of Hawaii, bids her nurse goodbye as she leaves Presbyterian Hospital, Chicago, for home. The girl had been flown to the hospital from Honolulu after bleeding at the mouth for more than nine days because of a block in her portal vein. Surgeons provided a new blood channel. (International Soundphoto)

On The Line
by Bob Considine

ALLENHURST, N. J. (INS)—(Ed. note: The writer of the following understatement is a bum who never owned a conviction, much less than a home. And still doesn't. But he made a $10 deposit on one of those old Jersey Shore jobs the other day — the architect was Charles Addams—and he has flipped. The author, that is. Not Addams. Addams flipped years ago).

Should've got it for less. Should've said, "Are you kidding?" and walked out, six abreast. It's that Kid Barry's fault. Should never have taken him with us to look at the place. Some poker-face, that one. Warned him to alternate between snarling "n-n-n-n-yah, so what?" and crying hysterically, "I hate it, hate it, hate it."

But what he did! Kept turning cartwheels on the old lawns, and rolling ecstatically in the flowers. Kept saying in wide-eyed wonder, "Gee, this will be my room." Or, "This is where I'll keep the bike." Or, "I'm inviting all the kids from the beach over for a feed. Boy, what a grill!" Tried to kick him. Missed. Hurt knee. Now will never break 100.

That's odd. Never noticed that abandoned place across the street before. It's a downright eyesore. Been coming down here, renting, for a few years, and never paid it any mind. Well! Got to do something about that, and real soon. Where's the mayor. How about a tart letter to the reader's corner of the Asbury Park newspaper? Can see it now: "How long are property owners going to stand for unsightly conditions in Allenhurst, jewel of the Cadillac and canasta coast of Jersey? Let all elected officials remember that November is coming. Yours in sport, pro bono publico." That ought to bring them to their knees!

Hmmm. Who's that guy and pretty girl using my drive-way for a U-turn? Some crust! Hey, Mac, don't you have no respect for no private property? Don't you know that a man's home is his Irene Castle? How's that?—you say you saw me use your drive-way like this plenty of times? Oh . . . mi, Ira and Enid.

Funny you two should be driving past just now. After all the times we free-loaded, I mean visited, you it looks like now we might be neighbors. I've put a sizeable payment down on this place. The door's open, have a look. This way, please.

Mind the nasturtiums! What do you mean I ate a $750 orchid at your house one night while raiding the ice box? Was that the time I complained about the lettuce? That's a hot one. But, nevertheless, mind the nasturtiums. The way certain people I could name have been walking around here today since I put the down payment down you'd think nasturtiums grew on bushes.

Here we are. Mind using the doormat with the shoes? You know how it is, when you walk across grass. All that chlorophyll. Hold it! I'll get you an ash tray for that cigaret, Enid. I always used to say, when spending weekend with you folks, that ashes are good for carpets. But a funny thing happened today, just after I put the down payment down. Amazing coincidence, really. I picked up a copy of the January, 1942, Readers Digest at the dentist's and there was a piece in it, big as life, saying ashes actually are not good for rugs. Can you beat that?

Just a minute, please, Ira, there must be a coaster around here some place. You know, they don't make furniture the way they used to. At least they don't finish it as well. I've been putting drinks down on pianos for years—like I used to at your house—and nothing happened. Now, all of a sudden, matter of fact I noticed it only today, drinks leave rings. I guess that's pretty hard for you folks to believe. But drinks actually leave big white rings. Oh . . . you heard about rings, hey? I had missed that copy of the Digest. Overseas.

Want you folks to spend a weekend with us. The least we could do. If you can make it, I want you folks to know that this will really be Liberty Hall. Come and go when you please, eat when you please, sleep when you please, play when you please. Matter of fact, after I put the down payment down today I typed a 10-page schedule of fun activities for weekend guests and tacked it on each guest-room door. The schedule is a little tight, maybe, oh, like surf-bathing from 7:38 to 7:49 each morning, but, after all, people want that sort of thing on the Jersey coast.

Must you leave so soon? I wanted to tell you about a stiff note I plan to send to the local police about ragweed.

When A Six-Gun Was Law

Back in the early frontier days, a man carried law in a leather case by his side. The "lawyers" were hired gunmen, who asked no questions and shot straight and quick. Colorful Future Due For Viewers

Owners of millions of black and white TV sets will not be aware of it, but quite a few of the programs they see this fall will be telecast in color. The relative handful of people who own color sets can get some additional practice in adjusting the numerous controls on their sets so that the expensively produced color programs will appear in as close to an approximation of the real thing as possible.

Both the announcement of the increased numbers of color shows scheduled and news from manufacturers of the color receivers indicates that color TV "for all" may be a great deal closer than might have been expected when the Federal Communications Commission approved general use of the "compatible" system of color TV last December. Early this month the National Broadcasting Company started a weekly series of color programs which are apparently of very high quality, from a technical point of view. This is a sustaining, or network-sponsored show, which may be the forerunner of others, assuming that commercial sponsors can be persuaded to pick up the production bill.

From the standpoint of the viewing public things are moving along, too, for there are signs that competition among color tube manufacturers is getting warmer. Both the Radio Corporation of America and Columbia Broadcasting System, the two giants of the industry, have announced large-sized color picture tubes and simplified chassis which will be on the market late this year. The price, about $900, still puts color TV in the luxury bracket.

As color sets improve, and the price goes down, as it is bound to do, color and black and white will gradually assume their places in public popularity. When that happens American technical genius can take a large share of the credit. But so can the public, for being unwilling to accept anything less than the best.

The Mixed Economy

The great debate over atomic power which frightened so many politicians is, in reality, a struggle over whether the economy of this country is to remain capitalistic, to become socialized, or to be what is sometimes called mixed. A better phrase would be mixed up.

Ultimately all power, light and heat for the United States ought to come from atomic fission. Into the production of this unit of industry, the Government of the United States has poured approximately $5,000,000,000 of the taxpayers' money. It can therefore be argued that this product of the Atomic Energy Commission is the property of the Government of the United States.

A little foresight, however, will undoubtedly frighten those who believe in capitalism because if the atomic energy industry is capable, at low cost, of providing power, light and heat, the coal and electricity industries will sooner or later go out of existence. This means that those who invested their private earnings in these industries will suffer a loss due to competition by the Government of the United States, unless the government purchases the plants and equipment. Those learned legislators who spoke of a "give away" would have been more correct had they used the term, "take away."

It can be said that new inventions make old industries obsolescent; that as new ideas and new methods prevail, they take the place of existing means of production and distribution, as the automobile replaced the horse and carriage. In the changeover from one type of production and distribution, private enterprise has some opportunity for readjustment. Those who owned railroad shares could purchase automobile company shares. Very few such enterprises are monopolies owned by single individuals, but represent a wide distribution of ownership which amounts to public participation in the risk for profit or loss.

Whatever the government owns is a monopoly, held by the political power of the state. The combination of political and economic power, controlled by a bureaucracy that is impervious to the shifts in the elected echelons of government, leads inevitably to fascism, which is the government control of both the political and economic power.

Capitalism is an economic system in which the individual is able to invest his surplus earnings in enterprise according to his private judgment and at his own risk. Capitalism in the United States has been modified by the tax system which limits the accumulation of the individual's earnings first by a graduated income tax and secondly by a graduated inheritance tax. The word, "graduated," is important because these taxes are so devised that all but those who possess inherited wealth or who are given exceptional deductions or who find means to evade the tax laws suffer from a roof on their end earnings; that is, take home pay or profits after taxes are limited by law.

These limitations have not served to end the period of expansion of American industry, but there is a constant fear in this country that the reservoirs of privately-owned capital will decrease. Huge accumulations of private capital are held by the life insurance companies which are able to make loans for safe undertakings. Also, the government, during the war years, and subsequently, made large loans to private enterprises, some of which came into existence and expanded on government loans rather than by public participation in the enterprise. Some of these benefits went to private individuals; some were eventually developed into publicly-owned enterprises. In a word, the government went into the banking business and is loaded down with partial ownership of numerous properties. Similarly, through the Commodity Credit Corporation, the government is a huge owner of foods and materials which are taken off or put on the market for political reasons.

The TVA and some other enterprises are owned by the government in competition with private companies producing power and light. Such government enterprises enjoy the advantage of not paying for the capital they use and of not paying taxes. The development of atomic energy for power and light as a government enterprise will eliminate private capital from this phase of industry altogether. It could mean that the basis of all production will be socialized. As every other industry is dependent upon light and power, all industry will, in a measure, be dependent upon the willingness of government to provide the product not competitively in the market but politically.

Red China's Action Disputes "Freedom Of Seas" View

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — The Red China government has declared war on all airplanes of every nationality on the high seas which travel over waters even beyond the usual territorial limits of three miles from the shore line.

This is comparable to the famous declaration by the Kaiser's government in 1917, which threatened to destroy any shipping it pleased on the high seas — a pronouncement that led to American participation in World War I in defense of the rights of American citizens to travel in international waters on the passenger ships of any nation, neutral or belligerent.

News of the momentous step taken by the Red China government in defiance of international law was revealed for the first time in a speech by Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, to the House of Commons in London.

Attack Deliberately Ordered

Mr. Eden said that on July 23, after the unarmed British airliner was shot down — admittedly by fighter planes from Red China — 30 miles from Hainan Island in Southeast Asia, the British authorities in Hong Kong notified by radio the Communist airfield at Canton, China, giving details of the number and type of rescue planes that would be engaged in rescue work and in searching the area for survivors.

But an hour later, Mr. Eden now discloses, the Red Chinese replied that, while a British flying boat would be allowed to remain in the area, any other war planes which entered the area would be fired upon without further warning.

Three days later — July 26 — American planes which were protecting rescue vessels and planes were attacked 13 miles from Hainan, which location is well outside territorial waters. The American planes fired back and shot down two Communist planes.

This means that the Red China government deliberately ordered the attack and hence that there was nothing accidental about the encounter with the American planes which were engaged in a mission of mercy.

There is no information as to whether the American naval authorities in Southeast Asia received word from the British in Hong Kong concerning the threat to fire on all planes except the one they specified would be immune.

Even if such word had been received, it is doubtful whether the United States Government could accept as lawful the assumption by the Red China government of authority to say what ships or planes could or could not travel the waters or the air, respectively, beyond territorial limits. The fact is the American ships were there on an errand of rescue and that the Red Chinese fliers had already killed three American citizens, including two small children, who were traveling on the British passenger airplane.

Seas Are Free

The United States historically has never yielded its view that the seas are free. The British government for many decades has firmly upheld what is known as "the freedom of the seas." Indeed, the right of armed as well as unarmed ships to approach and land on the shores of countries with which no state of war has been declared is inherent in the relations of governments in time of peace. The fact that a government is not recognized for diplomatic purposes does not mean it has a right to regard a government which denies recognition as in the same status as one that is at war.

By all the rules of international law, the Red China government has committed an act of war against the United States because the firing on American military planes was deliberate and was the result of an effort to extend authority beyond the territorial limits.

In days gone by governments which have been subjected to such an unfriendly act would not necessarily declare war but might land marines or troops in some port as a reprisal until such time as full satisfaction was granted by the offending government.

There have been some other incidents close to Siberian territorial waters when American unarmed planes engaged in weather observations have been fired upon but, presumably because no vigorous action was taken in reprisal then, the Communists in Asia evidently believe that none will ever be forthcoming.

Evidence Is Conclusive

So far as Congress is concerned, the unanimity of opinion as revealed in patriotic expressions by leaders of both parties indicates that American officials feel that public opinion will be with them if it becomes necessary to assert American rights in Southeast Asia.

The Peiping radio is filling the air waves with charges about American "aggression" in a desperate effort to confuse the issue in the court of world opinion. But the Communists admitted the first attack, and the fact that they gave orders to fire on any search planes three days later is officially revealed. So evidence of the guilt of the Peiping government is conclusive.

This stack of polished stupidity said Churchill's crack about the war-war and jaw-jaw was an individual epidemic called jabbinosis.

It is not contagious above a whisper in the reading room at the New York Library. There is no cure for it because everything you eat turns to conversation.

Jabbinosis was a word we coined in order to get out to the Polo Grounds. Where the Brooklyns were playing footsies with infield grounders.

Enzyme Helps Develop Normal Post-Operative Scar

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Surgeons are held responsible for the type of scar that forms after an operation. The barely visible hairline mark provides good advertising and frequently is considered a sign of great skill and ability on the part of the surgeon. An ugly scar has the opposite effect. Some credit or criticism is deserving but nature plays a greater role than many individuals think. The body cells responsible for healing enter the picture and a perfect job of knitting ensues when they form just the right amount of scar tissue. Too much leaves a thick ridge and too little, a marked depression.

Now and then a scar will go haywire by growing and spreading to the immediate surrounding tissue. These lesions, known as keloids, usually protrude above the surface of the skin and are hard, shiny, and smooth except for the borders that extend outward like a claw or fringe. The color is pink or red at first but becomes darker in time, depending upon the color of the skin. The lesions look and feel rubbery and follow almost any kind of injury including bruises, cuts, tattooing, insect bites, vaccinations, or piercing of the lobes for earrings.

Scars from smallpox, shingles, and acne also may turn into keloids. Some of the largest are associated with burns, particularly when the area about joints, mouth, or eyes are involved. Cordlike bands are formed which lead to disfigurement and contractures. In some instances, the scars are so taut it is impossible to move the head, arm, or leg. No one knows why the healing cells respond in this fashion.

Surgery seldom is recommended because another keloid may form over the new scar. X-ray and radium have been tried with inconsistent results. When ACTH and cortisone were introduced initially, surgeons hoped the hormones might be helpful. These products inhibit the growth of connective tissue and for this reason might affect the size and shape of the scar. Several experiments were done but in the majority, the keloid reformed.

Injection of hyaluronidase is one of the latest remedies and early reports are encouraging. Dr. Theodore Cornbleet, of Chicago, used this enzyme in combination with X-ray and surgery, on 26 keloid victims, with success. Hyaluronidase was injected periodically into the keloid, one to three months before the lesions were removed in the operating room. As soon as the skin edges showed signs of uniting, injections were repeated and, at the same time, X-ray treatments were started. Under this plan the healing cells were held in abeyance and a normal scar developed.

DIVERTICULA

REPLY

Not unless they become inflamed and rupture. The majority of men and women over 50 can brag about having diverticula, and these outgrowths from the colon seldom cause trouble. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on diverticulosis.

COLD SWEATS

This unscientific term is used to describe the let down feeling subsequent to a scare, fainting, or the coolness of the skin that follows the evaporation of perspiration.

REPLY

No, but the light is bright and adjustments may be needed.

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

A purveyor of lottery tickets always lay in wait for wealthy Baron Rothschild and tried to talk him into buying a chance. To get rid of him, Rothschild said one day, "Here's 50 francs. Pick out any one of them." Some days later the salesman rushed up to Rothschild and gasped, "The ticket I bought for you won the grand prize—a million francs!"

"Well," said the Baron, "I suppose I'll have to reward you. Which do you prefer: 50,000 francs in cash of 15,000 a year for the rest of your life?"

"I'll take the fifty thousand," said the ticket seller without a moment's hesitation. "With your luck, I wouldn't live another six months!"

Gorgonzola Falls had seen many a hypnotist in its day, but no one to equal the Great Putzolini. The audience gasped when he selected 10 folks at random and put them into a deep trance in 17 seconds flat. "In fact," declared the flabbergasted house manager, "it was a 10-daze wonder."

Two Senators Who Vote On McCarthy Censure Also Voted In Bingham Case

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—Just two members of the current Senate were members of the 1929 Senate that took the last vote of censure against one of their own members. They are: George of Georgia and Hayden of Arizona, both Democrats.

The man they both voted as bringing "dishonor and disrepute on the Senate" exactly 25 years ago was Hiram Bingham of Connecticut who had placed Charles L. Eyanson, of the Connecticut Manufacturers Association on his Senate office staff and let him sit in a meeting of the Senate Finance Committee.

The standards of the Senate seemed considerably higher in those days than during the current debate over McCarthy of Wisconsin. One year before, the Senate had voted to expel two of its own members, Vare, of Pennsylvania, and Smith, of Illinois, for spending too much money in their election campaigns.

Senators at that time felt keenly about the prestige and dignity of the body to which they belonged.

"The view I take of the question," Senator George told the Senate, "is simply this: That the official act of each one of us has a public quality, and that act is either in the interest of the public good or it is contrary to the interest of the public. It either promotes confidence in the processes of government or it tends to weaken public confidence in the processes of government."

Senator Bingham argued eloquently in his own defense.

"No senator is to be criticized," he said, "if he chooses to place members of his family in these clerical positions—if he appoints cousins, nieces, sons or daughters.

Senator Smoot of Utah, a Republican stalwart, introduced a resolution calculated to spare Bingham somewhat. It omitted his name. But George and Hayden, among others, were opposed.

"My interpretation of the resolution is this," said George, referring to the Smoot Amendment, "and with this understanding I shall vote against the substitute, because I regard that as meaningless, somethink like the poetry at the head of Kipling's chapters, it has not anything to do with the real issue that has been raised here.

"We are concerning ourselves with the public morals, with the public interest, the quality of official conduct and act, the manner in which that conduct or that affects the public welfare."

The vote, 54 to 22, decided that Senator Bingham's action was "contrary to good morals and senatorial ethics and tends to bring the Senate into dishonor and disrepute, and such conduct is hereby condemned."

NOTE—Twenty years later, a Democrat, President Harry Truman, performed a great act of rehabilitation by appointing Bingham, a Republican, as chairman of the top loyalty board. Bingham had learned his lesson. He acquitted himself well.

"Flexible Flanders"

Vermont's rugged Sen. Ralph Flanders, once head of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston, who owns a thriving tool factory and has developed 29 industrial patents, good-naturedly complained that Sen. Lyndon Johnson has been pestering him.

Johnson has advised Flanders not to be too rigid, to permit some give-and-take regarding his resolution of censure against Senator McCarthy.

The persuasive senator from Texas was so persistent with the stubborn senator from Vermont that Flanders remarked to a friend: "It looks like Lying-Down Lyndon wants me to be Flexible Flanders."

Knowland Reverses

Senator Knowland's buttonholing of GOP senators to stifle the Flanders resolution has got him on something of a hot spot. For too many senators remember how, no later than February 24, Knowland announced that the Senate should abandon its present system under which senior members of committees become chairmen.

"They should be chosen, instead," Knowland said, "in accord with the policies of the majority party."

No man has bucked the majority party more than the senator from Wisconsin. He has pilloried its secretary of the army, criticized its secretary of state, set himself above the President.

Nevertheless, Knowland has now completely reversed his position of February 24 and does not even want the Senate to vote on a censure resolution by a fellow Republican.

McCarthy-Go-Round

Paul Hoffman, the Republican who rebuilt Europe as head of the Marshall Plan, has been patiently trudging round the Senate Office Building telling Republican senators they must vote against McCarthy and for the Flanders resolution . . . . Senator Potter of Michigan, who had the courage to vote against McCarthy on the firing of Roy Cohn and Don Surine, says privately he won't vote to censure McCarthy unless his GOP colleagues, Homer Ferguson of Michigan, also votes that way. Reason: Homer is up for re-election and Potter doesn't want to embarass him . . . . Senator Wiley of Wisconsin, McCarthy's colleague, plans to invoke Rule 12 during the Flanders debate and won't vote one way or the other regarding his colleague from Wisconsin. Rule 12 permits a senator from the same state to avoid taking a stand on a colleague. Wiley will abstain despite the fact he knows McCarthy is working against him behind his back.

Sound Idea Or Fraud?

By Joseph And Stewart Alsop

WASHINGTON

More and more, the soundness of the central idea of American world strategy is being challenged by events.

This idea, which used to be called "deterrent power," and is now called "massive retaliation," has really remained the same since the end of the last war. It is the idea that we can always rely—and rely almost exclusively—on our strategic air power and our absolute weapons to hold the balance true between this country and the Soviet Union.

Is this now a sound idea, or is it becoming a fraud?

It was a sound idea in the past, certainly. As Sir Winston Churchill has repeatedly said, American air-atomic power "held the pass" in the years just after the war, when Soviet conventional forces were already very strong, and the West was almost inconceivably weak.

But that was the time of the American atomic monopoly. Long ago the monopoly was broken. Before long, the danger to the United States from the Soviet Strategic Air Army will be just as great as the danger to the Soviet Union from America's SAC. The results of this revolutionary change have also been forecast by Sir Winston Churchill. Six years ago, before either Korea of Indochina, he made his prophecy:

"The question is asked," he said, "what will happen when (the Soviets) get the atomic bomb themselves." And then he answered his own question.

Kremlin Has Initiative

"You can judge yourselves what will happen by what is happening now. If these things are done in the green wood, what will be done in the dry? If the Russians can continue month after month disturbing and tormenting the world, trusting to our Christian inhibitions against using this strange new power against them, what will they do when they themselves have large quantities of atomic bombs?"

Sir Winston implied, although he did not specifically state, the most important feature of the new world situation that lies ahead.

In brief, the Kremlin has initiative, and can rely on us to stay on the defensive, both globally and locally. We are committed not to use our air-atomic power except in "retaliation." We are committed further not to launch local aggressive likes in Korea and Indochina. The Communist policy is not limited by any such commitments.

In practice, a direct and unprovoked Soviet attack on this country will continue to be unlikely, so long as we constantly maintain the certain power of devastating retaliation. But if the history of the last eight years means anything at all, it means that what one may call indirect Soviet attacks are more and more likely every day. More and bigger Koreas and Indochinas almost certainly must be expected.

To simplify the argument, let us suppose the area threatened is one that is admittedly essential to American security — say Japan or Western Germany. Suppose, further, that the threat develops three years from now, when the Soviet power to destroy this country with absolute weapons will be unquestioned. There will then be three ways our policymakers can respond to the threat.

First, they can order the Strategic Air Command to attack the Soviet Union.

But of they do this, they will have to bear in mind that the Soviet can also "massively retaliate." In fact, they will have to risk the destruction of this country to save Germany or Japan. Surely it is more likely that they will say, "We cannot risk destruction of the United States for the sake of these Germans, or these Japanese."

No Practical Policy

Second, the policymakers can hope that Soviet and American air atomic power will be sterilized, as gas was in the last war; and can order a local and limited response of the threatened area, on the pattern of the Korean War.

But if they do this, they will court early defeat. The Communist half of the world now contains approximately 430 infantry divisions, as against 17 American Army divisions, two and a half American Marine divisions, perhaps 30 other effective Western divisions in Europe, and not more than 40 other divisions on our side in the Far East. If the new weapons are ruled out, the Soviets can safely reinforce their attacks until they win the fight. Local and limited wars, against such overwhelming odds, are not practical policy.

Third, the policymakers can ignore the threat, and do nothing.

But if they do this, the industrial potential of Germany or Japan will be added to Soviet sphere. After such a victory, Soviet rule will be rapidly and inevitably extended throughout Eurasia. The United States will be left isolated, cornered, and utterly overawed by the unchallengeably superior- military-industrial power of the Kremlin.

And so you reach the logical dead end, which reveals that events have transformed the central idea of our strategy, which was once a sound idea, into a fraudulent and misleading idea.

That does not mean we need less SAC. On the contrary, in order to maintain a reasonable margin of superiority, we almost certainly need more SAC. But this need for more SAC is only part of a much greater defense emergency, which simultaneously demands a much more vigorous defense program and a sustained effort to find a more valid world strategy.

This means that the Red China government deliberately ordered the attack and hence that there was nothing accidental about the encounter with the American planes which were engaged in a mission of mercy.

There is no information as to whether the American naval authorities in Southeast Asia received word from the British in Hong Kong concerning the threat to fire on all planes except the one they specified would be immune.

Even if such word had been received, it is doubtful whether the United States Government could accept as lawful the assumption by the Red China government of authority to say what ships or planes could or could not travel the waters or the air, respectively, beyond territorial limits. The fact is the American ships were there on an errand of rescue and that the Red Chinese fliers had already killed three American citizens, including two small children, who were traveling on the British passenger airplane.

Seas Are Free

The United States historically has never yielded its view that the seas are free. The British government for many decades has firmly upheld what is known as "the freedom of the seas." Indeed, the right of armed as well as unarmed ships to approach and land on the shores of countries with which no state of war has been declared is inherent in the relations of governments in time of peace. The fact that a government is not recognized for diplomatic purposes does not mean it has a right to regard a government which denies recognition as in the same status as one that is at war.

By all the rules of international law, the Red China government has committed an act of war against the United States because the firing on American military planes was deliberate and was the result of an effort to extend authority beyond the territorial limits.

In days gone by governments which have been subjected to such an unfriendly act would not necessarily declare war but might land marines or troops in some port as a reprisal until such time as full satisfaction was granted by the offending government.

There have been some other incidents close to Siberian territorial waters when American unarmed planes engaged in weather observations have been fired upon but, presumably because no vigorous action was taken in reprisal then, the Communists in Asia evidently believe that none will ever be forthcoming.

Evidence Is Conclusive

So far as Congress is concerned, the unanimity of opinion as revealed in patriotic expressions by leaders of both parties indicates that American officials feel that public opinion will be with them if it becomes necessary to assert American rights in Southeast Asia.

The Peiping radio is filling the air waves with charges about American "aggression" in a desperate effort to confuse the issue in the court of world opinion. But the Communists admitted the first attack, and the fact that they gave orders to fire on any search planes three days later is officially revealed. So evidence of the guilt of the Peiping government is conclusive.

Baering Down On The News

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer

This stack of polished stupidity said Churchill's crack about the war-war and jaw-jaw was an individual epidemic called jabbinosis.

It is not contagious above a whisper in the reading room at the New York Library. There is no cure for it because everything you eat turns to conversation.

Jabbinosis was a word we coined in order to get out to the Polo Grounds. Where the Brooklyns were playing footsies with infield grounders.

The correct tag for the repetition of lingual acoustics is onamatomania. It means the reiteration of a word for fear of forgetting it. But there never was any danger of Winsome forgetting any of his words.

So we're holding him to the recently published statistics that the time is not mellow for the Chinese Commies to be dealt a hand from the U. N. discard.

Up until the time he cracked wisely Winnie had been as coy as a dame with a new hair dye.

Until Churchill blurbed for the back flap our Mr. Dulles has been runnning in circles like a kitten with a long tail. He was making more motions than a bear fighting bumble-bees.

Trouble with our international diplomacy is we have been gimmicking Tibetan prayer wheels. The lamas wouldn't stand for the double O.

We don't even know that the grand vizer of Persia rates three less hoss-tails than the sultan. They are still very handy in flytime.

England's Oriental policy is pretty much like chop suey. It was invented in San Francisco by a man named Gallagher. Whose first name was Ah Sing.

Enzyme Helps Develop Normal Post-Operative Scar

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Surgeons are held responsible for the type of scar that forms after an operation. The barely visible hairline mark provides good advertising and frequently is considered a sign of great skill and ability on the part of the surgeon. An ugly scar has the opposite effect. Some credit or criticism is deserving but nature plays a greater role than many individuals think. The body cells responsible for healing enter the picture and a perfect job of knitting ensues when they form just the right amount of scar tissue. Too much leaves a thick ridge and too little, a marked depression.

Now and then a scar will go haywire by growing and spreading to the immediate surrounding tissue. These lesions, known as keloids, usually protrude above the surface of the skin and are hard, shiny, and smooth except for the borders that extend outward like a claw or fringe. The color is pink or red at first but becomes darker in time, depending upon the color of the skin. The lesions look and feel rubbery and follow almost any kind of injury including bruises, cuts, tattooing, insect bites, vaccinations, or piercing of the lobes for earrings.

Scars from smallpox, shingles, and acne also may turn into keloids. Some of the largest are associated with burns, particularly when the area about joints, mouth, or eyes are involved. Cordlike bands are formed which lead to disfigurement and contractures. In some instances, the scars are so taut it is impossible to move the head, arm, or leg. No one knows why the healing cells respond in this fashion.

Surgery seldom is recommended because another keloid may form over the new scar. X-ray and radium have been tried with inconsistent results. When ACTH and cortisone were introduced initially, surgeons hoped the hormones might be helpful. These products inhibit the growth of connective tissue and for this reason might affect the size and shape of the scar. Several experiments were done but in the majority, the keloid reformed.

Injection of hyaluronidase is one of the latest remedies and early reports are encouraging. Dr. Theodore Cornbleet, of Chicago, used this enzyme in combination with X-ray and surgery, on 26 keloid victims, with success. Hyaluronidase was injected periodically into the keloid, one to three months before the lesions were removed in the operating room. As soon as the skin edges showed signs of uniting, injections were repeated and, at the same time, X-ray treatments were started. Under this plan the healing cells were held in abeyance and a normal scar developed.

TOMORROW: Biting and sucking insects.

DIVERTICULA

W. R. writes: Are pockets in the bowel dangerous?

REPLY

Not unless they become inflamed and rupture. The majority of men and women over 50 can brag about having diverticula, and these outgrowths from the colon seldom cause trouble. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on diverticulosis.

COLD SWEATS

Mrs. F. writes: What are cold sweats?

REPLY

This unscientific term is used to describe the let down feeling subsequent to a scare, fainting, or the coolness of the skin that follows the evaporation of perspiration.

BRIGHT LIGHT

G. F. writes: Is fluorescent lighting harmful to the eyes?

REPLY

No, but the light is bright and adjustments may be needed.

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

A purveyor of lottery tickets always lay in wait for wealthy Baron Rothschild and tried to talk him into buying a chance. To get rid of him, Rothschild said one day, "Here's 50 francs. Pick out any one of them." Some days later the salesman rushed up to Rothschild and gasped, "The ticket I bought for you won the grand prize—a million francs!"

"Well," said the Baron, "I suppose I'll have to reward you. Which do you prefer: 50,000 francs in cash of 15,000 a year for the rest of your life?"

"I'll take the fifty thousand," said the ticket seller without a moment's hesitation. "With your luck, I wouldn't live another six months!"

Gorgonzola Falls had seen many a hypnotist in its day, but no one to equal the Great Putzolini. The audience gasped when he selected 10 folks at random and put them into a deep trance in 17 seconds flat. "In fact," declared the flabbergasted house manager, "it was a 10-daze wonder."

Two Senators Who Vote On McCarthy Censure Also Voted In Bingham Case

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—Just two members of the current Senate were members of the 1929 Senate that took the last vote of censure against one of their own members. They are: George of Georgia and Hayden of Arizona, both Democrats.

The man they both voted as bringing "dishonor and disrepute on the Senate" exactly 25 years ago was Hiram Bingham of Connecticut who had placed Charles L. Eyanson, of the Connecticut Manufacturers Association on his Senate office staff and let him sit in a meeting of the Senate Finance Committee.

The standards of the Senate seemed considerably higher in those days than during the current debate over McCarthy of Wisconsin. One year before, the Senate had voted to expel two of its own members, Vare, of Pennsylvania, and Smith, of Illinois, for spending too much money in their election campaigns.

Senators at that time felt keenly about the prestige and dignity of the body to which they belonged.

"The view I take of the question," Senator George told the Senate, "is simply this: That the official act of each one of us has a public quality, and that act is either in the interest of the public good or it is contrary to the interest of the public. It either promotes confidence in the processes of government or it tends to weaken public confidence in the processes of government."

Senator Bingham argued eloquently in his own defense.

"No senator is to be criticized," he said, "if he chooses to place members of his family in these clerical positions—if he appoints cousins, nieces, sons or daughters.

Senator Smoot of Utah, a Republican stalwart, introduced a resolution calculated to spare Bingham somewhat. It omitted his name. But George and Hayden, among others, were opposed.

"My interpretation of the resolution is this," said George, referring to the Smoot Amendment, "and with this understanding I shall vote against the substitute, because I regard that as meaningless, somethink like the poetry at the head of Kipling's chapters, it has not anything to do with the real issue that has been raised here.

"We are concerning ourselves with the public morals, with the public interest, the quality of official conduct and act, the manner in which that conduct or that affects the public welfare."

The vote, 54 to 22, decided that Senator Bingham's action was "contrary to good morals and senatorial ethics and tends to bring the Senate into dishonor and disrepute, and such conduct is hereby condemned."

NOTE—Twenty years later, a Democrat, President Harry Truman, performed a great act of rehabilitation by appointing Bingham, a Republican, as chairman of the top loyalty board. Bingham had learned his lesson. He acquitted himself well.

"Flexible Flanders"

Vermont's rugged Sen. Ralph Flanders, once head of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston, who owns a thriving tool factory and has developed 29 industrial patents, good-naturedly complained that Sen. Lyndon Johnson has been pestering him.

Johnson has advised Flanders not to be too rigid, to permit some give-and-take regarding his resolution of censure against Senator McCarthy.

The persuasive senator from Texas was so persistent with the stubborn senator from Vermont that Flanders remarked to a friend: "It looks like Lying-Down Lyndon wants me to be Flexible Flanders."

Knowland Reverses

Senator Knowland's buttonholing of GOP senators to stifle the Flanders resolution has got him on something of a hot spot. For too many senators remember how, no later than February 24, Knowland announced that the Senate should abandon its present system under which senior members of committees become chairmen.

"They should be chosen, instead," Knowland said, "in accord with the policies of the majority party."

No man has bucked the majority party more than the senator from Wisconsin. He has pilloried its secretary of the army, criticized its secretary of state, set himself above the President.

Nevertheless, Knowland has now completely reversed his position of February 24 and does not even want the Senate to vote on a censure resolution by a fellow Republican.

McCarthy-Go-Round

Paul Hoffman, the Republican who rebuilt Europe as head of the Marshall Plan, has been patiently trudging round the Senate Office Building telling Republican senators they must vote against McCarthy and for the Flanders resolution . . . . Senator Potter of Michigan, who had the courage to vote against McCarthy on the firing of Roy Cohn and Don Surine, says privately he won't vote to censure McCarthy unless his GOP colleagues, Homer Ferguson of Michigan, also votes that way. Reason: Homer is up for re-election and Potter doesn't want to embarass him . . . . Senator Wiley of Wisconsin, McCarthy's colleague, plans to invoke Rule 12 during the Flanders debate and won't vote one way or the other regarding his colleague from Wisconsin. Rule 12 permits a senator from the same state to avoid taking a stand on a colleague. Wiley will abstain despite the fact he knows McCarthy is working against him behind his back.

Sound Idea Or Fraud?

By Joseph And Stewart Alsop

WASHINGTON

More and more, the soundness of the central idea of American world strategy is being challenged by events.

This idea, which used to be called "deterrent power," and is now called "massive retaliation," has really remained the same since the end of the last war. It is the idea that we can always rely—and rely almost exclusively—on our strategic air power and our absolute weapons to hold the balance true between this country and the Soviet Union.

Is this now a sound idea, or is it becoming a fraud?

It was a sound idea in the past, certainly. As Sir Winston Churchill has repeatedly said, American air-atomic power "held the pass" in the years just after the war, when Soviet conventional forces were already very strong, and the West was almost inconceivably weak.

But that was the time of the American atomic monopoly. Long ago the monopoly was broken. Before long, the danger to the United States from the Soviet Strategic Air Army will be just as great as the danger to the Soviet Union from America's SAC. The results of this revolutionary change have also been forecast by Sir Winston Churchill. Six years ago, before either Korea of Indochina, he made his prophecy:

"The question is asked," he said, "what will happen when (the Soviets) get the atomic bomb themselves." And then he answered his own question.

Kremlin Has Initiative

"You can judge yourselves what will happen by what is happening now. If these things are done in the green wood, what will be done in the dry? If the Russians can continue month after month disturbing and tormenting the world, trusting to our Christian inhibitions against using this strange new power against them, what will they do when they themselves have large quantities of atomic bombs?"

Sir Winston implied, although he did not specifically state, the most important feature of the new world situation that lies ahead.

In brief, the Kremlin has initiative, and can rely on us to stay on the defensive, both globally and locally. We are committed not to use our air-atomic power except in "retaliation." We are committed further not to launch local aggressive likes in Korea and Indochina. The Communist policy is not limited by any such commitments.

In practice, a direct and unprovoked Soviet attack on this country will continue to be unlikely, so long as we constantly maintain the certain power of devastating retaliation. But if the history of the last eight years means anything at all, it means that what one may call indirect Soviet attacks are more and more likely every day. More and bigger Koreas and Indochinas almost certainly must be expected.

To simplify the argument, let us suppose the area threatened is one that is admittedly essential to American security — say Japan or Western Germany. Suppose, further, that the threat develops three years from now, when the Soviet power to destroy this country with absolute weapons will be unquestioned. There will then be three ways our policymakers can respond to the threat.

First, they can order the Strategic Air Command to attack the Soviet Union.

But if they do this, they will have to bear in mind that the Soviet can also "massively retaliate." In fact, they will have to risk the destruction of this country to save Germany or Japan. Surely it is more likely that they will say, "We cannot risk destruction of the United States for the sake of these Germans, or these Japanese."

No Practical Policy

Second, the policymakers can hope that Soviet and American air atomic power will be sterilized, as gas was in the last war; and can order a local and limited response of the threatened area, on the pattern of the Korean War.

But if they do this, they will court early defeat. The Communist half of the world now contains approximately 430 infantry divisions, as against 17 American Army divisions, two and a half American Marine divisions, perhaps 30 other effective Western divisions in Europe, and not more than 40 other divisions on our side in the Far East. If the new weapons are ruled out, the Soviets can safely reinforce their attacks until they win the fight. Local and limited wars, against such overwhelming odds, are not practical policy.

Third, the policymakers can ignore the threat, and do nothing.

But if they do this, the industrial potential of Germany or Japan will be added to Soviet sphere. After such a victory, Soviet rule will be rapidly and inevitably extended throughout Eurasia. The United States will be left isolated, cornered, and utterly overawed by the unchallengeably superior- military-industrial power of the Kremlin.

And so you reach the logical dead end, which reveals that events have transformed the central idea of our strategy, which was once a sound idea, into a fraudulent and misleading idea.

That does not mean we need less SAC. On the contrary, in order to maintain a reasonable margin of superiority, we almost certainly need more SAC. But this need for more SAC is only part of a much greater defense emergency, which simultaneously demands a much more vigorous defense program and a sustained effort to find a more valid world strategy.

Wisconsin GOP Chairman Sees New Drive To Unseat McCarthy Unsuccessful

MILWAUKEE, July 29 (AP)—Any renewed effort to unseat Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) "probably will flop like the last one," Robert L. Pierce, Wisconsin Republican chairman, declared today.

Pierce commented on an announcement in Washington by Leroy Gore, Wisconsin editor who heads the "Joe Must Go" club, that another recall drive against McCarthy would be staged after the November elections.

Pierce said Gore "has basked in the sunlight of publicity so long he probably likes it."

Harold Michael of Amery, president of the Joe Must Go club founded by Gore, said he approves of any new effort to unseat McCarthy.

And Sauk County Dist. Atty. Harlan Kelley, who has instigated legal action against Gore and the club in connection with the first—and unsuccessful — McCarthy recall drive, declared he would never interfere with anyone's constitutional right to recall any elected official. "But I will insist that right be exercised according to the law," he said.

Pierce stated he would have more confidence in Gore, who says he has long been a Republican, if the Sauk City editor would permit "an unbiased person" to count the signatures obtained on McCarthy recall petitions in the recent drive. The Joe Must Go club needed about 405,000 signatures; Gore said in excess of 300,000 were obtained.

"I doubt that he even had 100,000 signatures," Pierce said. "But let him have his fun. He never had it so good since he started his recall efforts."

State Democratic Chairman Elliot Walstead said state Democrats still believe the best way to unseat McCarthy is to defeat the "extreme right wing Republican machine which fosters him in Wisconsin."

"After the November election will be time enough to concern ourselves with the recall movement," Walstead declared.

Kelley has attempted to obtain the recall petitions from Gore to check the validity of the signatures and also has filed a 21-count criminal information against the Joe Must Go club, alleging it was a corporation which violated state law by contributing to a political campaign. Last week Circuit Judge Bruce Beilfuss ruled that he had no jurisdiction to order Gore to turn over the petitions to Kelley and the judge took under advisement a motion for dismissal of the criminal information.

State Considers Request To Modify McCoole Road

Westernport Council Urges Change In Plan

WESTERNPORT—A reply to a letter sent to the State Road Commission was read by Joseph Sullivan, acting city clerk, at the meeting of Mayor Okey E. Michael and City Commissioners Wednesday night.

The Town had asked that some revision be made in the plans of the work on the Westernport-McCoole Road just east of here.

The letter, read by the city clerk from Russell H. McCain, chairman, stated that the town's letter had been referred to the State Roads Chief Engineer for his consideration and direct reply to the town.

A payment of $500 was ordered made on the note of the fire truck of Potomac Fire Company.

The fire company was granted permission to use part of the hallway of the city building to put its hose drier but at any time the town needs that part of the building the drier will be removed.

The fire company is to assume expense of taking out a partition which separates the hall and engine room.

The town is asking sealed bids for the house on Front Street formerly occupied by Mrs. May Adams. The purchaser is to raze the house. All bids must be in by August 11.

After the building is torn down the town will erect a one story structure for use as a garage and warehouse. Work is expected to begin on it in September.

Mayor Michael stated that he had received several requests to lighten the water restrictions of persons not being able to use their water hose from 4 to 8 each evening.

Since this order was issued their has been some improvement in the water situation the Mayor states but no changes will be made at this time.

The property owners on Hill Street will confer with the Mayor and Commissioners and Philip Harig, civil engineer in the Council Chamber at 7 p. m. Wednesday, August 4, relative to a survey being made.

Women's Auxiliary Holds Box Supper At St. George's Church

MT. SAVAGE — The Women's Auxiliary of St. George's Episcopal Church held a box supper exchange at the newly constructed barbecue in the churchyard Monday evening. After the supper a business meeting was held and the group voted $500 to the organ fund.

Following the business meeting the group was entertained with an organ recital by the Rev. G. Willard Wilson, rector of St. James Church, Westernport. Fr. Wilson played "Air for the G. String" and a special arrangement of "Passion Chorale" by Bach.

State Considers Request To Modify McCoole Road

Westernport Council Urges Change In Plan

WESTERNPORT—A reply to a letter sent to the State Road Commission was read by Joseph Sullivan, acting city clerk, at the meeting of Mayor Okey E. Michael and City Commissioners Wednesday night.

The Town had asked that some revision be made in the plans of the work on the Westernport-McCoole Road just east of here.

The letter, read by the city clerk from Russell H. McCain, chairman, stated that the town's letter had been referred to the State Roads Chief Engineer for his consideration and direct reply to the town.

A payment of $500 was ordered made on the note of the fire truck of Potomac Fire Company.

The fire company was granted permission to use part of the hallway of the city building to put its hose drier but at any time the town needs that part of the building the drier will be removed.

The fire company is to assume expense of taking out a partition which separates the hall and engine room.

The town is asking sealed bids for the house on Front Street formerly occupied by Mrs. May Adams. The purchaser is to raze the house. All bids must be in by August 11.

After the building is torn down the town will erect a one story structure for use as a garage and warehouse. Work is expected to begin on it in September.

Mayor Michael stated that he had received several requests to lighten the water restrictions of persons not being able to use their water hose from 4 to 8 each evening.

Since this order was issued their has been some improvement in the water situation the Mayor states but no changes will be made at this time.

The property owners on Hill Street will confer with the Mayor and Commissioners and Philip Harig, civil engineer in the Council Chamber at 7 p. m. Wednesday, August 4, relative to a survey being made.

Fifty Keyser Children To Attend Circus

Kiwanis Club To Sponsor Group

KEYSER—The Keyser Kiwanis Club will send approximately 50 underprivileged children to Cumberland next Monday to see the three ring circus, being brought there by the Exchange Club of Cumberland to raise funds to assist in the program for the brace clinic of Allegany County League of Crippled Children.

The Exchange Club sent a representative here Tuesday and presented 50 complimentary tickets for the circus to be used only by under-privileged children, the Keyser Club's project here. The result was that Keyser Kiwanians at their picnic meeting Wednesday evening turned the tickets and the work of selecting under-privileged children over to the standing committee on that project. Thursday a bus was hired with a driver, and Miss Madalyn Bazzle, principal at the Limestone Elementary School was contacted and the head of the Methodist Children's Home at Burlington was contacted and enough children, considered in the underprivileged class were secured. This group will be taken to the circus by experienced escorts.

The tickets for the purpose were made possible for the purchase of blocks of tickets by Cumberland merchants. Some of these children from Keyser have never seen a circus, and only a few have seen any kind of similar attractions. The underprivileged children committee for Keyser Kiwanis Club is under direction of Paris Smith, local business man.

Eagles vs. Moose (Fort Hill)

Vern Penner's mighty home run blast to deep right field in the 7th and final inning with two mates aboard gave the Cumberland Outdoor Club a 3-2 decision over the Fraternal Order of Eagles in a Rocking Chair Softball League thriller yesterday at Campobello.

Al Sheetz was headed for a 2-0 victory until the last of the 7th when Ted Durbin beat out an infield hit, Cook flied to short, Manager Cecil Grimes drew a pass and then Penner teed off for his sixth round-tripper of the season giving Charley Day the verdict over Sheetz in a neat mound duel. The win was the 11th for Day against four losses. Sheetz now owns a 9-3 record. All of Sheetz's defeats were at the hands of the Outdoor Club.

The Eagles scored two unearned runs in the third on a hit coupled with two errors.

"Shorty" Brown accounted for two of the six hits made by the Eagles.

The Knights of Columbus suffered their second straight shutout defeat when the Elks downed the cellarites at Stitcher Field, 7-0. It was the 18th loss in a row for the Knights.

Bill Underdonk, relieved by Jim Gaffney in the 5th, posted his eighth win of the campaign. Gaffney garnered three hits and Bruce Mackey, playing his first game of the season for the Elks, slammed a homer and two-bagger. Donald Palmer garnered two hits for the K. of C., while Don Harden, centerfielder, and Shortstop Ronald Palmer excelled in the field.

Yesterday's win gave the Outdoor Club a one-game lead over the Loyal Order of Moose who will play off a postponed game with the Eagles today at 6 p. m. at Fort Hill.

Corky Valentine Beats Phils, 3-0

PHILADELPHIA, July 29 (AP) — Corky Valentine pitched a four-hitter, hit a pair of doubles and a single, and scored two runs tonight as the Cincinnati Redlegs beat the Philadelphia Phillies 3-0.

The Phillies started out with a bang against Rookie Valentine but fizzled out quickly. Earl Torgeson and Smoky Burgess singled in that frame but the rally ended as Gran Hamner flied out. The only other hits off Corky were a single by Del Ennis in the seventh and a safe bunt by Richie Ashburn in the eighth.

The Cincinnati righthander, who got his eighth win against nine losses, helped the Redlegs move into a tie with the St. Louis Cardinals for fourth spot in the National League.

Cubs Conquer Dodgers, 6-5

Reliefer Jeffcoat Saves Game In 9th

BROOKLYN, July 29 (AP)—Brooklyn's belated ninth inning rally fell one run short today as relief pitcher Hal Jeffcoat came in to dispose of pinch hitter George Shuba for the final out to leave the bases loaded and preserve the Chicago Cubs' 6-5 victory.

The Dodgers, encouraged by the posting of the final result on the scoreboard showing that St. Louis had just beaten New York, tried desperately to pull the game out of the fire in the ninth. Instead the defeat snapped the Dodgers' five-game winning streak and prevented them from gaining on the Giants whose lead remained at two games.

The Cubs, although outhit 11 to eight, to an early 6-2 lead, made possible by Hank Sauer's 30th home run and Ernie Banks' 12th with two mates aboard.

Frank Wolfhope Named To Direct Fair Aug. 23-28

Frank A. Wolfhope, vice president, will direct the Cumberland Fair to be held August 23-28, it was announced last night following a meeting of the executive board of the Cumberland Fair Association headed by United States Senator J. Glenn Beall.

Wolfhope, who has been connected with the Fair Association since 1938 and is now vice president and auditor, replaces Edgar H. "Buck" Reynolds, general manager of the association who with Mrs. Reynolds met death when the car in which they were riding was struck on the B. & O. crossing near Fairgo on Monday.

Reynolds and Wolfhope had worked together for several years in making arrangements for the race meets and fairs and association officials decided the latter was fully qualified to take over as director of the 1954 fair.

Athletics Drop Pair To Detroit

DETROIT, July 29 (AP)—Southpaw Billy Hoeft, who failed nine straight times to win a game at home, busted that jinx today and pitched the Detroit Tigers to a 7-3 victory over the Philadelphia A's in the second game of a doubleheader.

The Tigers also captured the opener 4-2 behind George Zuverink, and the sweep moved them into fourth place, two percentage points ahead of the Washington Senators.

Hoeft's victory was only his fifth of the season, compared to 11 losses.

Hoeft, who permitted eight hits in all, was behind 3-0 going into the bottom of the third. Philadelphia's lead was quickly erased when Bob Nieman hit a 420-foot bases loaded home run, following a walk to Hoeft and singles by Harvey Kuenn and Bill Tuttle.

Durocher Yanks Whitey Lockman After Argument

NEW YORK, July 29 (INS) — Tempers flared on the bench of the slumping New York Giants today and there was an argument between Leo Durocher and first baseman Whitey Lockman.

Durocher angrily took Lockman out of the game when Whitey grounded to Joe Cunningham at first for the last out of the fifth inning as the Cardinals were beating the Giants, 8 to 0.

Durocher apparently bawled Lockman out for not running out his grounder. Lockman flared back at Leo and a towel was flung on the steps of the dugout.

St. Louis manager Ed Stankey yelled across the diamond:

"Tell him off, Whitey."

Eagles vs. Moose (Fort Hill)

Vern Penner's mighty home run blast to deep right field in the 7th and final inning with two mates aboard gave the Cumberland Outdoor Club a 3-2 decision over the Fraternal Order of Eagles in a Rocking Chair Softball League thriller yesterday at Campobello.

Al Sheetz was headed for a 2-0 victory until the last of the 7th when Ted Durbin beat out an infield hit, Cook flied to short, Manager Cecil Grimes drew a pass and then Penner teed off for his sixth round-tripper of the season giving Charley Day the verdict over Sheetz in a neat mound duel. The win was the 11th for Day against four losses. Sheetz now owns a 9-3 record. All of Sheetz's defeats were at the hands of the Outdoor Club.

The Eagles scored two unearned runs in the third on a hit coupled with two errors.

"Shorty" Brown accounted for two of the six hits made by the Eagles.

The Knights of Columbus suffered their second straight shutout defeat when the Elks downed the cellarites at Stitcher Field, 7-0. It was the 18th loss in a row for the Knights.

Bill Underdonk, relieved by Jim Gaffney in the 5th, posted his eighth win of the campaign. Gaffney garnered three hits and Bruce Mackey, playing his first game of the season for the Elks, slammed a homer and two-bagger. Donald Palmer garnered two hits for the K. of C., while Don Harden, centerfielder, and Shortstop Ronald Palmer excelled in the field.

Yesterday's win gave the Outdoor Club a one-game lead over the Loyal Order of Moose who will play off a postponed game with the Eagles today at 6 p. m. at Fort Hill.

Corky Valentine Beats Phils, 3-0

PHILADELPHIA, July 29 (AP) — Corky Valentine pitched a four-hitter, hit a pair of doubles and a single, and scored two runs tonight as the Cincinnati Redlegs beat the Philadelphia Phillies 3-0.

The Phillies started out with a bang against Rookie Valentine but fizzled out quickly. Earl Torgeson and Smoky Burgess singled in that frame but the rally ended as Gran Hamner flied out. The only other hits off Corky were a single by Del Ennis in the seventh and a safe bunt by Richie Ashburn in the eighth.

The Cincinnati righthander, who got his eighth win against nine losses, helped the Redlegs move into a tie with the St. Louis Cardinals for fourth spot in the National League.

Cubs Conquer Dodgers, 6-5

Reliefer Jeffcoat Saves Game In 9th

BROOKLYN, July 29 (AP)—Brooklyn's belated ninth inning rally fell one run short today as relief pitcher Hal Jeffcoat came in to dispose of pinch hitter George Shuba for the final out to leave the bases loaded and preserve the Chicago Cubs' 6-5 victory.

The Dodgers, encouraged by the posting of the final result on the scoreboard showing that St. Louis had just beaten New York, tried desperately to pull the game out of the fire in the ninth. Instead the defeat snapped the Dodgers' five-game winning streak and prevented them from gaining on the Giants whose lead remained at two games.

The Cubs, although outhit 11 to eight, to an early 6-2 lead, made possible by Hank Sauer's 30th home run and Ernie Banks' 12th with two mates aboard.

Frank Wolfhope Named To Direct Fair Aug. 23-28

Frank A. Wolfhope, vice president, will direct the Cumberland Fair to be held August 23-28, it was announced last night following a meeting of the executive board of the Cumberland Fair Association headed by United States Senator J. Glenn Beall.

Wolfhope, who has been connected with the Fair Association since 1938 and is now vice president and auditor, replaces Edgar H. "Buck" Reynolds, general manager of the association who with Mrs. Reynolds met death when the car in which they were riding was struck on the B. & O. crossing near Fairgo on Monday.

Reynolds and Wolfhope had worked together for several years in making arrangements for the race meets and fairs and association officials decided the latter was fully qualified to take over as director of the 1954 fair.

Athletics Drop Pair To Detroit

DETROIT, July 29 (AP)—Southpaw Billy Hoeft, who failed nine straight times to win a game at home, busted that jinx today and pitched the Detroit Tigers to a 7-3 victory over the Philadelphia A's in the second game of a doubleheader.

The Tigers also captured the opener 4-2 behind George Zuverink, and the sweep moved them into fourth place, two percentage points ahead of the Washington Senators.

Hoeft's victory was only his fifth of the season, compared to 11 losses.

Hoeft, who permitted eight hits in all, was behind 3-0 going into the bottom of the third. Philadelphia's lead was quickly erased when Bob Nieman hit a 420-foot bases loaded home run, following a walk to Hoeft and singles by Harvey Kuenn and Bill Tuttle.

Durocher Yanks Whitey Lockman After Argument

NEW YORK, July 29 (INS) — Tempers flared on the bench of the slumping New York Giants today and there was an argument between Leo Durocher and first baseman Whitey Lockman.

Durocher angrily took Lockman out of the game when Whitey grounded to Joe Cunningham at first for the last out of the fifth inning as the Cardinals were beating the Giants, 8 to 0.

Durocher apparently bawled Lockman out for not running out his grounder. Lockman flared back at Leo and a towel was flung on the steps of the dugout.

St. Louis manager Ed Stankey yelled across the diamond:

"Tell him off, Whitey."

Yankees Crush White Sox, 10-0; Bosox Whip Cleveland, 10-2

Chicago Is Held To Four Blows By Lefty Ford

Southpaw Wins 10th, New York Now Trails Tribe By 1½ Games

CHICAGO, July 29 (AP) — Lefty Whitey Ford throttled the slipping Chicago White Sox on four scattered hits today and the New York Yankees backed him with a 13-hit barrage and three big innings for a 10-0 whitewash. The decision gave the New Yorkers the series 2-1, and brought them 1½ games away from league-leading Cleveland, beaten 10-2 by Boston today.

Ford, the first Yankee pitcher to go the route in six games, collected his 10th triumph against six setbacks. He boosted his season record over the White Sox to 3-1 in blanking them for the second time.

The little southpaw struck out three and walked four while yielding a pair of singles to Minnie Minoso, another to Johnny Groth and a triple to Jim Rivera.

The Yankees wasted no time giving him support, piling up four runs off as many hits in the second to shell Jack Harshman, first of four Sox pitchers, and dishearten 22,995 Comiskey Park fans. Harshman absorbed his sixth loss against seven wins.

After Don Johnson had been lifted for a pinch hitter in the second, Harry Dorish checked the world champions with one hit until the fifth. In this inning they pelted him for three singles and a double for three more runs.

Stobbs Blanks Orioles, 6-0

BALTIMORE, July 29 (AP) — The Washington Senators chased Baltimore's rookie bonus lefthander Bill O'Dell in the initial inning of his first major league game today, then coasted to a 6-0 triumph behind Chuck Stobbs' five-hit pitching.

The 25-year-old Senator southpaw chalked up his fourth straight victory, bringing his won-loss mark all even at 6-6 for the season.

Young Shows Class In Colts' Workout

WESTMINSTER, Md., July 29 (AP) —Veteran Buddy Young, slimmed down and still speedy, snagged three touchdown passes today as the Baltimore Colts ran through an aerial scrimmage at their training camp.

The 173-pound halfback, playing at his lightest weight in several years, simply outran defenders to grab the passes of quarterbacks Gary Kerkorian and Fred Enke.

Jackie Jensen Hits Two Home Runs For Sox

Williams Also Belts Four-Bagger As Kiely Scores Over Feller

CLEVELAND, July 29 (AP)—Jackie Jensen drove in six runs with two homers and a single today as Boston's Red Sox thumped the league-leading Cleveland Indians, 10-2.

The loss, coupled with New York's victory over Chicago, cut the Tribe's lead to 1½ games.

Jensen, next man up, then collected his 15th round trip.

His 16th came in the sixth after Jim Piersall singled and Williams walked.

Jensen accounted for his other two runs in the second, hitting safely after Piersall singled, Billy Goodman doubled and Williams was walked to fill the bases.

Bob Feller, after his ninth victory, was driven from the mound by that outbreak. It was the aging fireball pitcher's second loss.

Southpaw Leo Kiely went all the way for the Red Sox, posting his fifth victory against six defeats as Boston won its second victory in 17 games with the Tribe. Kiely allowed seven hits, including an eighth-inning homer by Bob Avila.

Cleveland's other run was in the fifth when Al Smith tripled after Sam Dente had been walked. The other two Boston runs were in the seventh and eighth.

Chicago Is Held To Four Blows By Lefty Ford

Southpaw Wins 10th, New York Now Trails Tribe By 1½ Games

CHICAGO, July 29 (AP) — Lefty Whitey Ford throttled the slipping Chicago White Sox on four scattered hits today and the New York Yankees backed him with a 13-hit barrage and three big innings for a 10-0 whitewash. The decision gave the New Yorkers the series 2-1, and brought them 1½ games away from league-leading Cleveland, beaten 10-2 by Boston today.

Ford, the first Yankee pitcher to go the route in six games, collected his 10th triumph against six setbacks. He boosted his season record over the White Sox to 3-1 in blanking them for the second time.

The little southpaw struck out three and walked four while yielding a pair of singles to Minnie Minoso, another to Johnny Groth and a triple to Jim Rivera.

The Yankees wasted no time giving him support, piling up four runs off as many hits in the second to shell Jack Harshman, first of four Sox pitchers, and dishearten 22,995 Comiskey Park fans. Harshman absorbed his sixth loss against seven wins.

After Don Johnson had been lifted for a pinch hitter in the second, Harry Dorish checked the world champions with one hit until the fifth. In this inning they pelted him for three singles and a double for three more runs.

Dick Strahs, rookie righthander, held the Yankees scoreless from the sixth until the ninth when a four-hit explosion netted three more runs.

Young Shows Class In Colts' Workout

WESTMINSTER, Md., July 29 (AP) —Veteran Buddy Young, slimmed down and still speedy, snagged three touchdown passes today as the Baltimore Colts ran through an aerial scrimmage at their training camp.

The 173-pound halfback, playing at his lightest weight in several years, simply outran defenders to grab the passes of quarterbacks Gary Kerkorian and Fred Enke.

Jackie Jensen Hits Two Home Runs For Sox

Williams Also Belts Four-Bagger As Kiely Scores Over Feller

CLEVELAND, July 29 (AP)-Jackie Jensen drove in six runs with two homers and a single today as Boston's Red Sox thumped the league-leading Cleveland Indians, 10-2.

The loss, coupled with New York's victory over Chicago, cut the Tribe's lead to 1½ games.

Jensen, next man up, then collected his 15th round trip.

Jensen accounted for his other two runs in the second, hitting safely after Piersall singled, Billy Goodman doubled and Williams was walked to fill the bases.

Bob Feller, after his ninth victory, was driven from the mound by that outbreak. It was the aging fireball pitcher's second loss.

Southpaw Leo Kiely went all the way for the Red Sox, posting his fifth victory against six defeats as Boston won its second victory in 17 games with the Tribe. Kiely allowed seven hits, including an eighth-inning homer by Bob Avila.

Cleveland's other run was in the fifth when Al Smith tripled after Sam Dente had been walked. The other two Boston runs were in the seventh and eighth.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Dorothy Manners

(Substituting for vacationing Louella Parsons)

HOLLYWOOD, July 29 (INS)—Claudette Colbert, who hasn't appeared before a Hollywood camera in three years, returns to the fold and at the same time makes her TV debut on film in "Magic Formula" for Ford Theatre's Screen Gems.

August 16 is the date set for Claudette to report on the Columbia lot for this original written by Marianne Mosner and which Michel Kraike will produce.

No doubt Kraike had more than a little to do with the return of Colbert. He directed her years ago in "Thunder On the Hill."

In "Magic Formula" she plays a movie star, so successful and so self-sufficient she almost loses her husband.

Mickey Rooney couldn't have hit on a better movie idea for himself than "The Life Story of Johnny Longden," and the Mick should fit into the role of the veteran hard-riding jockey as easily as he could slip into a pair of Johnny's satin riding pants.

The deal was closed today whereby Mickey will star in the Longden yarn, producing the film under the banner of his independent setup at the Republic Studios.

In addition to being one of the best jockeys, Longden is also one of the richest. He's had his slumps—but there are still millions of fans plunking down their two dollars with confidence that Johnny will boot 'em home every time he rides.

Number three is coming up for Cyd Charisse and Gene Kelly. The third appearance of the dancers together will be "In Missouri" for Arthur Freed, who also guided them in "Singin' In the Rain" and "Brigadoon."

Cyd will look very pretty in the pantaloons and bonnets of a southern belle of the Mark Twain days along the Mississippi in "In Missouri." The choreography will be designed by her co-star, Gene.

Arthur Freed takes his MGM musical down south in mid-November to start shooting up and down the Mississippi.

'Miss Utah'

MAURINE PARKER, 18, of Ogden, wears her crown after winning the title "Miss Utah" to represent the state at the "Miss America" contest in Atlantic City, N. J. She is 5 feet 6, weighs 123, and has 35 bust and hips plus a 23 waist.

It was a bad day on "Bad Day At Black Rock" at Lone Pine—a very bad day, indeed, for Art Graff, a very surprised hobo who made the fatal error of selecting the rods of the train being used by the movie company—and rode right into the arms of questioning police!

"Cheez—I thought I had the train to Chicago," quoth the unhappy gentleman of the road as Spencer Tracy and other actors in the company gathered around to listen to his tale of woe.

"And, I not only picks up the wrong train," he wailed, "but where did they turn on this heat?" It was 114 in the shade—if you could find any.

If you are interested in the further adventures of Art—no, he didn't wind up with an extra job in the movies, no one discovered him for fame. After the police found him "clean" he just ambled on down the road.

His worried friends will be glad to learn that Leland Hayward's collapse while lunching on the terrace at the Bel Air Hotel was not a heart attack. His doctors say it is an intestinal infection and he's coming along in good shape at the Good Samaritan Hospital.

The first person at Leland's side while they were still working over him at the hotel was Danny Kaye. Slim Hayward was in San Francisco with Mary Martin—but she's been constantly at the side of her husband since her return.

Hollywood in shorts:

Jane Wyman returned from her "Magnificent Obsession" tour with a sprained rib. Doesn't know where or how she got it.

Frances Langford and Gloria De Haven went AWOL from their own shows in Las Vegas to sneak a look at Mae West's fabulous first night at the Sahara.

While we're in Las Vegas, Dick Contino, who bowed into the Flamingo last night, has 11 weeks of solid bookings.

Glenda Farrell and her husband, Dr. Henry Ross, gave a beautiful party for Harriet Parsons at their summer home in Brewster, New York. Among the diners under umbrellas in the garden and by the pool were Vivienne Segal and Hub Robinson, Jack Lawrence and other New Yorkers complimenting Harriet on her very funny comedy, "Susan Slept Here."

Cute Natalie Wood at the House of Murphy with Rad Fulton, who sounds like a Henry Willson discovery—and is.

When Esther Williams and Ben Gage take out their nightclub act in September, her family will take turns baby-sitting with the Gage children. The kids meet up with Mamma and Papa on their last lap in Las Vegas.

Hear Tony Curtis' expert hoofing is so great in "So This Is Paris" it'll have you applauding. When co-star Gene Nelson gifted Tony with bronzed dancing shoes to "Twinkletoes," Tony darn near cried—just as if it was an oscar.

Constance Dowling (Mrs. Ivan Tors) expects her baby momentarily.

That's all.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Do you unconsciously hold your breath while a singer prolongs a note? Try it, next time you are listening to a great artist. You'll probably gasp long before he pauses for breath! His secret, of course, is years of training.

Breath control should be as important to you as to the singer. Audibility and the tone and flow of your voice depend on your ability to control your breath correctly.

The way you breathe probably seeems quite natural, as you think about it now. But the breathing habits you may have acquired unconsciously are not necessarily natural or correct.

Test Control

For example, are you guilty of taking short breaths? Jerky gasps of air? Then your voice probably sounds nervous, your phrasing abrupt. Certainly not poised!

To test your breath control, place your hands over the lower portion of your rib cage with your thumbs hugging your waist, your middle fingers just touching. Take a full, deep breath through your mouth, hold it for a second, then exhale slowly.

Did your middle fingers part company as you inhaled, and meet again as you exhaled? If you were breathing correctly, they did. No? Then you really have to practice so that good breathing comes naturally.

Here is an exercise my voice consultant considers a number one breath controller: place your hands over your lower rib cage as above. Take a full breath through your mouth and hold for a count of five. Then exhale quickly, keeping your chest high but absolutely still. If you passed the previous test for breath control, do this exercise 10 times a day; if your test performance wasn't up to par, perform the exercises at least 20 times daily.

During the exercise, be sure to hold the chest still. No movement should be apparent in the torso except the expanding and collapsing in the lower rib area. Can you do it?

Voice Improvement

You'll find many exercises such as this—for improving your voice—in my booklet, "Your Most Attractive Voice!" By following my instructions, you will cause lovely qualities which exist in your voice to emerge, and any unattractive qualities present to disappear.

Everyone likes to hear a warm, flexible voice. It is within your reach and worth your attainment, for by improving your speaking voice you will add a major attraction to your charm.

YOUR MOST ATTRACTIVE VOICE

You can achieve an appealing, resonant, sonorous voice — one that can be a vibrant attribute to charm and success — by reading the new booklet, YOUR MOST ATTRACTIVE VOICE, which gives complete instructions on how to overcome such wearisome speaking qualities as tonelessness, dullness, and lack of proper modulation. Write to Secrets of Charm in care of this newspaper, enclosing 10c in coin, plus stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Would-Be Plumbers Boning Up For Unique Examination

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON, July 29 (AP)—All over the nation today a select group of bright young men are boning up for a unique examination.

They're nailing down the answers to such questions as:

1. Explain the use of the psychrometer. How is it used?

2. What relationship exists between friction of liquids flowing in pipes and the velocity of the flow?

These bright young men aren't studying to be atomic scientists. They're merely getting ready to be plumbers and pipe fitters.

And 66 of the brightest—those who have survived city and regional tests—will compete in the final annual apprentice contest at Purdue University Aug. 10-12.

The top prizes: $1,000 each for the No. 1 apprentice plumber and the No. 1 apprentice pipe fitter. In addition to the written tests, they'll also have to show they know how to handle pipe.

When your reporter heard about the test, he hustled around to see Martin P. Durkin, president of the AFL Plumbers and Pipe Fitters Union and the man who was President Eisenhower's first Secretary of Labor.

While Durkin was in office, he usually was referred to as a plumber. Belatedly, let's clear up that long standing error.

"I'm a pipe fitter myself," Durkin said.

During the next hour, these additional facts were picked up:

It takes longer (five years), and sometimes costs more, to make a plumber or pipe fitter than it does to produce a college graduate.

The first enameled bathtub was made in this country in 1870. There's no point in bragging of it, though. The ancient Egyptians and Assyrians knew all about enameling bricks, and came up with some fancy jobs, too.

The industry is joining the union in sponsoring the contest, and Durkin says the employers are as enthusiastic as he is. He's thinking about setting up boards of education to make sure that each apprentice gets the proper training and understands the theory behind his operations.

Boston had the nation's first water works system. Hollowed hemlock logs were used for pipes.

Atomic energy plants wouldn't be possible without pipe fitters. There were 12,500 of them at Oak Ridge, Tenn., alone.

Old Rome had them, too. Plumbers, that is. Its sanitary worker was called a "plumbarious," because he worked with pipe and "plumbum" was the word for lead. The Romans made lead pipe 10 feet long in 15 standard sizes.

Anyone still worried about the questions posed at the start of this item will now have his problems solved. A psychrometer is a device for determining relative humidity and dew point temperature, and the friction of liquids flowing in pipes increases as the square of the velocity.

In view of the hundreds of questions with equally baffling answers, Durkin was asked how he thought he'd make out on the test.

The plumbers' No. 1 pipe fitter neatly sidestepped the question.

"I've been away from the bench," he said, "for a long time."

Maryland Farmer's Cow Trapped In Silo

NEW WINDSOR, Md., July 29 (AP)—Whitie, 7-year-old Holstein cow belonging to Stanley Simons, got stuck tonight in a silo on the Simons farm near Medford.

Simons said Whitie disappeared shortly after he had milked her this evening. After looking in the usual places, he found the black and white heifer in the silo.

She squirmed her way in through a narrow door somehow but she can't get out. After calling together some of his neighbors for advice, Simons gave up trying to free the cow tonight.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Dorothy Manners

(Substituting for vacationing Louella Parsons)

HOLLYWOOD, July 29 (INS)—Claudette Colbert, who hasn't appeared before a Hollywood camera in three years, returns to the fold and at the same time makes her TV debut on film in "Magic Formula" for Ford Theatre's Screen Gems.

August 16 is the date set for Claudette to report on the Columbia lot for this original written by Marianne Mosner and which Michel Kraike will produce.

No doubt Kraike had more than a little to do with the return of Colbert. He directed her years ago in "Thunder On the Hill."

In "Magic Formula" she plays a movie star, so successful and so self-sufficient she almost loses her husband.

Mickey Rooney couldn't have hit on a better movie idea for himself than "The Life Story of Johnny Longden," and the Mick should fit into the role of the veteran hard-riding jockey as easily as he could slip into a pair of Johnny's satin riding pants.

The deal was closed today whereby Mickey will star in the Longden yarn, producing the film under the banner of his independent setup at the Republic Studios.

In addition to being one of the best jockeys, Longden is also one of the richest. He's had his slumps—but there are still millions of fans plunking down their two dollars with confidence that Johnny will boot 'em home every time he rides.

Number three is coming up for Cyd Charisse and Gene Kelly. The third appearance of the dancers together will be "In Missouri" for Arthur Freed, who also guided them in "Singin' In the Rain" and "Brigadoon."

Cyd will look very pretty in the pantaloons and bonnets of a southern belle of the Mark Twain days along the Mississippi in "In Missouri." The choreography will be designed by her co-star, Gene.

Arthur Freed takes his MGM musical down south in mid-November to start shooting up and down the Mississippi.

It was a bad day on "Bad Day At Black Rock" at Lone Pine—a very bad day, indeed, for Art Graff, a very surprised hobo who made the fatal error of selecting the rods of the train being used by the movie company—and rode right into the arms of questioning police!

"Cheez—I thought I had the train to Chicago," quoth the unhappy gentleman of the road as Spencer Tracy and other actors in the company gathered around to listen to his tale of woe.

"And, I not only picks up the wrong train," he wailed, "but where did they turn on this heat?" It was 114 in the shade—if you could find any.

If you are interested in the further adventures of Art—no, he didn't wind up with an extra job in the movies, no one discovered him for fame. After the police found him "clean" he just ambled on down the road.

His worried friends will be glad to learn that Leland Hayward's collapse while lunching on the terrace at the Bel Air Hotel was not a heart attack. His doctors say it is an intestinal infection and he's coming along in good shape at the Good Samaritan Hospital.

The first person at Leland's side while they were still working over him at the hotel was Danny Kaye. Slim Hayward was in San Francisco with Mary Martin—but she's been constantly at the side of her husband since her return.

Hollywood in shorts:

Jane Wyman returned from her "Magnificent Obsession" tour with a sprained rib. Doesn't know where or how she got it.

Frances Langford and Gloria De Haven went AWOL from their own shows in Las Vegas to sneak a look at Mae West's fabulous first night at the Sahara.

While we're in Las Vegas, Dick Contino, who bowed into the Flamingo last night, has 11 weeks of solid bookings.

Glenda Farrell and her husband, Dr. Henry Ross, gave a beautiful party for Harriet Parsons at their summer home in Brewster, New York. Among the diners under umbrellas in the garden and by the pool were Vivienne Segal and Hub Robinson, Jack Lawrence and other New Yorkers complimenting Harriet on her very funny comedy, "Susan Slept Here."

Cute Natalie Wood at the House of Murphy with Rad Fulton, who sounds like a Henry Willson discovery—and is.

When Esther Williams and Ben Gage take out their nightclub act in September, her family will take turns baby-sitting with the Gage children. The kids meet up with Mamma and Papa on their last lap in Las Vegas.

Hear Tony Curtis' expert hoofing is so great in "So This Is Paris" it'll have you applauding. When co-star Gene Nelson gifted Tony with bronzed dancing shoes to "Twinkletoes," Tony darn near cried—just as if it was an oscar.

Constance Dowling (Mrs. Ivan Tors) expects her baby momentarily.

'Miss Utah'

MAURINE PARKER, 18, of Ogden, wears her crown after winning the title "Miss Utah" to represent the state at the "Miss America" contest in Atlantic City, N. J. She is 5 feet 6, weighs 123, and has 35 bust and hips plus a 23 waist.

Learn proper breath control as a step in voice improvement!

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Do you unconsciously hold your breath while a singer prolongs a note? Try it, next time you are listening to a great artist. You'll probably gasp long before he pauses for breath! His secret, of course, is years of training.

Breath control should be as important to you as to the singer. Audibility and the tone and flow of your voice depend on your ability to control your breath correctly.

The way you breathe probably seeems quite natural, as you think about it now. But the breathing habits you may have acquired unconsciously are not necessarily natural or correct.

Test Control

For example, are you guilty of taking short breaths? Jerky gasps of air? Then your voice probably sounds nervous, your phrasing abrupt. Certainly not poised!

To test your breath control, place your hands over the lower portion of your rib cage with your thumbs hugging your waist, your middle fingers just touching. Take a full, deep breath through your mouth, hold it for a second, then exhale slowly.

Did your middle fingers part company as you inhaled, and meet again as you exhaled? If you were breathing correctly, they did. No? Then you really have to practice so that good breathing comes naturally.

Here is an exercise my voice consultant considers a number one breath controller: place your hands over your lower rib cage as above. Take a full breath through your mouth and hold for a count of five. Then exhale quickly, keeping your chest high but absolutely still. If you passed the previous test for breath control, do this exercise 10 times a day; if your test performance wasn't up to par, perform the exercises at least 20 times daily.

During the exercise, be sure to hold the chest still. No movement should be apparent in the torso except the expanding and collapsing in the lower rib area. Can you do it?

Voice Improvement

You'll find many exercises such as this—for improving your voice—in my booklet, "Your Most Attractive Voice!" By following my instructions, you will cause lovely qualities which exist in your voice to emerge, and any unattractive qualities present to disappear.

Everyone likes to hear a warm, flexible voice. It is within your reach and worth your attainment, for by improving your speaking voice you will add a major attraction to your charm.

YOUR MOST ATTRACTIVE VOICE

You can achieve an appealing, resonant, sonorous voice — one that can be a vibrant attribute to charm and success — by reading the new booklet, YOUR MOST ATTRACTIVE VOICE, which gives complete instructions on how to overcome such wearisome speaking qualities as tonelessness, dullness, and lack of proper modulation. Write to Secrets of Charm in care of this newspaper, enclosing 10c in coin, plus stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Would-Be Plumbers Boning Up For Unique Examination

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON, July 29 (AP)—All over the nation today a select group of bright young men are boning up for a unique examination.

They're nailing down the answers to such questions as:

1. Explain the use of the psychrometer. How is it used?

2. What relationship exists between friction of liquids flowing in pipes and the velocity of the flow?

These bright young men aren't studying to be atomic scientists. They're merely getting ready to be plumbers and pipe fitters.

And 66 of the brightest—those who have survived city and regional tests—will compete in the final annual apprentice contest at Purdue University Aug. 10-12.

The top prizes: $1,000 each for the No. 1 apprentice plumber and the No. 1 apprentice pipe fitter. In addition to the written tests, they'll also have to show they know how to handle pipe.

When your reporter heard about the test, he hustled around to see Martin P. Durkin, president of the AFL Plumbers and Pipe Fitters Union and the man who was President Eisenhower's first Secretary of Labor.

While Durkin was in office, he usually was referred to as a plumber. Belatedly, let's clear up that long standing error.

"I'm a pipe fitter myself," Durkin said.

During the next hour, these additional facts were picked up:

It takes longer (five years), and sometimes costs more, to make a plumber or pipe fitter than it does to produce a college graduate.

The first enameled bathtub was made in this country in 1870. There's no point in bragging of it, though. The ancient Egyptians and Assyrians knew all about enameling bricks, and came up with some fancy jobs, too.

The industry is joining the union in sponsoring the contest, and Durkin says the employers are as enthusiastic as he is. He's thinking about setting up boards of education to make sure that each apprentice gets the proper training and understands the theory behind his operations.

Boston had the nation's first water works system. Hollowed hemlock logs were used for pipes.

Atomic energy plants wouldn't be possible without pipe fitters. There were 12,500 of them at Oak Ridge, Tenn., alone.

Old Rome had them, too. Plumbers, that is. Its sanitary worker was called a "plumbarious," because he worked with pipe and "plumbum" was the word for lead. The Romans made lead pipe 10 feet long in 15 standard sizes.

Anyone still worried about the questions posed at the start of this item will now have his problems solved. A psychrometer is a device for determining relative humidity and dew point temperature, and the friction of liquids flowing in pipes increases as the square of the velocity.

In view of the hundreds of questions with equally baffling answers, Durkin was asked how he thought he'd make out on the test.

The plumbers' No. 1 pipe fitter neatly sidestepped the question.

"I've been away from the bench," he said, "for a long time."

FARM CROPPERS—1954

Maryland Farmer's Cow Trapped In Silo

NEW WINDSOR, Md., July 29 (AP)—Whitie, 7-year-old Holstein cow belonging to Stanley Simons, got stuck tonight in a silo on the Simons farm near Medford.

Simons said Whitie disappeared shortly after he had milked her this evening. After looking in the usual places, he found the black and white heifer in the silo.

She squirmed her way in through a narrow door somehow but she can't get out. After calling together some of his neighbors for advice, Simons gave up trying to free the cow tonight.

Radio And Television

by John Crosby

The Networks Should Take Over

Recently the New York Herald Tribune's lead editorial expressed horrified bewilderment at the wanton and apparently completely motiveless slaying of a man in Brooklyn by two teen-age toughs. The slaying, the editorial pointed out, was symptomatic of the increasing and appalling brutality of American youth.

This year approximately 1,000,000 American young people, most of them between the ages of 12 and 17, will be arrested for delinquent or downright criminal acts, a thoroughly alarming figure. The incidence of violence in the crime statistics — the beatings, rapings, knifings, shootings — compounds the alarm. In my youth, a boy was considered properly daring if he hooked a couple of marbles from the dime store when no one was looking. Today, it is the fashion to hold the joint up, slug the old lady in charge and make off with the cash receipts.

The fact is that our children are being treated to a sickening amount of violence in the comic books and on television and it is no wonder that they go out and emulate what they see on their TV screens and in the comic books. In its fourth annual report on children's programming, the National Association for Better Radio and Television, a hard-working and enterprising outfit, declared that it "is dismayed over the volume of crime and the degree of violence which dominate TV programs for children." The committee concluded that "crime is king on TV for children and the crown is being welded more firmly into place with each passing month."

That phrase "degree of violence" is interesting. If every parent would take the trouble — and believe me, it's trouble — to watch the degree of violence to which his children are subjected, he would be appalled. Violence is no stranger to children's fiction or to children's movies but this kind of violence, this utter brutality, is comparatively new and it's getting worse.

Hour after hour of this sort of thing can have no other effect than to brutalize a child, to dull his sensibilities, to accep violence as a fact of life, and, eventually — as in the case of two young hoods kicking a total stranger to death — to emulate. Television, of course, is not wholly to blame but, if it contributes in any way to the juvenle violence on the streets — and I'm convinced tha' it does — then drastic measures should be taken now. This is a very serious situation.

Years ago, NBC and CBS took over control of their news shows under the very proper argument that news was too important to be handled by outside agencies. Now I think it's far more important that the networks take over sole control of all their children's shows. I don't mean just set up some degree of supervision because that hasn't worked but to set up children's program departments and create and run all programs aimed at children.

Most of the programs created by the networks — like CBS's "Big Top" and ABC's "Super Circus" and NBC's "Ding Dong School" — have been very good shows indeed. The horrible examples are the creations of package outfits, most of them on the West Coast. Concerted action by the networks could easily get rid of the bad ones overnight and the cereal and chewing gum companies would simply have to settle for the good ones because there wouldn't be anything else. And so would the children.

"More money," NAFBRAT pointed out, "is spent for the production of the entire 21 programs classified as excellent by the committee. This fantastic twenty-to-one production cost ratio is no doubt the prime cause of the generally lower audience ratings of the better programs." And the situation is rapidly getting much worse. There are four times as many crime programs fo children, NAFBRAT says, in 1954 as there were three years ago.

The only solution as I see it is for the networks to produce their own kid shows and allow no others on their networks. Codes are useless. You get some such ruling that one knifing is all right but two are all wrong. The networks simply have to assume full responsibility for what is becoming an increasingly grave civic problem.

Daily Bridge Lesson

YOU'LL NEED IT LATER

A DEFENDER leads a card which you feel sure his partner can ruff. If the first of your holdings, playing to the trick, includes the top outstanding card of the suit, what are you going to do? Are you going to put it on that trick and suffer it to be trumped, leaving the other defender with the highest outstanding card? Or are you going to use a card just barely high enough to make sure that the one led can't take the trick if the other defender refrains from ruffing? The answer to that ought to be obvious?

	♠ J 9 7 5 ♥ A 10 6 4 2 ♦ K J 8 3 ♣ None
♠ Q 8 ♥ 7 3 ♦ A Q 10 2 ♣ Q 10 7 5 3	N W E S	♠ 4 2 ♥ K J 9 8 5 ♦ 4 ♣ A J 9 6 2
	♠ A K 10 6 3 ♥ Q ♦ 9 7 6 5 ♣ K 8 4

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♠

After identical bidding, except that North bid 4-Spades directly on his first turn and South then passed, the defense began the same at two tables of a team game. West led the heart 7 to the K, as the dummy played low, and the diamond 4 was returned to the A. West then led the diamond 2 to give his partner a ruff with the spade 2. But that third trick differed at the two tables. In one case South had put on the K from dummy and at the other the 3. That meant the difference between making the contract and being set.

One South reckoned that the only possible motive for East's switch to the diamond 4 on the second trick was that it was a singleton and he wanted to ruff. So when the 2 was led to the second trick, he decided to conserve his K, putting on the low one.

In each case, East returned the spade 4 to the fourth trick. The successful declarer won with the A and cleared trumps with the K, ruffed the club 4 with the spade 9, discarded the club 8 on the heart A, ruffed the heart 4 with the spade 3, ruffed the club K with the spade J and the heart 6 with the spade 6. Then he was able to finesse diamonds, the 9 covered by the 10 and J. The diamond K and spade 10 then took the last two tricks. Where the diamond K had been wasted early, South had to lose the setting trick to the Q.

Tomorrow's Problem

	♠ A 9 ♥ A 7 6 4 ♦ K 10 8 3 ♣ Q 8 2
♠ J 6 5 4 3 ♥ 9 ♦ Q J 6 5 ♣ K 10 5	N W E S	♠ 8 7 2 ♥ 8 5 ♦ 7 4 2 ♣ 9 7 6 4 3
	♠ K Q 10 ♥ K Q J 10 3 2 ♦ A 9 ♣ A J

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

If West doubles and leads the spade 4, how should South play for 7-No Trumps redoubled, vulnerable, highest possible contract?

Radio And Television

The Networks Should Take Over

Recently the New York Herald Tribune's lead editorial expressed horrified bewilderment at the wanton and apparently completely motiveless slaying of a man in Brooklyn by two teen-age toughs. The slaying, the editorial pointed out, was symptomatic of the increasing and appalling brutality of American youth.

This year approximately 1,000,000 American young people, most of them between the ages of 12 and 17, will be arrested for delinquent or downright criminal acts, a thoroughly alarming figure. The incidence of violence in the crime statistics — the beatings, rapings, knifings, shootings — compounds the alarm. In my youth, a boy was considered properly daring if he hooked a couple of marbles from the dime store when no one was looking. Today, it is the fashion to hold the joint up, slug the old lady in charge and make off with the cash receipts.

The fact is that our children are being treated to a sickening amount of violence in the comic books and on television and it is no wonder that they go out and emulate what they see on their TV screens and in the comic books. In its fourth annual report on children's programming, the National Association for Better Radio and Television, a hard-working and enterprising outfit, declared that it "is dismayed over the volume of crime and the degree of violence which dominate TV programs for children." The committee concluded that "crime is king on TV for children and the crown is being welded more firmly into place with each passing month."

That phrase "degree of violence" is interesting. If every parent would take the trouble — and believe me, it's trouble — to watch the degree of violence to which his children are subjected, he would be appalled. Violence is no stranger to children's fiction or to children's movies but this kind of violence, this utter brutality, is comparatively new and it's getting worse.

Hour after hour of this sort of thing can have no other effect than to brutalize a child, to dull his sensibilities, to accep violence as a fact of life, and, eventually — as in the case of two young hoods kicking a total stranger to death — to emulate. Television, of course, is not wholly to blame but, if it contributes in any way to the juvenle violence on the streets — and I'm convinced that it does — then drastic measures should be taken now. This is a very serious situation.

Years ago, NBC and CBS took over control of their news shows under the very proper argument that news was too important to be handled by outside agencies. Now I think it's far more important that the networks take over sole control of all their children's shows. I don't mean just set up some degree of supervision because that hasn't worked but to set up children's program departments and create and run all programs aimed at children.

Most of the programs created by the networks — like CBS's "Big Top" and ABC's "Super Circus" and NBC's "Ding Dong School" — have been very good shows indeed. The horrible examples are the creations of package outfits, most of them on the West Coast. Concerted action by the networks could easily get rid of the bad ones overnight and the cereal and chewing gum companies would simply have to settle for the good ones because there wouldn't be anything else. And so would the children.

"More money," NAFBRAT pointed out, "is spent for the production of the entire 21 programs classified as excellent by the committee. This fantastic twenty-to-one production cost ratio is no doubt the prime cause of the generally lower audience ratings of the better programs." And the situation is rapidly getting much worse. There are four times as many crime programs fo children, NAFBRAT says, in 1954 as there were three years ago.

The only solution as I see it is for the networks to produce their own kid shows and allow no others on their networks. Codes are useless. You get some such ruling that one knifing is all right but two are all wrong. The networks simply have to assume full responsibility for what is becoming an increasingly grave civic problem.

Are you going to put it on that trick and suffer it to be trumped, leaving the other defender with the highest outstanding card? Or are you going to use a card just barely high enough to make sure that the one led can't take the trick if the other defender refrains from ruffing? The answer to that ought to be obvious?

	♠ J 9 7 5 ♥ A 10 6 4 2 ♦ K J 8 3 ♣ None
♠ Q 8 ♥ 7 3 ♦ A Q 10 2 ♣ Q 10 7 5 3	N W E S	♠ 4 2 ♥ K J 9 8 5 ♦ 4 ♣ A J 9 6 2
	♠ A K 10 6 3 ♥ Q ♦ 9 7 6 5 ♣ K 8 4

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
4 ♠

After identical bidding, except that North bid 4-Spades directly on his first turn and South then passed, the defense began the same at two tables of a team game. West led the heart 7 to the K, as the dummy played low, and the diamond 4 was returned to the A. West then led the diamond 2 to give his partner a ruff with the spade 2. But that third trick differed at the two tables. In one case South had put on the K from dummy and at the other the 3. That meant the difference between making the contract and being set.

One South reckoned that the only possible motive for East's switch to the diamond 4 on the second trick was that it was a singleton and he wanted to ruff. So when the 2 was led to the second trick, he decided to conserve his K, putting on the low one.

In each case, East returned the spade 4 to the fourth trick. The successful declarer won with the A and cleared trumps with the K, ruffed the club 4 with the spade 9, discarded the club 8 on the heart A, ruffed the heart 4 with the spade 3, ruffed the club K with the spade J and the heart 6 with the spade 6. Then he was able to finesse diamonds, the 9 covered by the 10 and J. The diamond K and spade 10 then took the last two tricks. Where the diamond K had been wasted early, South had to lose the setting trick to the Q.

Tomorrow's Problem

	♠ A 9 ♥ A 7 6 4 ♦ K 10 8 3 ♣ Q 8 2
♠ J 6 5 4 3 ♥ 9 ♦ Q J 6 5 ♣ K 10 5	N W E S	♠ 8 7 2 ♥ 8 5 ♦ 7 4 2 ♣ 9 7 6 4 3
	♠ K Q 10 ♥ K Q J 10 3 2 ♦ A 9 ♣ A J

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

Mike Krak, Former WVU Captain Leads In Golf Tourney

KANSAS CITY, July 27 (AP)—Mike Krak shot a hole in one on the 18th green and an 8-under-par 65 for the first round lead in the $20,000 Kansas City Open Golf Tournament today.

The Louisville, Ky., pro toured the 6,625-yard par 73 Blue Hills Country Club course in 34-31. He holed the 210-yard 18th with a 2-iron shot that caught the edge of the green and sneaked about 45 feet before dipping into the cup.

Krak is an unknown on the pro trail. He was born in Czechoslovakia 26 years ago. Formerly of Weirton, W. Va., he was captain of the West Virginia University golf team and is a graduate of the university. He was an assistant to Henry Picard of Hershey, Pa., and has never finished high up in any of "about 20" PGA tournaments he entered.

A stroke off the lead at 66 were Fred Hawkins of El Paso, Tex., Earl Stewart Jr. of Dallas, and Ed (Porky) Oliver, the defending champion from Lemont, Ill.

"Tim" Bright Is Sued By Publicity Agent

BALTIMORE, July 29 (AP)—Temus R. (Tim) Bright, Baltimore used car dealer and unsuccessful candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, was sued for $15,000 in Superior Court today.

The suit alleged that Hall was to have been paid $200 a week or a rate to be determined by the amount of publicity which he obtained for Bright. Hall said he was not paid.

Bread, Cereal Shortages Plague East Germany

BERLIN, July 29 (AP)—Communist East Germany tonight admitted bread and cereal shortages were plaguing areas of the East Zone.

The Trade and Supply Ministry linked the shortages with the disappearance of Dr. Otto John, West German security chief, behind the Iron Curtain. It charged the shortages were due to rumors which started panic buying.

Indochina Censorship

PARIS, July 29 (AP) — Heavy censorship by the Viet Nam government today prevented reporters in Hanoi and Saigon from sending more than a trickle of news about Indochina.

Newsmen there and in Paris are protesting to French and Vietnamese authorities.

Markley Chosen For Baltimore All-Star Game

Jesse Markley, pitching ace of Fulton Myers Post, who has won three and lost three games and heads the Mountain District American Legion Junior Baseball League in strikeouts with 50 victims to his credit, has been chosen to play in the Legion All-Star contest that will precede the New York Yankees-Baltimore Orioles game on Saturday at Baltimore Stadium.

Selection of Markley was made by Fulton Myers Post's tea mwhich is sponsored by the Ladies Auxiliary Unit.

Bill Wade

TWO HOT-LOOKING rookies on the roster of the Los Angeles Rams now in training in Redlands, Calif., are Les Richter, guard and linebacker fresh out of the Army, and Bill Wade, former star quarterback at Vanderbilt. The Rams thought so much of Richter two years ago they traded 11 men (an entire football team) to the late Dallas Texans for his pro grid contract. (International)

Charles To Get Another Crack At Heavy Title

Marciano Is Declared Fit For September Go

NEW YORK, July 29 (AP)—Rocky Marciano, his eye cut completely healed, will give ex-champ Ezzard Charles another chance at his world heavyweight boxing title in a New York bout that probably will be held Wednesday Sept. 15 at Yankee Stadium.

Promoter Jim Norris of the International boxing club announced two tentative dates—Sept. 15 at the stadium or Tuesday, Sept. 21 at the Polo Grounds. Norris prefers the earlier date.

Completely Healed

The champion was examined by Dr. Vincent Nardiello, acting as Marciano's personal physician, and Dr. Alexander Schiff of the New York State Athletic Commission. They found the cut, which required 10 stitches and an operation for removal of scar tissue after the June 17 bout, healed completely. Both pronounced the champion fit for action in September.

As in their rousing first bout, Marciano will get 40 per cent of all receipts and Charles 20 per cent. The price scale again will run from $5 to $40.

Norris said the television question is "wide open" but it is believed there is very little chance of any home TV. Although Sept. 15 is a Wednesday, the regular Wednesday night fights have been pre-empted by another sponsor for a special show on that date.

Al Weill, Marciano's manager, is expected to insist on another theater-television deal similar to the arrangement that added about $250,000 to the receipts of the first bout.

Gets Third Chance

Charles is the first man to get a third chance to win back the big title.

Red Sox Obtain Mele Of Orioles

Sam Goes To Boston For Waiver Price

BALTIMORE, July 29 (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles let veteran outfielder Sam Mele go to the Boston Red Sox for the $10,000 waiver price today, amid indications there was more to the deal than met the eye.

"Mele is certainly worth more than $10,000," conceded Art Ehlers, Oriole general manager.

There was immediate speculation a delayed action part of the deal will come off in about two weeks, with Boston possibly sending a player to Baltimore. Mentioned in that connection were Billy Goodman, Boston utility man, and outfielders Karl Olson and Charlie Maxwell.

Mele came here from the Chicago White Sox just before the start of the season in a deal that gave the Sox Johnny Groth, fleet outfielder inherited by the Orioles from the old St. Louis Browns.

Paul Stair Posts 10th League Win

Paul Stair became a 10-game winner yesterday when he pitched Kennell's Mill to a 9-6 victory over Corriganville in a County Softball League game.

Stair was replaced by Sam Bittner in the 7th frame when the Corgs exploded for four runs.

The winners garnered 11 hits, including a triple and single by Kerr Kennell, two doubles by Bob Cessna and a two-bagger and single by Paul Stair. "Boots" Raygor collected a pair of doubles for Corriganville.

The loss was the 7th for Glenn Kauffman who has won seven games. Score:

KENNELL'S MILL	203	220	0	9	11	3

Boy Who Disregarded Warning Pays With Life

HOBOKEN, N.J., July 29 (AP)—George Johnson was warned many times by his parents to stay away from the railroad tracks but the spirit of adventure got the best of the 11-year-old boy.

"Don't be mad at me. . . I know I did what you told me not to do. . ."

Mike Krak, Former WVU Captain Leads In Golf Tourney

KANSAS CITY, July 27 (AP)—Mike Krak shot a hole in one on the 18th green and an 8-under-par 65 for the first round lead in the $20,000 Kansas City Open Golf Tournament today.

The Louisville, Ky., pro toured the 6,625-yard par 73 Blue Hills Country Club course in 34-31. He holed the 210-yard 18th with a 2-iron shot that caught the edge of the green and sneaked about 45 feet before dipping into the cup.

Krak is an unknown on the pro trail. He was born in Czechoslovakia 26 years ago. Formerly of Weirton, W. Va., he was captain of the West Virginia University golf team and is a graduate of the university. He was an assistant to Henry Picard of Hershey, Pa., and has never finished high up in any of "about 20" PGA tournaments he entered.

A stroke off the lead at 66 were Fred Hawkins of El Paso, Tex., Earl Stewart Jr. of Dallas, and Ed (Porky) Oliver, the defending champion from Lemont, Ill.

Douglas Hall, who served as Bright's public relations agent during the primary campaign, brought the suit and asked that amount for his services.

The suit alleged that Hall was to have been paid $200 a week or a rate to be determined by the amount of publicity which he obtained for Bright. Hall said he was not paid.

Bread, Cereal Shortages Plague East Germany

BERLIN, July 29 (AP)—Communist East Germany tonight admitted bread and cereal shortages were plaguing areas of the East Zone.

The Trade and Supply Ministry linked the shortages with the disappearance of Dr. Otto John, West German security chief, behind the Iron Curtain. It charged the shortages were due to rumors which started panic buying.

Indochina Censorship

Selection of Markley was made by Fulton Myers Post's tea mwhich is sponsored by the Ladies Auxiliary Unit.

Manager Harry Beckward and Coach Gerry Gant last night said that Markley justly deserved the honor of representing the post at Baltimore.

Bobby Blank, Frostburg; Kenny Johnson, Midland and Toby Colaw, Grantsville, were the other players from the Mountain District chosen for the counties team that will oppose Baltimore's all-stars in Saturday's game.

"Baldy" Powell swatted two home runs and a double. Yoder belted a homer, double and single and Mike McCullough walloped a grand slam homer and single to spark the league leaders' 14-hit assault. Score:

Charles To Get Another Crack At Heavy Title

Marciano Is Declared Fit For September Go

NEW YORK, July 29 (AP)—Rocky Marciano, his eye cut completely healed, will give ex-champ Ezzard Charles another chance at his world heavyweight boxing title in a New York bout that probably will be held Wednesday Sept. 15 at Yankee Stadium.

Promoter Jim Norris of the International boxing club announced two tentative dates—Sept. 15 at the stadium or Tuesday, Sept. 21 at the Polo Grounds. Norris prefers the earlier date.

Completely Healed

The champion was examined by Dr. Vincent Nardiello, acting as Marciano's personal physician, and Dr. Alexander Schiff of the New York State Athletic Commission. They found the cut, which required 10 stitches and an operation for removal of scar tissue after the June 17 bout, healed completely. Both pronounced the champion fit for action in September.

As in their rousing first bout, Marciano will get 40 per cent of all receipts and Charles 20 per cent. The price scale again will run from $5 to $40.

Norris said the television question is "wide open" but it is believed there is very little chance of any home TV. Although Sept. 15 is a Wednesday, the regular Wednesday night fights have been pre-empted by another sponsor for a special show on that date.

Al Weill, Marciano's manager, is expected to insist on another theater-television deal similar to the arrangement that added about $250,000 to the receipts of the first bout.

Gets Third Chance

The June match attracted 47,585 fans and grossed $543,092.24 at the gate, not counting theater-TV and $35,000 radio. Marciano got about $250,000 and Charles $125,000.

Charles is the first man to get a third chance to win back the big title.

Red Sox Obtain Mele Of Orioles

Sam Goes To Boston For Waiver Price

BALTIMORE, July 29 (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles let veteran outfielder Sam Mele go to the Boston Red Sox for the $10,000 waiver price today, amid indications there was more to the deal than met the eye.

"Mele is certainly worth more than $10,000," conceded Art Ehlers, Oriole general manager.

He refused to elucidate, however.

There was immediate speculation a delayed action part of the deal will come off in about two weeks, with Boston possibly sending a player to Baltimore. Mentioned in that connection were Billy Goodman, Boston utility man, and outfielders Karl Olson and Charlie Maxwell.

Mele came here from the Chicago White Sox just before the start of the season in a deal that gave the Sox Johnny Groth, fleet outfielder inherited by the Orioles from the old St. Louis Browns.

Hazelwood Firm Low Bidder On Sewage System

Work Is Scheduled At Oldtown School

The George F. Hazelwood Company yesterday submitted the apparent low bid for construction of a sewage disposal system at Oldtown School after one other bid had been opened by Ralph R. Webster, superintendent of Allegany County Schools, at the Board of Education Office.

Hazelwood's base bid was $40,672. The other base bid, submitted by the Hout Construction Company, was for $44,678. Awarding of the bid is pending the action of the Board.

Another bid was being submitted by the George Construction Company but through some misunderstanding it was brought to the Board of Education Office about an hour after the other two sealed bids had been opened.

Cafeteria Bids Received

Representatives who brought the bids from the Hazelwood and Hout companies had left the building and their bids are being retained for action of the Board of Education, which has the right to accept or reject the bids. The George bid, however, was not retained.

Later in the afternoon five bids were opened for furnishing, delivering and erecting cafeteria equipment at the same school with Joseph S. Karp and Brothers Inc. submitting a low bid of $5,389.99 including a food protector listed at $58.70

Other bids submitted included Sheris Company, Washington, $6,443 with an alternate bid of $69 for the food protector; Food Service Equipment, Washington, $6,773 and alternate bid of $100 for food protector; W. F. Dougherty and Sons, Philadelphia, base bid of $7,197 with alternate bid of $89.60 for food protector; and Charles F. Cox, Silver Spring, $7,260 with alternate bid of $84 for the food protector.

No Contracts Awarded

Awarding of this contract, Webster added, is also subject to the action of the Board.

Specifications for both the sewage disposal system and the cafeteria project were furnished by Walton and Madden, architects of Mt. Rainier and H. W. Redmile and Association, mechanical engineers of Washington.

Health Officer Gives Rules For Halting Food Poisoning

Simple rules on how to prevent food poisoning outbreaks are being mailed to all food handling establishments of Allegany County, according to Dr. Winter R. Frantz, health officer.

Investigation, Dr. Frantz said, shows the direct cause of food poisoning in which large numbers of persons have been involved is related to the preparation or storage of food by persons improperly instructed and unaware of the importance of their work.

Personal cleanliness was listed as the first rule in preventing outbreaks of food poisoning. Hands must be washed before food is handled, and clean garments should be worn by all food handlers.

Since infected hands are one of the major causes of food poisoning, persons with unhealed cuts or burns should not be permitted to prepare food.

Temperature Is Vital

All working surfaces and equipment should be clean and free of dirt and vermin. Food utensils should be washed, rinsed and sanitized according to Health Department regulations, which require 140 degree water for washing and 180 degrees for the final rinse.

All perishable food must be kept under refrigeration at 40 degrees or below, or if hot should be kept at 145 degrees until served. To be safe, food must be kept either hot or cold until served, since food that is lukewarm can be dangerous.

Food crowded or wrapped while in a refrigerator, the notice said, will not be completely refrigerated, since circulation of air is needed for proper preservation of food.

Discard If Doubtful

A good rule to follow concerning food is, "When in doubt, throw it out," the Health Department said.

Officials said the danger of food poisoning is always present unless food is prepared and kept with scrupulous care.

Health officials pointed out that investigation of Baltimore's first 1954 outbreak of food poisoning—which made ill 30 out of 45 members of a group, implicated a waiter who was temporarily infected with an organism which caused the food poisoning.

No Relief Seen In Current Wave Of Hot Weather

In spite of scattered thundershowers which fell in the Cumberland area yesterday, no relief from the current hot spell is in sight, according to the Weather Bureau forecast for this portion of the state.

Temperatures in downtown Cumberland took a sharp drop in the period between 1 and 4 p. m. when intermittent rain caused the thermometer to "nosedive" from 93 to 79, a change of 14 degrees.

However, the temperature drop was shortlived, as the mercury had climbed back up to 85 within the hour between 4 and 5 p. m.

The high official mark there was 91, as compared with 90 the day before and 89 on Tuesday. The low mark there was 66 and at 6 p. m. the humidity registered a sultry 77 per cent.

Rain fell for a while yesterday at about 3 p. m., and then again at 8 p. m. another welcome shower hit the tri-state area. Despite this however, the total rainfall measured a scant .05 inches.

Baltimoreans also sweltered yesterday. The Monumental City experienced its hottest night of the summer season Wednesday as the mercury registered 90 degrees after sundown. The lowest overnight temperature in Baltimore was 79 degrees.

According to the forecast for this area, no immediate letup is expected. Today will be partly cloudy and continued hot, with scattered thundershowers in the afternoon and evening. The forecast for nearby West Virginia is similar.

Some relief may come late tomorrow when a mass of cool air is scheduled to reach the state from the northern plains.

Candidates Report No Election Costs

Election expense statements of two candidates for office in the June 28 primary were filed yesterday at the office of Joseph E. Boden, clerk of Allegany County Circuit Court.

Charles G. Genevie who was nominee for Democratic delegate to the state convention reported no expenses and no contributions. Ernest B. Treat, nominee for Republican delegate to the state convention also reported no expenses and no contributions.

PSC Kills Rate Hike

BALTIMORE, July 29 (AP) — The Public Service Commission today rejected a petition for a rehearing of its decision in granting Consolidated Gas, Electric Light and Power Co. a rate increase.

People's Counsel Joseph Allen, who requested the rehearing, argued that the increase granted the firm in June was far more than needed to provide a fair rate of return.

Southern Teams Win Intra-City Volleyball Event

A Pennsylvania Avenue Playground team was declared winner in the Junior Boys division after it won two straight games from a North End Playground team, representing the Northern Division.

Correlation Of Plans Set

The City of Cumberland has advised the Corps of Engineers that the State Roads Commission will be asked to forward plans for the West Side expressway in case the Mayor and Council takes favorable action on the overhead bridge program.

In a recent letter, Mayor Roy W. Eves pointed out that city officials will reach a decision on August 9 on the SRC proposal which includes a highway in the vicinity of the flood levee from Riverside Park to Kelly Boulevard.

He said the plans would be forwarded to the Corps of Engineers office for recommendations so it could be correlated with the flood protection work on the West Side.

The city also made several suggestions on work to be done by the Corps of Engineers in connection with the flood wall, including a reduction in the elevation on Kelly Boulevard and the reduction from 10 to eight feet in the relocated Paca Street sidewalk.

Schindler Named To Grand Conclave

Julius E. Schindler, local attorney and past grand chancellor of the Maryland Grand Lodge Knights of Pythias, will represent the Maryland Grand Lodge at the Supreme Lodge convention in Des Moines, Iowa, August 6 to 10.

Other representatives from Maryland will be Edward M. Akers of Frederick; Brawner Z. Harding of Gaithersburg and David Harris of Baltimore.

Among leading members of the order who will attend the convention are Mayor Robert F. Wagner, New York City; Governor Allen Shivers of Texas, and Governor Goodwin Knight of California, Schindler noted.

The 21 hats entered in the contest were judged by Judy Newman, Sharon Blizzard, and Patricia Mulligan.

W. Va. Conducts Oak Wilt Study

Representatives of the State Department of Agriculture, Conservation Commission, and West Virginia University have crews working all over the state.

Many woodland owners are joining the fight against this plant disease and are scouting their own property for infected trees, thus easing the work of the state conservationists somewhat.

The disease is rather easily identified, as it produces a toxic chemical which causes the leaves to become slightly cupped at first, then partially dull green and water-soaked, and finally partly or completely browned.

For positive identification, samples may be submitted to the Department of Plant Pathology, West Virginia University, Morgantown.

Juvenile Court Hearing Slated In Purse Theft

Brothers Admit Ransacking Cars

A 17-year-old Baltimore youth will be given a Juvenile Court hearing in the theft of a purse on Wednesday night and two small boys who live here will be given a hearing in connection with the ransacking of a number of cars during the past week.

The Baltimore boy, who was taken into custody about 20 minutes after Mrs. Richard Trexler of Union Street had her purse snatched from her on North Centre Street, reportedly admitted to police that he also had grabbed some papers from Miss Elizabeth McCullough, 124 Frederick Street, in the same spot about half an hour before the purse-snatching.

When Miss McCullough shouted, the boy dropped the papers and fled through a nearby alley. Later he returned to the scene and allegedly grabbed Mrs. Trexler's purse.

His parents were notified and will be in court at 10 a.m. today, police said. The youth was questioned by Joseph H. Stitcher of the City Police Detective Bureau, and Assistant Chief B. Frank Gaffney.

Stitcher said the two brothers, who are 10 and 12 years of age, admitted ransacking a number of cars parked along the city streets and in parking lots.

They were arrested on Tuesday, by Lt. James E. Van and Stitcher, questioned, and released in the custody of their parents. On Sunday, one of the brothers said, he took some wrenches from a parked car near the Union Street-Centre Street intersection and on Monday, ransacked a car on the Montgomery Ward parking lot. Papers were strewn through the car but nothing of value was reported missing.

Police said that in the series of ransacking jobs all types of items were taken from the cars.

One of the brothers reportedly took about $4 from a service station at the corner of Union and George streets Saturday, and two days later reportedly helped take about $12 in change from the same station.

Delinquency counts are being placed against the two brothers while the Baltimore youth will be given a hearing in the theft of the purse, which was recovered.

B&O Railroad Announces Four Promotions

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad yesterday announced four promotions in its maintenance of way department. All will become effective Sunday.

He later served as assistant engineer at Cincinnati and Newark, Ohio, and at Connellsville, Pa. He was appointed division engineer at Newark in 1950, division engineer at Cincinnati in November 1952, and shortly after that moved to Baltimore to accept the position from which he is now being promoted.

Jackman's successor as division engineer will be J. A. Caywood, who has been with the railroad since 1947. He began as an assistant on the engineering corps in Cincinnati and in 1950 became assistant division engineer at Grafton, W. Va. He was promoted to division engineer at Cincinnati in January 1953.

Caywood's replacement at Cincinnati is J. T. Collinson, who began his service with the B & O in October 1946, as an assistant on the engineering corps at Pittsburgh. He became maintenance inspector at Baltimore in 1947 and was named assistant division engineer at Newark in October 1950.

Girl Scout Council Group Makes Official Camp Visit

By F. ALLAN WEATHERHOLT
News Staff Writer

Thirteen members of the Cumberland Girl Scout Council made their official visit to the Girl Scout Camp at Green Ridge Wednesday, and after their regular monthly meeting, were entertained at dinner, a campfire and pow-wow.

This is the final week of the 1954 established camp at Green Ridge, and a total of almost 200 girls have participated in the camping program.

According to members of the Scout Council, the camp this year is far superior to any conducted in the past. Buildings, tents, play areas, roads, swimming facilities, water, sanitary facilities and programming have all been vastly improved.

Mrs. Elizabeth Williams, chairman of the camp committee, and Mrs. A. M. Spioch, president of the Council, both commented that "this is the happiest camp" the Cumberland Council has ever sponsored.

Make Tour Of Camp

The camp is located in Green Ridge State Forest, on the site of the old CCC Camp, where several hundred youths were trained in outdoor living, and did a splendid job of constructing buildings, fire trails and generally improving the area.

The property now belongs to the State of Maryland and the Cumberland Girl Scouts lease a portion of it through cooperation with the Department of State Forests and Parks.

Council members found that many of the barracks and administration buildings are, after 20 years, still in very good condition. One log structure is used as an infirmary, another larger one is used as an administration building, and one barracks building houses the Brownies or younger children. The intermediate and senior girls live in large tents, erected in units above wooden platforms.

The Army-type kitchen and dining hall, built by the CCC, is still intact and fully equipped. This is where the girls have most of their meals.

Impressive Ceremonies

Following the dinner, and the clean-up period which included dish-washing with almost everyone participating, the guests were invited to attend the flag ceremony.

The scouts and Council members formed a huge circle around the flagpole, recited the Girl Scout pledge to the Flag, sang "God Bless America" and then as the color guard lowered and tri-folded the flag, each scout stood at right hand salute.

It was a colorful, impressive, patriotic and serious ceremony, not unlike the retreat stood daily by servicemen and remembered so well by veterans everywhere.

Program Persented

Toward dusk, the Council member guests were escorted to the play area and given grandstand seats on logs arranged for the purpose. In a few minutes, the entire camp personnel, led by Miss Olive Hurlburt, camp director, marched silently toward the area and formed a large circle about a pile of wood. One visitor commented, "the impressive thing about this is that so many girls of all ages could stay quiet so long."

As the circle was completed, and the scouts, most of them dressed as Indians, complete with feathers, blankets and warpaint, seated themselves Indian-fashion on the ground.

The fire-lighting ceremony included a dramatic and colorful story told by one of the counselors.

While the fire burned, the "three Indian tribes", the Apaches, the Cree, and the Shawnee, which represents the three units in the camp as well as the three age groups, proceeded to issue challenges to skits, stunts, feats of strength, endurance and so on. Council members agreed it was quite a show.

At the conclusion of the challenges and the contests, the "Indians" arose, turned their backs upon the fire, and sang a campfire goodnight song.

Camp Well Staffed

Council members on the tour agreed that it was a splendid experience, and that Green Ridge this year is a truly happy camp.

The Scouts who were questioned indicated they do not want to see the camp end. They all expect to return next year, and there was general agreement that the program is sound, the counselors are fair and capable and the food is especially good.

Besides Mrs. Williams and Miss Hurlburt, the camp is staffed by Miss Sally Bowen, a registered nurse; Mrs. Clara Cox and Miss Genevieve O'Neil, cooks; Jimmy Williams and Harold Carl Jr., handy boys; Miss Edity Utt, waterfront counselor, her assistant Peggy Spioch who also assists Miss Margie Leggo and Mrs. Williams with Unit III; Miss Lois McCullough, nature study counsellor; Miss Eleanor Whetsell, Miss Nancy

Municipal Band Program Set For Concert Sunday

Selection Planned For Small Children

The Cumberland Municipal Concert Band, in planning the program for its concert Sunday evening at Constitution Park, has kept the children of Cumberland in mind by including a "kiddie theme" on the program.

The program which will get under way at 8:30 p. m., will open with a march, "Manhattan Beach," and following that will be a selection for the kiddies, "Childhood Days," a descriptive fantasy of children's songs.

Another march, "Bombasto," will follow the selection of children's songs. A trumpet trio will feature the next number, "The Phantom Regiment." Frank Munson, assistant director of the band, Dr. W. E. Capaldi, and Elwood O'Hara are the three members of the trumpet section featured in this number.

Two peppy selections, "Stout-Hearted Men" and F. W. Meacham's ever-popular "American Patrol," are next on the program.

Munson will direct the following two numbers, "Washington Post March" by John Philip Sousa, and "There's Something About A Soldier."

"To Look Sharp," will then precede "Calfskin Calisthentics," a trap drums solo number by Emerson Miller, who graduated from Allegany High School this year.

Walter Schumann's "Dragnet," which enjoyed a recent wave of popularity, will then be presented. An old favorite, "My Wild Irish Rose," will be played by the band, with the audience supplying the vocal accompaniment on the choruses.

The program will close with a march, "On The Square," and "The Star Spangled Banner."

Area Payrolls And Employment Are Increasing

Workers Recalled At Amcelle Plant

The total payrolls for the 17 firms, $3,052,199, marked a 7.2 per cent increase over May payroll totals, and the 8,934-member working force represented an increase of two per cent over the May employment total.

The July "Business at a Glance" report, issued yesterday by the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce, showed that six of the seven June indices were in the "plus" column, including Postal receipts, up 7 per cent; Postal Savings deposits, up 29.1 per cent, bank debits, up 15.5 per cent, and building permits, up 215.8 per cent.

The only item in the minus column was the sale of savings bonds, down 64.5 per cent, attributed to the use of savings for vacation trips.

Bank debits, which reflect the volume of business totaled $26,781,000 in June, as compared to May's $23,182,000.

Margin Is Narrowing

June's working force in the 17 industries, for example, is 20.1 per cent fewer than were employed a year ago, but some 280 higher than in June.

Construction work, which is being pushed as fast as possible, adds many hundreds of men to the working force. Some of this is seasonal, such as road construction which must be halted during winter months, but other projects, such as buildings, are continuing projects once foundations are laid.

The Maryland Employment Service reports 4,909 registered in July, an increase of 372 over June, but July placements, at the 152 mark, represents an increase of 29.

Celanese Plant Recalls

Early this year, the working force at the plant was boosted to the 2,100 mark as the Celanese Corporation began to make Fortisan yarn available to its civilian customers. It had been used by the Armed Forces almost exclusively since it was developed.

Since early in June, several hundred workers have been recalled to the big yarn plant, most of them in recent weeks, and the total force was just a few less than 2,300 early this week. Recalls already scheduled will push the employment figure past the 2,300 mark today.

Meanwhile, the Cumberland Undergarment Company has resumed full production after its plant was closed for 10 days as a result of damage caused by the July 14 storm.

The some 250 workers at the plant resumed work Monday after raw materials damaged by the storm were replaced.

Sewerage Work Keeps Sanitarians Busy

Field trips on sewerage totaled 109 last month out of the 416 trips made by the sanitarians. Included was the inspection of 30 septic tank installations completed during June.

The work also included 66 trips to food and drink establishments and 88 visits to dairy farms in the area. Eleven milk plants were also inspected.

Three houses were condemned and two others inspected for house repairs.

Hazelwood Firm Low Bidder On Sewage System

Work Is Scheduled At Oldtown School

The George F. Hazelwood Company yesterday submitted the apparent low bid for construction of a sewage disposal system at Oldtown School after one other bid had been opened by Ralph R. Webster, superintendent of Allegany County Schools, at the Board of Education Office.

Hazelwood's base bid was $40,672. The other base bid, submitted by the Hout Construction Company, was for $44,678. Awarding of the bid is pending the action of the Board.

Another bid was being submitted by the George Construction Company but through some misunderstanding it was brought to the Board of Education Office about an hour after the other two sealed bids had been opened.

Cafeteria Bids Received

Representatives who brought the bids from the Hazelwood and Hout companies had left the building and their bids are being retained for action of the Board of Education, which has the right to accept or reject the bids. The George bid, however, was not retained.

Later in the afternoon five bids were opened for furnishing, delivering and erecting cafeteria equipment at the same school with Joseph S. Karp and Brothers Inc. submitting a low bid of $5,389.99 including a food protector listed at $58.70

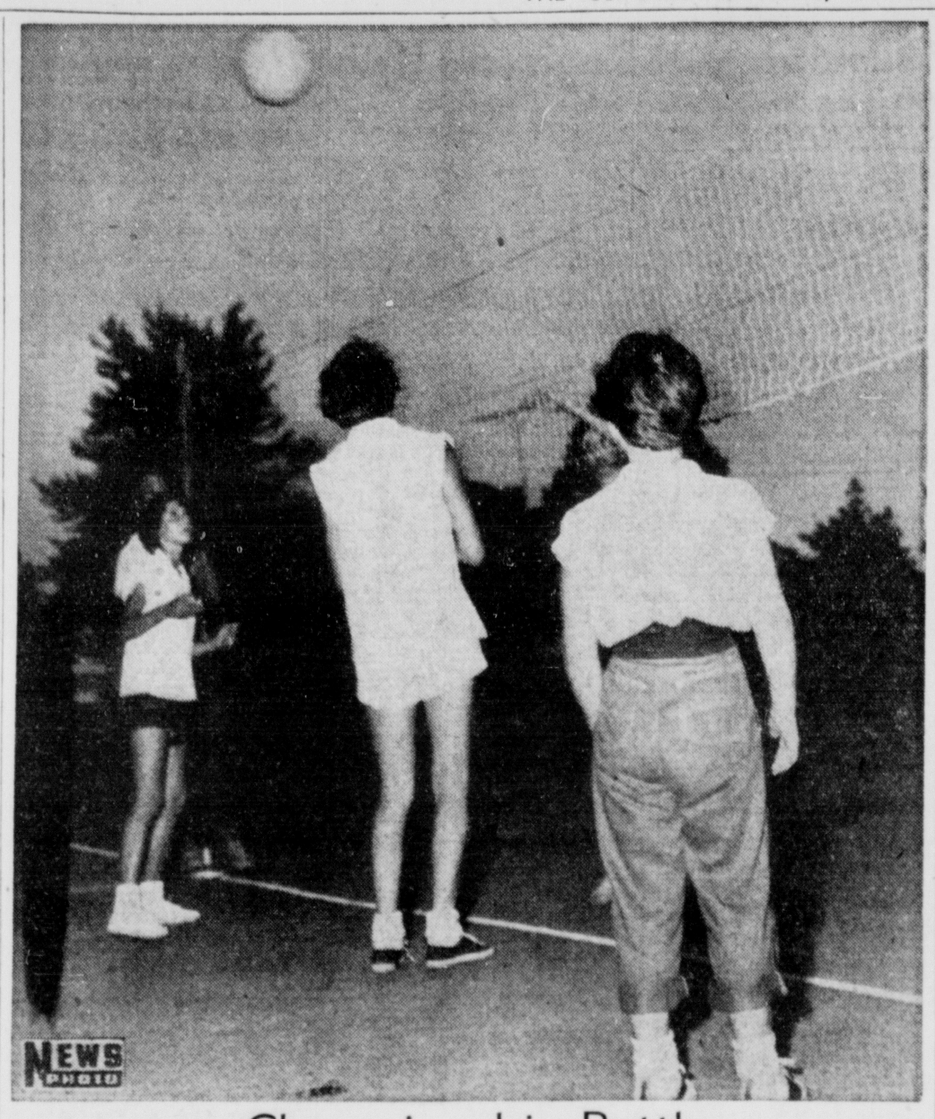

Other bids submitted included Sheris Company, Washington, $6,443 with an alternate bid of $69 for the food protector; Food Service Equipment, Washington, $6,773 and alternate bid of $100 for food protector; W. F. Dougherty and Sons, Philadelphia, base bid of $7,197 with alternate bid of $89.60 for food protector; and Charles F. Cox, Silver Spring, $7,260 with alternate bid of $84 for the food protector.

No Contracts Awarded

Awarding of this contract, Webster added, is also subject to the action of the Board.

The cafeteria equipment is to be furnished, delivered and erected ready for mechanical installation.

Specifications for both the sewage disposal system and the cafeteria project were furnished by Walton and Madden, architects of Mt. Rainier and H. W. Redmile and Association, mechanical engineers of Washington.

Championship Battle

Chamber Urges Attendance At IOOF Round-Up

The Cumberland Chamber of Commerce is extending cordial invitations to all members of Maryland branches of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows to attend the Western Maryland Round-up here on Saturday, August 14.

The round-up for Odd Fellows and Rebekahs will begin at 1 p. m. in Constitution Park.

In the invitation, Anthony Saeli, manager, said Constitution Park offers picnic tables, fireplaces, playing fields, swimming pool and pleasant loafing places — all the ingredients for a happy outing, adding:

"In every direction from Constitution Park are miles of magnificent mountains and valleys where beauty and grandeur cannot be excelled. These natural attractions provide pleasant surroundings for any gathering.

"Come and see this land of rugged beauty where nature is at its best. And stay overnight. Cumberland's fine hotels and motels are conveniently located. Each is well equipped for your comfort and convenience.

"To cap these advantages, Cumberland offers the hospitality of people who are friendly and cordial and who like to meet other people."

Trinity To Have Guest Ministers

Rev. Lewis P. Chastain, pastor of Trinity Methodist Church, will begin a vacation of two weeks starting Sunday.

While on vacation, Rev. Chastain will attend the American Christian Ashram of Keuka College, N. Y., and the Keswick Bible Conference at Ontario, Canada.

The pastoral relations committee of the church has arranged for Rev. Crates S. Johnson and Rev. S. R. Neel to serve as guest ministers on the two Sundays that Rev. Chastain is away.

Mrs. Clara Lewis, of Cresaptown, will have charge of the prayer meetings.

Rev. Chastain's wife and daughter, Elaine, will remain at the parsonage.

Health Officer Gives Rules For Halting Food Poisoning

Simple rules on how to prevent food poisoning outbreaks are being mailed to all food handling establishments of Allegany County, according to Dr. Winter R. Frantz, health officer.

Investigation, Dr. Frantz said, shows the direct cause of food poisoning in which large numbers of persons have been involved is related to the preparation or storage of food by persons improperly instructed and unaware of the importance of their work.

Personal cleanliness was listed as the first rule in preventing outbreaks of food poisoning. Hands must be washed before food is handled, and clean garments should be worn by all food handlers.

Since infected hands are one of the major causes of food poisoning, persons with unhealed cuts or burns should not be permitted to prepare food.

Temperature Is Vital

All working surfaces and equipment should be clean and free of dirt and vermin. Food utensils should be washed, rinsed and sanitized according to Health Department regulations, which require 140 degree water for washing and 180 degrees for the final rinse.

All perishable food must be kept under refrigeration at 40 degrees or below, or if hot should be kept at 145 degrees until served. To be safe, food must be kept either hot or cold until served, since food that is lukewarm can be dangerous.

Food crowded or wrapped while in a refrigerator, the notice said, will not be completely refrigerated, since circulation of air is needed for proper preservation of food.

Discard If Doubtful

A good rule to follow concerning food is, "When in doubt, throw it out," the Health Department said.

Officials said the danger of food poisoning is always present unless food is prepared and kept with scrupulous care.

The danger is multiplied, they add, during summer months because of high temperatures which foster rapid multiplication of bacteria.

Health officials pointed out that investigation of Baltimore's first 1954 outbreak of food poisoning—which made ill 30 out of 45 members of a group, implicated a waiter who was temporarily infected with an organism which caused the food poisoning.

No Relief Seen In Current Wave Of Hot Weather

In spite of scattered thundershowers which fell in the Cumberland area yesterday, no relief from the current hot spell is in sight, according to the Weather Bureau forecast for this portion of the state.

Temperatures in downtown Cumberland took a sharp drop in the period between 1 and 4 p. m. when intermittent rain caused the thermometer to "nosedive" from 93 to 79, a change of 14 degrees.

However, the temperature drop was shortlived, as the mercury had climbed back up to 85 within the hour between 4 and 5 p. m.

At Constitution Park, where Cumberland's official weather station is located, temperatures seemed to follow the form of the past several days.

The high official mark there was 91, as compared with 90 the day before and 89 on Tuesday. The low mark there was 66 and at 6 p. m. the humidity registered a sultry 77 per cent.

Rain fell for a while yesterday at about 3 p. m., and then again at 8 p. m. another welcome shower hit the tri-state area. Despite this however, the total rainfall measured a scant .05 inches.

Baltimoreans also sweltered yesterday. The Monumental City experienced its hottest night of the summer season Wednesday as the mercury registered 90 degrees after sundown. The lowest overnight temperature in Baltimore was 79 degrees.

According to the forecast for this area, no immediate letup is expected. Today will be partly cloudy and continued hot, with scattered thundershowers in the afternoon and evening. The forecast for nearby West Virginia is similar.

Some relief may come late tomorrow when a mass of cool air is scheduled to reach the state from the northern plains.

Candidates Report No Election Costs

Election expense statements of two candidates for office in the June 28 primary were filed yesterday at the office of Joseph E. Boden, clerk of Allegany County Circuit Court.

Charles G. Genevie who was nominee for Democratic delegate to the state convention reported no expenses and no contributions. Ernest B. Treat, nominee for Republican delegate to the state convention also reported no expenses and no contributions.

PSC Kills Rate Hike

BALTIMORE, July 29 (AP) — The Public Service Commission today rejected a petition for a rehearing of its decision in granting Consolidated Gas, Electric Light and Power Co. a rate increase.

People's Counsel Joseph Allen, who requested the rehearing, argued that the increase granted the firm in June was far more than needed to provide a fair rate of return.

Southern Teams Win Intra-City Volleyball Event

A Pennsylvania Avenue Playground team was declared winner in the Junior Boys division after it won two straight games from a North End Playground team, representing the Northern Division.

Correlation Of Plans Set

The City of Cumberland has advised the Corps of Engineers that the State Roads Commission will be asked to forward plans for the West Side expressway in case the Mayor and Council takes favorable action on the overhead bridge program.

In a recent letter, Mayor Roy W. Eves pointed out that city officials will reach a decision on August 9 on the SRC proposal which includes a highway in the vicinity of the flood levee from Riverside Park to Kelly Boulevard.

He said the plans would be forwarded to the Corps of Engineers office for recommendations so it could be correlated with the flood protection work on the West Side.

The city also made several suggestions on work to be done by the Corps of Engineers in connection with the flood wall, including a reduction in the elevation on Kelly Boulevard and the reduction from 10 to eight feet in the relocated Paca Street sidewalk.

Schindler Named To Grand Conclave

Julius E. Schindler, local attorney and past grand chancellor of the Maryland Grand Lodge Knights of Pythias, will represent the Maryland Grand Lodge at the Supreme Lodge convention in Des Moines, Iowa, August 6 to 10.

Other representatives from Maryland will be Edward M. Akers of Frederick; Brawner Z. Harding of Gaithersburg and David Harris of Baltimore.

Among leading members of the order who will attend the convention are Mayor Robert F. Wagner, New York City; Governor Allen Shivers of Texas, and Governor Goodwin Knight of California, Schindler noted.

Hat Show Winners Named At West Side

The 21 hats entered in the contest were judged by Judy Newman, Sharon Blizzard, and Patricia Mulligan.

W. Va. Conducts Oak Wilt Study

Surveys are being conducted in a number of areas in West Virginia for the purpose of locating and destroying trees iffected with oak wilt.

Representatives of the State Department of Agriculture, Conservation Commission, and West Virginia University have crews working all over the state.

Many woodland owners are joining the fight against this plant disease and are scouting their own property for infected trees, thus easing the work of the state conservationists somewhat.

The disease is rather easily identified, as it produces a toxic chemical which causes the leaves to become slightly cupped at first, then partially dull green and water-soaked, and finally partly or completely browned.

For positive identification, samples may be submitted to the Department of Plant Pathology, West Virginia University, Morgantown.

Juvenile Court Hearing Slated In Purse Theft

Brothers Admit Ransacking Cars

A 17-year-old Baltimore youth will be given a Juvenile Court hearing in the theft of a purse on Wednesday night and two small boys who live here will be given a hearing in connection with the ransacking of a number of cars during the past week.

The Baltimore boy, who was taken into custody about 20 minutes after Mrs. Richard Trexler of Union Street had her purse snatched from her on North Centre Street, reportedly admitted to police that he also had grabbed some papers from Miss Elizabeth McCullough, 124 Frederick Street, in the same spot about half an hour before the purse-snatching.

When Miss McCullough shouted, the boy dropped the papers and fled through a nearby alley. Later he returned to the scene and allegedly grabbed Mrs. Trexler's purse.

His parents were notified and will be in court at 10 a.m. today, police said. The youth was questioned by Joseph H. Stitcher of the City Police Detective Bureau, and Assistant Chief B. Frank Gaffney.

Stitcher said the two brothers, who are 10 and 12 years of age, admitted ransacking a number of cars parked along the city streets and in parking lots.

They were arrested on Tuesday, by Lt. James E. Van and Stitcher, questioned, and released in the custody of their parents. On Sunday, one of the brothers said, he took some wrenches from a parked car near the Union Street-Centre Street intersection and on Monday, ransacked a car on the Montgomery Ward parking lot. Papers were strewn through the car but nothing of value was reported missing.

Police said that in the series of ransacking jobs all types of items were taken from the cars.

One of the brothers reportedly took about $4 from a service station at the corner of Union and George streets Saturday, and two days later reportedly helped take about $12 in change from the same station.

Delinquency counts are being placed against the two brothers while the Baltimore youth will be given a hearing in the theft of the purse, which was recovered.

B&O Railroad Announces Four Promotions

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad yesterday announced four promotions in its maintenance of way department. All will become effective Sunday.

C. E. Jackman, division engineer of the Baltimore division, has been appointed maintence of way engineer with headquarters in Baltimore. Jackman first joined the B & O in 1940 as a blueprinter.

He later served as assistant engineer at Cincinnati and Newark, Ohio, and at Connellsville, Pa. He was appointed division engineer at Newark in 1950, division engineer at Cincinnati in November 1952, and shortly after that moved to Baltimore to accept the position from which he is now being promoted.

Jackman's successor as division engineer will be J. A. Caywood, who has been with the railroad since 1947. He began as an assistant on the engineering corps in Cincinnati and in 1950 became assistant division engineer at Grafton, W. Va. He was promoted to division engineer at Cincinnati in January 1953.

Caywood's replacement at Cincinnati is J. T. Collinson, who began his service with the B & O in October 1946, as an assistant on the engineering corps at Pittsburgh. He became maintenance inspector at Baltimore in 1947 and was named assistant division engineer at Newark in October 1950.

W. G. Stagge, who first came to the railroad as a blueprinter at Cincinnati in 1938, will succeed Collinson at Newark. Stagge was promoted to assistant on the engineering corps in 1940, prior to entering the armed forces where he attained the rank of major. In June 1946 he was named assistant engineer at Newark, and in Septem 1947, became assistant division engineer at Baltimore.

Girl Scout Council Group Makes Official Camp Visit

By F. ALLAN WEATHERHOLT
News Staff Writer

Thirteen members of the Cumberland Girl Scout Council made their official visit to the Girl Scout Camp at Green Ridge Wednesday, and after their regular monthly meeting, were entertained at dinner, a campfire and pow-wow.

This is the final week of the 1954 established camp at Green Ridge, and a total of almost 200 girls have participated in the camping program.

According to members of the Scout Council, the camp this year is far superior to any conducted in the past. Buildings, tents, play areas, roads, swimming facilities, water, sanitary facilities and programming have all been vastly improved.

Mrs. Elizabeth Williams, chairman of the camp committee, and Mrs. A. M. Spioch, president of the Council, both commented that "this is the happiest camp" the Cumberland Council has ever sponsored.

Make Tour Of Camp

As the Council members arrived at Green Ridge, they were taken on an escorted tour by scouts and counselors throughout the vast area.

The camp is located in Green Ridge State Forest, on the site of the old CCC Camp, where several hundred youths were trained in outdoor living, and did a splendid job of constructing buildings, fire trails and generally improving the area.

The property now belongs to the State of Maryland and the Cumberland Girl Scouts lease a portion of it through cooperation with the Department of State Forests and Parks.

Council members found that many of the barracks and administration buildings are, after 20 years, still in very good condition. One log structure is used as an infirmary, another larger one is used as an administration building, and one barracks building houses the Brownies or younger children. The intermediate and senior girls live in large tents, erected in units above wooden platforms.

The Army-type kitchen and dining hall, built by the CCC, is still intact and fully equipped. This is where the girls have most of their meals.

Impressive Ceremonies

Council members, following the inspection tour, were taken to the dining hall, where each member became a guest of a particular unit.

Following the dinner, and the clean-up period which included dish-washing with almost everyone participating, the guests were invited to attend the flag ceremony.

The Scouts marched in single file to an area surrounded by tall, graceful evergreen trees. In the center of this formation there is a flagpole with the national colors flown from sunrise to sunset.

The scouts and Council members formed a huge circle around the flagpole, recited the Girl Scout pledge to the Flag, sang "God Bless America" and then as the color guard lowered and tri-folded the flag, each scout stood at right hand salute.

It was a colorful, impressive, patriotic and serious ceremony, not unlike the retreat stood daily by servicemen and remembered so well by veterans everywhere.

Program Persented

Toward dusk, the Council member guests were escorted to the play area and given grandstand seats on logs arranged for the purpose. In a few minutes, the entire camp personnel, led by Miss Olive Hurlburt, camp director, marched silently toward the area and formed a large circle about a pile of wood. One visitor commented, "the impressive thing about this is that so many girls of all ages could stay quiet so long."

As the circle was completed, and the scouts, most of them dressed as Indians, complete with feathers, blankets and warpaint, seated themselves Indian-fashion on the ground.

While the fire burned, the "three Indian tribes", the Apaches, the Cree, and the Shawnee, which represents the three units in the camp as well as the three age groups, proceeded to issue challenges to skits, stunts, feats of strength, endurance and so on. Council members agreed it was quite a show.

At the conclusion of the challenges and the contests, the "Indians" arose, turned their backs upon the fire, and sang a campfire goodnight song.

Camp Well Staffed

Council members on the tour agreed that it was a splendid experience, and that Green Ridge this year is a truly happy camp.

The Scouts who were questioned indicated they do not want to see the camp end. They all expect to return next year, and there was general agreement that the program is sound, the counselors are fair and capable and the food is especially good.

Besides Mrs. Williams and Miss Hurlburt, the camp is staffed by Miss Sally Bowen, a registered nurse; Mrs. Clara Cox and Miss Genevieve O'Neil, cooks; Jimmy Williams and Harold Carl Jr., handy boys; Miss Edity Utt, waterfront counselor, her assistant Peggy Spioch who also assists Miss Margie Leggo and Mrs. Williams with Unit III; Miss Lois McCullough, nature study counsellor; Miss Eleanor Whetsell, Miss Nancy

Area Payrolls And Employment Are Increasing

Workers Recalled At Amcelle Plant

Payrolls and employment in 17 major industries in the Cumberland area increased in June, marking the second month in a row that Chamber of Commerce figures reflected an upturn in business conditions here.

The total payrolls for the 17 firms, $3,052,199, marked a 7.2 per cent increase over May payroll totals, and the 8,934-member working force represented an increase of two per cent over the May employment total.

The July "Business at a Glance" report, issued yesterday by the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce, showed that six of the seven June indices were in the "plus" column, including Postal receipts, up 7 per cent; Postal Savings deposits, up 29.1 per cent, bank debits, up 15.5 per cent, and building permits, up 215.8 per cent.

The only item in the minus column was the sale of savings bonds, down 64.5 per cent, attributed to the use of savings for vacation trips.

Bank debits, which reflect the volume of business totaled $26,781,000 in June, as compared to May's $23,182,000.

Margin Is Narrowing

June's working force in the 17 industries, for example, is 20.1 per cent fewer than were employed a year ago, but some 280 higher than in June.

These figures, of course, reflect only the activity of 17 industries which the Chamber includes in its index.

Construction work, which is being pushed as fast as possible, adds many hundreds of men to the working force. Some of this is seasonal, such as road construction which must be halted during winter months, but other projects, such as buildings, are continuing projects once foundations are laid.

The Maryland Employment Service reports 4,909 registered in July, an increase of 372 over June, but July placements, at the 152 mark, represents an increase of 29.

Celanese Plant Recalls

Early this year, the working force at the plant was boosted to the 2,100 mark as the Celanese Corporation began to make Fortisan yarn available to its civilian customers. It had been used by the Armed Forces almost exclusively since it was developed.

Since early in June, several hundred workers have been recalled to the big yarn plant, most of them in recent weeks, and the total force was just a few less than 2,300 early this week. Recalls already scheduled will push the employment figure past the 2,300 mark today.

Meanwhile, the Cumberland Undergarment Company has resumed full production after its plant was closed for 10 days as a result of damage caused by the July 14 storm.

Sewerage Work Keeps Sanitarians Busy

Field trips on sewerage totaled 109 last month out of the 416 trips made by the sanitarians. Included was the inspection of 30 septic tank installations completed during June.

The work also included 66 trips to food and drink establishments and 88 visits to dairy farms in the area. Eleven milk plants were also inspected.

Three houses were condemned and two others inspected for house repairs.
